Ford Fires 14 As Pickets Parade at Rouge Plant

Detroit, May 6 (AP).—Sweltering pickets swarmed around the Ford Rouge plant gates were obviously incensed today as sound trucks blared out the news that 14 unionists have been fired.

The discharges, stemming from wildcat walkouts preceding the general strike yesterday, were confirmed by the company. They included four CIO United Auto Workers committeemen. Among them was Chairman Mike Donnelly of the union's unit in the "B" building, center of the "speed-up" dispute.

[The New York Herald Tribune said the Ford company had announced plans to close six of its plants, employing 8000 hourly rated workers, in the next week because the plants will run out of parts supplied by the struck Rouge and Lincoln plants here. The eight are Lincoln-Mercury plants in Metuchen, N. J., St. Louis and Los Angeles, two Ford assembly plants in Chicago and St. Paul and a station wagon body manufacturing plant in Iron Mountain, Mich.—Editor's Note.]

An estimated 5000 pickets paraded peacefully around the plant's 10 gates as word of the firings spread. There was no immediate comment from the union.

Picket Line Peaceful

Ford attributed 11 of the dismissals, including Donnelly's, to a brief stoppage at the plant last Friday. The walkout began as a special international union committee arrived to investigate UAW Local 600's charge of speed-up on the assembly lines.

As a result, the top-level union committee was forced to postpone its investigation to Monday and Ford sent 1500 workers home.

In contrast with the only other big Ford strike in 1941, everything was peaceful on the widespread picket lines.

No Moves to Renew Talks

Ford has said that virtually all its 106,000 production workers would be idled within two to nine days by the shutdown of the key Rouge plant. So far, no other plant closings or layoffs have been announced.

While temperatures stood at 90 degrees today, picket captains sought to organize their forces for a possible long strike. They developed a system to permit certain white-collar workers to pass through the gates.

Neither Ford nor the union has made a move yet to renew peace talks, broken off within minutes after the walkout.

Probably not more than 2500 persons know exactly what the strike is all about.

Most big strikes in the past have dealt with wage increases, union recognition and the like—something the public is better able to pass judgment on.

If you ever worked on an as-

72 Properties Here Studied for Condemnation

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) yesterday filed with the Senate a list of 72 Washington properties now under "active consideration" by the District Board for the Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings.

With the locations of the properties, Senator Flanders also filed the list of their owners. He asked and obtained unanimous consent of the Senate to have the list printed in the appendix of the Congressional Record.

Senator Flanders took the lead recently in calling the Senate's attention to slum conditions within sight of the Capitol and elsewhere in Washington.

Tickets On Sale For Book Night

Tickets for the "Book and Author Night" to be held at Constitution Hall Tuesday, May 17, are now on sale.

The "Book and Author Night" is cosponsored by the American Booksellers Association and The Washington Post.

Speakers at the event will be Arnold Toynbee, Esther Forbes, John Mason Brown, Quentin Reynolds and Munro Leaf.

Tickets are on sale at all book stores, book sections of department stores, and in the lobby of The Washington Post: Unreserved orchestra, $1.80, and balcony, $1.00; reserved box seats, $2.40, tax included.

First Redevelopment Project

Marshall Heights Slum Plan Approved by Commissioners

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

District Commissioners yesterday approved the Marshall Heights redevelopment plan, first project in the Redevelopment Land Agency's city-wide program of slum clearance.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, announced the city heads will immediately urge the Federal Bureau of the Budget to seek funds from Congress with which to launch the plan. A study is under way to determine the amount necessary for purchase of land and organization of a staff.

The Commissioners told the National Capital Park and Planning Commission the plan will attempt to convert a "low density area, largely self-contained as a community, on one of the finest natural sites in the city, and with no occupancy restrictions as to race or creed."

The project area, bounded by East Capitol st., Central and Southern aves., Benning rd. and 49th st., is mainly in the Southeast section of the city near the District line. A small segment is in the Northeast.

Mark Lansburgh, chairman of the three-year-old Redevelopment Land Agency, welcomed the Commissioners' action. He said the next step is for the NCPPC, authors of the redevelopment plan, to certify that it is ready for action. Then Congress will be asked for funds.

When and if funds are granted, the agency will select a staff, establish an office, and begin acquiring land by negotiation or condemnation. After this bids will be invited for erection of satisfactory housing.

John Nolen, jr., planning director of the NCPPC, said the commission expects to certify the project early next week and is now studying the legal requirements to accomplish this action.

The president of the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington, William S. Banks, also praised the Commissioners' action and said, "It is now up to Congress to do its part toward District slum clearance and appropriate sufficient funds to put the RLA to work."

The Commissioners granted the approval in a six-page letter which commented on criticism raised against the project. These were:

1. The failure to include a downtown slum area in the initial pro-

Truman Sends Young's Name To Senate

President Truman yesterday sent to the Senate the nomination of John Russell Young to continue in office as president of the Board of District Commissioners for his fourth three-year term.

The nomination was referred to the Senate District Committee. Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) announced he will support the nomination. He said procedure for handling it will be worked out in a committee meeting at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday.

Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) has served notice he will fight the appointment, and expects some support for his opposition.

Four other District Committee members said they expect to vote for Young—Senators Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), Lester C. Hunt, (D., Wyo.), Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.), and Robert C. Hendrickson (R., N. J.)

The latter emphasized he would not finally commit himself pending further study, but he said "as far as I know Commissioner Young is doing a good job under a very awkward governmental setup."

Tornado Hits Texas Town, Killing Two

Lubbock, Tex., May 6 (AP).—At least two persons were killed and several were reported injured early tonight when a tornado struck the north edge of Sundown, Tex., 45 miles west of here. Sundown is a small oil field community.

Ambulances from Levelland and Brownfield were called to the area.

M. Fite, Sundown school teacher, said at least eight homes were demolished, a Church of Christ church and parsonage blown away and numerous other buildings heavily damaged.

Members of the Brownfield National Guard were called to Sundown.

Heavy rain and hail were reported at Levelland, Morton and Muleshoe.

A tornado last night cut a 12-mile swath southeast of Dalhart in the rich wheatlands of the Texas Panhandle. Hail ruined 5 to 55 per cent of the wheat in places.

A twister also hit Twist, a switching point about 5 miles southwest of Dalhart. No one was injured.

3 Violent Deaths Keep 'Curse' Alive At Benning Base

Columbus, Ga., May 6 (U.P.).—The "curse" on Ft. Benning Army base and its personnel was still working today.

Police announced Pfc. Robert W. Dixon, 25, of Keshena, Wis., was shot to death in a fight with an officer who had arrested him for drunken driving. He leaves an Italian war bride.

Corp. Arnold Hakala, 27, of Bessemer, Mich., admitted running his automobile over his wife last Sunday. She died.

On Tuesday, a soldier was found stabbed to death on the parade ground. A Negro later confessed.

On Wednesday, three pregnant wives of Benning soldiers were reportedly abducted and driven to Florida by a drunken soldier.

The women escaped and returned home safely by bus.

2 Opponents See Passage Of Sales Tax

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senate approval of the 2 per cent District sales tax next week was predicted last night by two of its outspoken opponents.

The predictions came from Senators Robert C. Hendrickson (R., N. J.) and J. Allen Frear, jr., (D., Del.) as the Senate began consideration of the controversial 18-million - dollar District revenue measure.

Hendrickson and Frear are two of the four District Committee signers of a minority report which opposed passage of the sales tax.

The belief that the sales tax would be approved was echoed by Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), chairman of the Senate District Subcommittee that prepared the measure.

Senate District Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) said final action on the bill is expected next week.

The sales tax has passed the House, and in revised form it cleared the Senate District Committee by a 7 to 4 vote.

Formal Senate debate on the measure began at 5:13 p. m. yesterday, and was interrupted two minutes later when Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), acting majority floor leader, called for a recess, and gave assurance that the measure will have right-of-way Monday.

Myers described it as an "extremely important piece of legislation." He explained that there had been a gentleman's agreement to recess about 5 p. m., and that many Senators had left the floor.

During the two minutes of discussion, Senator Hunt urged passage of the revenue bill. "The District is in dire need of additional revenue to carry on even at a minimum the necessary city functions," he said. Hunt was given assurance he would have the floor early Monday afternoon

Between now and the final vote, the Senate is expected to consider

Bar and Everything

Prince Georges County police yesterday battered their way into a luxuriously-furnished house at Hillside, Md., arrested five Greater Washington men and seized a quantity of alleged gaming paraphernalia.

The men were in a den, its entrance cleverly concealed by a false cupboard. It was furnished with a semi-circular bar. Fluorescent lights encased in glass bricks threw a soft glow over massive wooden desks and chairs. The room itself was richly paneled in knotty pine.

The house, a neat stucco bungalow, is at 5405 O st., Hillside.

The men, charged with operating a lottery and accepting horse race bets were: Hyman Sussman, 40, of 3215 Chesapeake st. nw.; Wilton A. Hartman, 28, of 4831 Huron ave. se., Adolph Olewack, 43, of 812 Jefferson st. nw., Harry Shapiro, 50, of 2408 16th st. nw., and George Raynor, 50, of 200 Evans Lane, Alexandria.

Those in Raiding Party

The raiding party consisted of Maj. Ralph Brown, chief of the county police; Lieut. R. C. Sines of the Hyattsville substation; Lieut. Charles Thomsen, chief of county detectives; County Detectives Earl J. Huber and Richard Pearson and Bladensburg Police Chief Henry J. Nebel.

A rear door was jimmied open by the raiders who tiptoed down a flight of stairs leading to a basement. Here they found the "cupboard."

They removed three shelves revealing another door. Working with ax and crowbar the raiders smashed down the barrier and stepped into the den.

The occupants, police said, were trapped since the "cupboard" was the only exit.

Police seized an intercommunication outfit, a television set, racing charts, a radio, and filing cabinets.

Other Gambling War Action

Other action in the war against gambling in the District and Prince Georges County yesterday included:

1. Eight more persons under indictment in the District, the county or both, on gaming charges, surrendered and posted bond—four of them at police headquarters here, the others at Upper Marlboro.

2. District Court heard arguments asking dismissal of charges against Attilio Accolatti, 40, of 908 14th st. nw., and Frederick C. Whiteoak, 31, of 1504 Oates st. se, both charged with setting up a gaming table. The court also heard arguments asking a bill of particulars in the case of Harry S. Kopel, proprietor of Hammel's Restaurant, accused of accepting bets, to inform him of the nature of the evidence seized.

3. Five motions were filed in District Court in behalf of 14 other defendants including gambler William (Snags) Lewis. They asked for bills of particulars, return of

Peace-Bent Greek Rebel Refused Visa

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A Greek rebel leader's request for a visa to enter this country to conduct "peace negotiations" at the United Nations was rejected yesterday by the United States, it was learned last night.

The representative of the Communist-led guerillas, Miltiades Porphyrogenis, Minister of Justice for the "Free Democratic Government of the Greek Mountains," had applied for the visa through the United States Embassy in Czechoslovakia.

Porphyrogenis, who is in Prague, told reporters there early this week that he had sent a message to Herbert V. Evatt, president of the U. N. General Assembly, urging Evatt to aid him in obtaining a visa.

The Communist minister said the Greek rebels were ready to make peace with the American and British-supported government in Athens if Evatt could arrange for negotiations, because, "there will be peace in Berlin . . . (and) the only clash left in Europe will be in Greece."

Yesterday, the Czechoslovak Ministry of Foreign Affairs announced that it had transmitted Porphyrogenis' message to Evatt last Saturday, and also intervened to urge American authorities to grant the visa.

In rejecting the application, authorities here duplicated their action in refusing to grant Porphyrogenis a visa to attend the

Calls Treaty War-Preventive

U. S. to Help Britain, France, Pact or No Pact, Roberts Says

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Even without the North Atlantic Pact, the American people would do all possible to "prevent France or Great Britain being ground into powder," former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts said yesterday.

Roberts told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, now considering ratification of the pact, that opposition was weak numerically but "makes up in lung power what it lacks in strength" and was concentrated in four groups. These, he said, were "well meaning but impractical pacifists, pseudo-liberals, rabid isolationists and, of course, the Communist Party with its assorted fronts."

Answering a question by Senator Donnell (R., Mo.), Roberts said the will to help Western Europe would not alone prevent war. Perhaps Russia, he explained, "would figure we would get our feet under us and get in as we did in the second World War, almost after the clock struck 12." He added that such a pact, had it been in operation in 1914 or 1939, would have prevented the two World Wars.

In common with other witnesses, Roberts was pounded with questions by Donnell, who has announced his opposition to the treaty, at least at this time. Not a member of the committee, he has been attending its hearings as a "guest."

James W. Gerard, pre-World War I Ambassador to Germany, said that having gone so far as to sign the pact, "if we then retreat

ERP Harms Europe, Says U. N. Report

Geneva, Switzerland, May 6 (AP).—A United Nations Commission contended today the European Recovery Program is hurting Europe's economy more than it helps.

The assertion marked a survey report of the U. N. Economic Commission for Europe. Nations from both sides of the iron curtain constitute the commission, created in 1947 by the U. N. Economic and Social Council to co-ordinate emergency organizations working to rehabilitate Europe.

The commission said European nations, striving for an economic comeback, are tripping over their own isolationism, and that

Harriman Cites Need Of Greater Progress

Paris, May 6 (AP).—European countries must show "accelerated progress" in mutual cooperation under the European Recovery Program, W. Averell Harriman said today.

Harriman is Ambassador for the Economic Cooperation Administration, which handles Marshall Plan dealings between the United States and western European nations.

"There is great concern in America," Harriman said, "over the progress of mutual aid."

He said he had not had time to read the report by the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe.

Harriman said, however, that mutual cooperation "was part of the original plan."

The Russians accepted the apology, and the incident appeared closed—except for what the American Army is going to do with its pugnacious private, 19-year-old Edward Touhey of New York.

18 Men Form First Central Ruling Body Since Hitler

Reds Excluded; Bonn Assembly Votes Approval Of Constitution

Bonn, Germany, May 6 (U.P.). The German Constituent Assembly set up a government for western Germany tonight with Communists excluded and approved a constitution for the western German state by 47 votes to 2.

An 18-man executive committee was elected to operate as a government until a formal government is set up under the constitution.

The pro tem western government is the first central German government since Adolf Hitler's fell in 1945.

Third Reading Formality

The 70-man assembly approved the constitution on its decisive second reading. The third reading Sunday is a formality. Sunday is the fourth anniversary of Germany's defeat.

The two Communist assemblymen voted against the constitution. Fifteen other members, including eight from strongly states-rights Bavaria, three Christian Democrats and four representatives of splinter parties, abstained.

Despite allied disapproval, the assembly insisted that the western sectors of Berlin be covered by the constitution. The western allies believe such action to be premature and are preparing to formalize the German government in their Berlin sectors when the constitution for western Germany becomes effective. The draft also abolishes the death penalty in west Germany.

Western Germany's interim government will function under allied supervision, as will the formal government to be set up after elections to be held probably late in July. But the allies, already preparing to turn over control of their occupation zones to civilians instead of commanders in chief, will interfere as little as possible with German administration.

Elected from Members

The temporary government was elected from members of the Constituent Assembly.

It consists of seven men each of the major Socialist and Christian Democrat parties, two Liberal Democrats and one man each of the German and Center parties.

The two Communists in the assembly bitterly opposed the formation of an executive committee to start the western German state going on Monday.

"This is nothing but a full-fledged government," Communist Deputy Max Reimann shouted.

Kennecott Cuts Copper Price 5c To 18½c a Pound

New York, May 6 (AP).—Kennecott Copper Corp., today reduced the price of refined copper 5 cents a pound to 18½ cents, Connecticut Valley basis.

Kennecott thus became the first major mine operator to adopt the copper price quoted by custom smelters since Monday. Phelps Dodge Corp., second largest domestic producer, reduced its quotation to 20 cents on Tuesday. Anaconda, third member of the "Big Three" producers, made no immediate comment on the price situation.

All Strikes, Disputes Are Stopped in Italy

Rome, Italy, May 6 (U.P.).—Italy enjoyed its first complete industrial peace since the end of the war today as Italian workers ceased all strikes and labor agitations on onders of the Communist-dominated National Labor Confederation.

The Confederation agreed yesterday with the Industrial Association, composed of Italy's top management officials. To an industry-wide meeting to settle labor-management problems, the first time the two factions have seen eye-to-eye since the Communists stopped cooperating with western aims in 1945.

Smart as a Whip!

Horse Stupid? Neigh, Cries Derby Favorite

Dr. Bernard Reiss, head of the animal behavior section of the American Museum of Natural History, said in New York Thursday that the horse is just about the most stupid of animals. This was duly reported Friday in The Washington Post. Yesterday the following statement was dictated to Walter Haight, the man, by Olympia, the favorite in today's running of the Kentucky Derby.

Churchill Downs, Ky., Barn No. 10, May 6.—Dear Doc:

JUST because the race is called the Derby, you don't have to talk through your hat. And I'd like to ask you a question: what were you doing when you were 3 years old? I'll bet you were just another of those "little devil" humans, probably upsetting the gravy boat in Aunt Agatha's lap or swinging the neighbor's cat around by the tail.

I'll bet you couldn't count ten and didn't know what letter came after "R" in the alphabet.

I'm three years old, Doc, and I'm loafing around the stall waiting to earn more than 90,000 bucks for about two minutes work Saturday. You're probably 53—at least your cracks sound like you're nearing your second childhood—and how're you doing?

Another thing, Doc, it probably took you 16 years to be educated for your job. I learned my profession in less than two years. Why, I even ran the day I was foaled and you didn't learn to walk in a year. So I'm stupid, eh?

YOU were still keeping the family wash big, running up the gas bill, having your bottles sterilized and keeping your parents awake half the night when I was a little man, left to my own devices in an open field.

So you belittle the expression "horse sense," Doc. You sound like the kind of fellow who has to wipe the dinner dishes, run the vacuum, mow the lawn and I'll wager you not only have to pay for your groceries but you have to carry them home from the store, too.

I've got six men working for me around my house. My stall is mucked out four times a day and all I have to do is move to one side. I don't have to listen to blurting radios or look at television shows I don't like. And when it comes to eating, all I have to do is reach my neck out. Can you beat it, Doc?

So you get pushed around on

OLYMPIA
Not so stupid

crowded streetcars and buses or swat your way through traffic in the family jalopy. Me? When I move around, I have a private plane, exclusive Pullman or a plush-lined van. So I'm dumb, eh? It's a two-legged guy like you, Doc, who pays the bills.

If you cut yourself shaving and try to get sympathy from your wife, she probably says, "Don't be so careless." If I scrape my chin, two veterinarians are called and I don't have to come out of the stall for two days.

HORSES have intelligence, Doc, despite your opinion. Haven't you heard of a horse, given a free rein in a storm, bringing the women folk and the children safely back to the farm?

Didn't old Exterminator watch the starter to make sure he got away from the barrier alertly?

And, by the way, Doc, did you ever hear of a horse trying to fix a race? Or having a hangover on New Year's Day? Or worrying about the atom bomb? Or working all night on his income tax? Or lying about the fish that got away?

When I get too old to run, I will be retired to a knee-deep blue grass farm and a hand-picked harem. What about you, Doc?

Well, in closing, all I can say is that when I die, I hope I'm not reincarnated as a man and have to get my publicity opening my big mouth.

OLYMPIA.

Suitcase Emptied To Pay $1976 for Round-Trip Flight

There's nothing beats paying cash as you go.

The other day two Romanian officials stepped up to the Pan American Airways ticket counter at 1109 Connecticut ave. nw. They wanted round-trip tickets to Buenos Aires. The tickets were issued.

"Now, that'll be—" Mrs. Margaret Russell, the clerk, did some quick figuring — "that'll be $1976.40."

One of the officials hauled a huge suitcase onto the counter, opened it, and out cascaded a flood of currency.

Board Urges Pay Rise for Expressmen

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

An emergency fact-finding board, appointed by President Truman, yesterday recommended a 7-cents-an-hour pay increase for some 60,000 Railway Express workers throughout the country, retroactive to last October 1.

The board also recommended a 40-hour work week, in place of the present 44-hour work week, to begin September 1.

In effect, the special three-man board suggested the same terms of settlement for the Railway Express employes belonging to the AFL Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, as accepted by the 1,500,000 union men working for the railroads.

The board also proposed making several changes in working rules, but urged withdrawal of the union demand for longer vacations, and other changes in operating regulations.

The fact-finders rejected the union argument that the shorter week should go into effect immediately. The union's position was that the AFL Railway Clerk employes should receive the same treatment as 3000 AFL Teamster employes of Railway Express.

The teamsters won a 40-hour week March 1 through arbitration.

A month-long work stoppage occurred in New York in a dispute over the date for beginning the shorter week. Hundreds of Railway Express employes were laid off at other cities, including Washington, as a result of an embargo on shipments to New York. Work was resumed April 14 after the President set up the emergency board to investigate the dispute.

Under the National Railway Labor Act, both the company and the union employes must continue normal working relations for 30 days after the board files its report with the President.

The board included David L. Cole, Paterson, N. J.; Aaron Horvitz, New York City, and Leverett Edwards, Oklahoma City.

By a 2-1 referendum vote, the Communication Workers of America voted to affiliate with the CIO.

The CWA, with a membership of 187,000 and representing 230,000 workers, is the largest union in the telephone industry. It is the biggest union to join the CIO since 1938, when the Committee on Industrial Organization became the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

CWA headquarters here announced the results of the 60-day mail balloting by the membership as follows: For affiliation, 71,312; against affiliation, 34,419. Altogether, according to CWA President Joseph A. Beirne, 57 per cent of the membership cast their ballots.

The two Washington units of CWA, whose members are employed by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., announced the following vote:

Division 50: for affiliation, 601; against affiliation, 435. This unit covers principally telephone operators. Division 50 has a membership of 2356.

Division 36: for affiliation, 533; against affiliation, 819. This group covers accounting, commercial and plant employes, has 2220 members.

CWA President Beirne declared yesterday that several smaller independent phone unions plan to work for affiliating with the CWA-CIO. Their members, together with those in the CIO's Telephone Workers Organizing Committee, which has been a rival for the past two years, will swell CWA membership to 350,000, Beirne asserted. He said a campaign would be undertaken to raise CWA rolls to 500,000 within the next 18 months.

The Communications Workers of America is an outgrowth of the National Federation of Telephone Workers, which broke up after a seven weeks strike against the Bell System two years ago. Since then the CIO and the AFL's International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have sought to move into the telephone industry. Now the IBEW is expected to continue the fight for control of this field.

C. H. Houston Honored at Bar Dinner

Attorney Charles H. Houston was hailed as a "social engineer" at a testimonial dinner at the Dunbar Hotel last night.

Houston

The Washington Bar Association gave him a plaque. Thurgood Marshall, special counsel for the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, "lauded him as "the Washington man" who has done more than anybody elce to change the lawyer from an ordinary practitioner into a social engineer."

"He has had an influence on all lawyers in setting an example by his willness to work with others to break down all forms of discrimination, antiunion, antiNegro or anti-anything else," said Thurgood.

Presentation of the plaque was made by Assistant Corporation Counsel Hubert B. Pair in recognition of Houston's "constant advocacy and relentless defense of rights and liberties."

Maurice R. Weeks, association president, said the group after two decades has finally achieved full recognition by the judiciary of the District.

Guests included the Liberian Minister to the United States, Charles D. B. King; Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws of District Court; Chief Judge Nathan Cayton of the Municipal Court of Appeals; Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court; Associate Judge Henry W. Edgerton of the United States Court of Appeals; Associate Judge Brice Clagett of the Municipal Court of Appeals, and Municipal Court Judges Armond W. Scott, George D. Neilson and Milton S. Kronheim, jr., and Thurman L. Dodson, National Bar Association president.

Rail Workers Collect $550,000 in Back Pay

Roanoke, Va., May 6 (AP).—Some 6800 Norfolk & Western railroad employes had a financial windfall today.

They were to collect a gross $550,000 in checks for back pay to October 1, 1948. The payment comes as the result of a Government emergency fact-finding board's recommendation. The board recommended a 7-cent-per-hour hike for nonoperating employes. The agreement was reached in Chicago on March 19.

Virginia Poll Tax Deadline Is Today

Today is the deadline for payment of poll taxes by Virginians who wish to vote in the August 2 primary and November 8 general election for Governor and other State and local officials.

The $1.50 tax must be paid for the number of years up to three (prior to 1949) that a person has lived in Virginia. Residence of one year in the State is required for voting. The poll tax should be paid to the county or city treasurer.

Employment Rise Indicates 60-Million Top

Robert C. Goodwin, director of the U. S. Employment Service, said yesterday that 60 million persons will have jobs this summer through a substantial rise in employment by June.

But the rise will not be enough "to bring unemployment down to last year's exceptionally low levels," he added.

"The peak employment figures probably will be well below last year's record of 61,000, but relatively high in comparison with other years," he said.

The United Electrical Workers (CIO) said that the Government's April figures on unemployment again understated the number of jobless by 1,500,000 and "show that as yet there has been no spring pickup in industrial employment."

It said the Government's estimate of 3,016,000 unemployed in March is 1,500,000 too low because it does not include persons temporarily laid off, those obtaining only a few hours work, or those otherwise on the fringe of the labor market.

GE Works at Erie, Pa., To Lay Off 3400 More

Erie, Pa., May 6 (AP).—General Electric Co. officials today said about 3400 more employes would be laid off by May 27. The company previously said 1200 would be furloughed.

Assistant Works Manager Bertram Miller said "a further leveling off of the consumer market" was responsible. The Erie works, which makes refrigerators, finished World War II with about 17,000 employes, compared to about 5000 before the war.

Police Seize Canadian Town Held by Asbestos Strikers

Asbestos, Quebec, May 6 (U.P.).—A motorized convoy of 150 provincial policemen armed with shotguns and tear gas bombs, today broke through barricades thrown by 4000 strikers around this entire town, biggest asbestos production center in the world.

There was no repetition of yesterday's riot in which the strikers suppressed the 50 policemen on duty, took over the town and blockaded every road into the area to prevent the Canadian Johns-Manville Co. from bringing in "strikebreakers."

Awed by instructions to the police to "shoot if necessary," the strikers looked on glumly when 40 automobiles and a bus roared up to the main barricade. The policemen leaped out, removed it, and spread patrols over the town.

District Attorney Hertel O'Brady mounted the steps of the St. Aime Roman Catholic Church and read the riot act. He warned the strikers that the Army would be called in and martial law declared if that was necessary to maintain order.

Within hours, some 150 strikers were arrested and taken to nearby Sherbrooke, Quebec, to face charges ranging from criminal assault and possessing concealed weapons to refusing to obey police orders.

The town is owned by the Johns-Manville Co., which announced it planned to resume work at one of the plants late today.

The strikers are members of the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor. They have been on strike since April 21 for a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase and union security. Wages averaged 85 cents an hour.

Some 2000 men were employes of Johns-Manville. Some 3000 others worked for the Asbestos Corp., Johnson Mines, Nicolet Mines and the Flintkote Mines.

The strikers had the support of Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec, who ordered all churches in the Catholic diocese to take up collections at their doors for the strikers until further notice.

Physical Retirement Pay Cut Asked for Armed Services

An armed forces pay bill, boosting salaries but drastcially curtailing physical retirement benefits, was approved yesterday by a House Armed Services subcommittee.

The group accepted the higher new pay scales recommended in the original Administration bill, but then rewrote the retirement laws. Everyone in the service gets an increase, under the measure, except the lowest enlisted grade.

Present law entitles Regular officers and some Reserves to retired pay for life equal to 75 per cent of their active pay if disabled to any degree making them unfit for field service, provided the injury or illness was not the result of their own misconduct. Under the bill, however, the following applies to everyone in uniform:

1. Retired pay will be based on the degree of disability, and if that is less than 30 per cent—according to Veterans' Administration standards—he will get severance pay or a VA pension.

He also must be found to be unfit as the "approximate result of the direct performance of active duty" if he has less than nine years' service. Otherwise, he will get only severance pay or VA pension. Committee attaches say no retirement would be possible under this in most cases of illness or injury while on leave.

3. Those now on the disability retired list could qualify for the higher pay scales for their rank if they come within the new requirements as to degree and nature of their disability. If not, they would continue to receive their present rate.

4. Persons on the "temporary retired list"—as the disability list would be called—must be reexamined periodically, for a period of five years, and returned to the active list if the disability has disappeared. This would not apply to those now retired.

5. Persons now on the retired list for disability or disabled in the future could accept retirement pay based on length of service instead, if the rate were higher. However, disability retired pay will continue tax free, while other retired pay is not.

The pay increases under the bill range from 3 per cent for privates to 49 per cent for brigadier generals. Major generals would get a boost of 34 per cent and second lieutenants, 22 per cent. Master sergeants would be increased 30 percent and warrant officers 11 to 15 per cent.

Flight pay of generals and admirals would be limited to $100 a month. Family allowances for enlisted men which resulted in privates with many children receiving more pay than sergeants would be abolished.

The subcommittee estimated the cost of the bill—which would become effective in October if passed this session—at 360 million dollars in fiscal 1950 and 406 millions in 1951.

Johnston to Speak

Senator Olin Johnston, (D. S. C.), will address the monthly meeting of the Association of Retired Civil Employes at 2 p. m. today, in the auditorium of the Natural History Building, Constitution ave., and 10th sts., nw.

Ford Fires 14 Over Walkout

sembly line, or observed one closely, you may have a faint idea of what is meant by a speed-up. But even if you have, you're in no position to pass on the current Ford dispute.

The argument centers on the Ford assembly line in the Rouge plant's "B" building. There, about 2500 employes slap wheels, fenders, engines, bodies and hundreds of other parts on a bare auto frame as it moves down the line toward completion.

Feeding the 1620-foot main line are numerous other carriers bringing single or assembled parts—wheels replete with tires, motors built somewhere else, and so on.

Any number of things can and do happen on either the final or feeder lines—fuses blow, machinery breaks down or workers quit their jobs unexpectedly.

And herein lies the crux of the dispute.

The UAW says Ford should schedule its production so that if something happens along the way—through no fault of the workers themselves—they shouldn't have to make up for lost time.

Union president Walter Reuther said Ford, since it introduced its new models last June, has been trying to get a competitive advantage over the rest of the industry.

To accomplish this, he charged, workers have been forced to work 5 to 10 per cent above normal for the industry.

Reuther said Chevrolet and other producers, in drawing up their production schedules, make an allowance to cover minor mishaps along the line.

Ford doesn't deny that workers are required to make up for certain slip-ups—human or mechanical—when they cause only a little loss of time.

But the company argues that it has hired enough manpower to handle such emergencies. It says it actually had better than a 11 per cent surplus of employes on the Ford assembly line at the time of the walkout.

When the strike came, the company said, schedules called for 346 finished Fords a day to come from the "B" building. Actual production ranged from 333 to 350 a day.

But because future schedules called for 360 a day, Ford added, enough employes had been put on to turn out 378 without overworking them.

A strike of the 2500-odd assembly workers probably would have tied up only part of the Rouge plant and possibly a few others.

So the entire plant was struck, under the UAW's strategy, to support the complaint of the few.

Senate Votes Shifts In State Dept. Setup

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House a bill to reorganize the State Department, namely along the lines suggested by the Hoover Commission.

This would increase from 6 to 10 the number of Assistant Secretaries of State, charging them with administrative responsibility in certain fields.

In approving the bill earlier, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said that as a consequence, "the Secretary and Undersecretary will be freed to give fullest possible time to the broader aspects of American foreign policy and its administration."

As approved by the Senate on a unanimous voice vote, the measure would bring the foreign service directly under the wing of the Secretary of State, ending its previous semi-independent status.

The bill varies in three respects from the recommendations of the commission under former President Hoover, which has been studying the whole Government administrative setup with a view to overhaul.

It retains the counselor and legal adviser the commission said could be dispensed with.

The commission recommend that two deputy undersecretary jobs be created, but the Senate decided to give the secretary power to appoint any two of his assistants to serve in that capacity.

Although the Hoover commission urged that the office of director general of the foreign service be abolished, the Senate decided to retain that office but to give it only staff authority.

Assistant secretaries would be named for public affairs, congressional relations, economic and social policy, international organization affairs, American republics affairs, European affairs, Far Eastern affairs and Near Eastern and African affairs, in adition to two who would serve as deputy undersecretaries.

The committee said it had been assured the State Department will not ask additional funds to carry out the plan but, in fact, will reduce its force somewhat.

To Avoid Crisis

Byrd Urges 10 P. C. Cut In Budget

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) yesterday urged Congress to trim President Truman's $41,900,000,000 budget by at least 10 per cent to avoid a "crisis."

Byrd told the Senate that unless the Government's vast spending programs are cut down to absolutely "urgent" essentials, the national debt may soar by $10,700,000,000 by the middle of 1951.

The debt is now 252 billion dollars.

Byrd's speech gave new impetus to a Republican-led Senate economy drive in which several Democratic Senators have joined.

Senators Taft (R., Ohio), Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and other GOP lawmakers have insisted that Federal expenditures could be slashed by 5 per cent and thus avoid the necessity of boosting taxes to keep out of the red.

Earlier this week, five Democratic Senators—Byrd, Douglas (Ill.), Eastland (Miss.), McClellan (Ark.), and Tydings (Md.)—said Republicans will get their help in attempts to put across a real money-saving surge.

In his speech yesterday, Byrd told the Senate the Federal Government is "permeated with waste and inefficiency." He warned that if the Administration's spending is not curbed, the outcome will be "more taxes or deficits, more Government competition (with private business) and more regimentation."

The Virginian is a member of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee and one of the Senate's top economy spokesmen.

Knight Tells Secret of Good Newspaper

Columbia, Mo., May 6 (U.P.).—Editor and publisher John S. Knight tonight defined a "good" newspaper as one that "presents the news fairly and accurately; has editorial courage and integrity and is aware of its obligations to the community, State and Nation."

Knight spoke at the University of Missouri School of Journalism which gave him the Missouri honor award for distinguished service in journalism.

Knight is editor and publisher of the Chicago Daily News, the Akron Beacon-Journal, the Detroit Free Press, and the Miami Herald.

"The publisher's first responsibility is to see that his newspaper has wide reader acceptance," Knight said in a prepared address. "This can be accomplished in only one way: By producing a good newspaper."

Must Be Profitable

Knight said "a newspaper must be profitable in order to maintain its independence and freedom of action."

He said there have been only rare incidents of "influence of advertisers upon newspaper policy." Most advertisers, he said, have an abiding respect for newspapers with editorial integrity.

Frank L. Mott, dean of the School of Journalism, called for "a sound, competent, relizble continuing study of the contemporary American press" in presenting the honor medals.

Others Receiving Medals

In addition to Knight, medals were presented to: Elmer Davis, Washington, D. C. new analyst of the American Broadcasting Co.

Alfonso Johnson, executive secretary of the Southwestern Association of Advertising Agencies, Dallas, Tex.

The Saturday Evening Post, the medal being accepted by Editor Ben Hibbs.

The Memphis Commercial-Appeal, the medal being accepted by Editor Frank R. Ahlgren.

Fields Letters Play Big Role In Estate Row

Los Angeles, May 6 (AP).—Droll letters of W. C. Fields are playing a big role in the court squabble over the late comedian's estate.

His long-estranged widow, Mrs. Harriet V. Fields, and his sister, Mrs. Adel Smith, produced letters yesterday in their efforts to secure a heavy share of the $771,429 legacy.

After the widow had testified her relations with the bulb-nosed comic were "congenial," Mrs. Smith's attorney produced a letter in which Mrs. Fields had written her husband:

"There is nothing you wouldn't do for me and nothing I would do for you—so we have gone through a lifetime doing nothing for each other."

To this Fields replied in January, 1944:

". . . $124,800 over the years you consider nothing! Hi, ho, lack-a-day, will wonders never cease."

In a letter to Mrs. Smith in 1941, when he was seriously ill, Fields instructed the sister to come to California if he should die (he didn't until 1946). And if she were asked about his wife and son, Claude, she should say she had heard of them only casually.

"They have taken up residence in California. The only reason they are out here is in case anything happens to me," he wrote.

"They act like a couple of vultures."

$50,500 Bid Wins 'Dunrovin' Estate

Dunrovin, 143-acre Fairfax County showplace, was sold at auction for $50,500 yesterday to Sydney Follin of McLean, Va., whose family once owned it.

On the Old Georgetown Pike near Forestville, the estate was auctioned off at a trustees' sale to satisfy the debts of former owner Richard A. Wheeler.

Senate Backs New Plan On Mental Cases

The Senate yesterday approved and sent to the House a bill to set up a new method for detention and care of persons of unsound mind found on Federal reservations in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

The bill, passed by unanimous consent, calls for sending the persons to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for 30 days. They would be discharged from the hospital if found to be of sound mind. If found to be of unsound mind, they would be returned to their home States, or to their relatives.

Their assignment to St. Elizabeth's Hospital would have to be ordered by a United States Commissioner, after a hearing which would include testimony or affidavits of two doctors, and testimony of two other persons.

10 Years for Rape Attempt

Walter G. Tillgham, 44, of Beacontown, Md., was stenced to 10 years in the Maryland State Penitentiary last night after a Prince Georges County Circuit Court jury found him guilty of attempted rape.

He was charged with attempting to rape a 39-year-old Laurel, Md., housewife, last January 28.

The jury deliberated half an hour before returning a verdict of guilty at 11:35 p. m. with a recommendation against capital punishment. The sentence was imposed by Judge Charles C. Marbury immediately after.

The laborer was accused of attacking the woman in a field near the Laurel underpass as she was walking from her home to the Laurel American Legion Hall.

The complainant testified she was grabbed from behind and dragged by the throat into the field. Her attacker, frightened by her screams, fled after throwing her to the ground, she said.

She identified Tillghman as her attacker from the witness stand.

Tillghman was linked to the assault the following day by a man's hat found near the scene after a posse of 75 men, including local and State police, scoured the area all night without success.

Police quoted the defendant as admitting the attack but saying he thought the woman was "someone else."

Douglas to Stay At London Post for Remainder of Year

London, May 6 (NYHT.).—Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassador at the Court of St. James's offered last week to resign his post but was refused and will remain here at least throughout the rest of this year, it was learned today.

Douglas offered his resignation because of the time he has lost and will lose from his duties as a result of the eye injury he suffered five weeks ago while fishing.

He lost a month from work immediately after the eye injury. He will lose another three weeks when he undergoes an operation, probably early in June, for removal of a cataract which has formed on the injuried left eye. He had a sinus operation today.

Mama Chimp Loses Custody Of Her Baby, Gets Big Kiss

New Orleans, May 6 (AP).—After one year's effort, David, a baby chimpanzee, has been taken away from his mother in the Audubon Park Zoo.

George Douglas, park superintendent, said it took a powerful drug—"a shot in the arm big enough to knock out a 200-pound man"—to pacify the chimp's mother, Lucette.

Once mother and baby were separated, the papa chimp, Duffy, was moved back into its cage.

At the reunion, Duffy rushed up to Lucette, grabbed her in his arms and kissed her. Duffy had been gone for two years and three months—ever since David was born—while Lucette devoted her talents to rearing the baby.

But chimps "dry up fast," Douglas explained, "and the baby was not getting the proper food." This was the 18-year-old Lucette's fourth offspring.

"We took her first baby away by building a trap door in the cage," Douglas said, "but when we tried that a second time she remembered that trick and would have none of it. Her second baby died of pneumonia. Her third one we took away by getting her drunk on port wine. She just gulped down a fifth and a half of good port, after we gave her no water for a day.

"But that made a teetotaler out of her. We offered her wine when we undertook to take David away but she refused it.

"We don't like to use force, and the shot in the arm appeared to be the solution. She is coming out of it all right. In fact, she and Duffy are happy honeymooners."

4 Miners Lose Race for Life By 1 Minute

Girardville, Pa., May 6 (U.P.).—Just one minute cost the lives of four miners in a burning, gas-filled anthracite mine.

After 50 hours of battling smoke and poisonous fumes, rescuers found their bodies today, only 300 feet from the mine shaft entrance and safety.

The four men died when they made a dash for safety through deadly carbon monoxide fumes rather than seek refuge in the mine, below the fire and smoke, rescuers said.

"If they had held out just one minute longer, they could have made it," said Elmer Christ, rescue leader. The miners were trapped when fire broke out Tuesday night in the No. 5 colliery of the Gilberton Coal Co.

The bodies were found along the second level 500 feet below the surface. Tests showed the air on the third level was clear of deadly fumes which killed William O'Brien, 53; Raymond Eye, 35; John Wolwok, 34, and William Kelley, 47. All but Eye were married and fathers.

Prospects Held Good For Woman As Envoy

Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) said yesterday the prospects are "very favorable" that Mrs. Eugene Anderson, Democratic national committeewoman for Minnesota, will be named Ambassador to Denmark.

Humphrey said he discussed the situation with State Department officials—who make the recommendations to the President—and their reaction "was good."

Mrs. Anderson has "strong support for the position from the women's division of the Democratic National Committee," Humphrey said.

Mrs. Anderson is also a member of the national board of Americans for Democratic Action of which Humphrey is national chairman. She lives in Red Wing, Minn.

Women Gather at Emmitsburg For National Marian Congress

Emmitsburg, Md., May 6 (AP).—Hundreds of young women from 20 States assembled at St. Joseph's College here today for the opening of the three-day national Marian Congress.

The congress marks the 100th anniversary of the establishment in the United States of the Association of the Children of Mary, a lay organization dedicated to the spread of devotion to the mother of Christ.

The association was first organized in this country at St. Joseph's, an academy founded by Mother Elizabeth Seton. It now has a large membership throughout the United States.

The congress will feature a series of group discussions and religious, literary, musical, artistic and social exhibits and events. At 9 a. m. Sunday, the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, will officiate at a solemn pontifical high mass.

Woman, 65, Kills Self By Biting Her Tongue

Tokyo, May 6, (AP).—Police reported today that four members of a Japanese family committed suicide becase of financial difficulties.

Police said a 35-year-old man committed hara kiri, a 65-year-old woman died from biting her tongue, and two other women, 25 and 27, slashed their throats.

Ruhr Body to Meet

London, May 6 (U.P.).—The new international Ruhr Authortiy will hold its fiirst meeting in London on May 20, it was announced tonight.

Welding Students With 2-Way Radios Held as Safecrackers

New York, May 6 (U.P.).—A youthful quartet of safecrackers, equipped with walkie-talkie radios and blowtorches, were arrested by four detectives today as they attempted to break into the downtown office of the New York Giants baseball team.

A short time later, all four policemen were burned when they located additional equipment belonging to the gang in the locker of a subway station. As they opened the locker, a spark ignited fumes from acetylene tanks and the flames shot out onto the officers.

Police said the four gang members, headed by former GI Allen Coulter, 23, had taken instruction in welding for weeks, posing as veterans learning the trade. But detectives had been keeping a close watch on them.

Early today, two of the youths entered the office building while two others stayed outside. They were in contact by walkie-talkie so the lookouts could warn of danger. When they went to work on a metal grill door the night watchman heard the noise and sent them fleeing into the arms of the waiting detectives.

The other gang members were identified as Calvin Izzo, 25; William Masters, 21, and Michael Periera, 21.

Pentagon Clarifies Censorship Rulings

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Office of Defense last night clarified its recent censorship directive—which has been widely interpreted as a "gag"—saying that it "imposes no (new) restraints" on military personnel.

William Frye, Defense Secretary Louis Johnson's director of public information, made public a letter to Rear Admiral A. M. Pride, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, explaining the directive. Pride had written him asking whether it required that he submit a speech he plans to make to the Office of Defense "review" section for clearance.

In hi letter listing what types of speeches or articles must be submitted fo rcensorship, Frye disclosed that the Defense office last month barred military personnel from publicly discussing the North Atlantic Treaty "except under the most unusual circumstances and then only after explicit policy clearance." The ban will exist until the treaty finally is ratiged, it was said.

Frye wrote Pride that Consolidation Directive No. 1—which many have termed "ironclad censorship"—was simply "an inter-office administrative memorandum consolidating the security review function which previously had ben performed individually by the Departments of the Army, Navy and Air Force."

He added that only under three conditions must speeches or articles be submitted to his office for such review:

1. Any article by top officials touching on a "controversial subject," ordered February 4, 1948, aimed at interservice bickering.

2. Where the speech, article, release, etc. discusses new weapons or equipment, under an order of March 20, 1949.

3. Mention of the North Atlantic Treaty.

Frye went on to explain that the provisions of Consolidation Directive No. 1 simply repeated existing Army, Navy and Air Force regulations.

"Navy regulations governing the submission of material for clearance differ from those of the Army and Air Force," he declared. "Army and Air Force officers have been required for several years to submit speeches, statements, articles, etc., for clearance for security, policy and propriety. The Navy holds each Navy officer responsible himself for the propriety of his remarks."

Besides the above-mentioned regulations and directives on censorship, the services also are bound by a formal threat of the House Armed Services Committee to launch a full-dress investigation if another military leak occurs

West German Rule Set Up

"The Bonn assembly is not empowered to install such a government."

The main committee of the assembly was ordered to select the site of the West German capital Saturday. The Socialists prefer Frankfurt, the Christian Democrats Bonn.

It was disclosed in Berlin that, by authority of the Western commanders in chief, the Western government when it is formally set up will have a federal police force, the first in Germany since the war.

The speedup was a result of the Big Four agreement to end the Berlin blockade and hold a conference of foreign ministers May 23 on German problems.

The Germans hope an agreement with Russia may set up a central government for all Germany with the Bonn constitution as its basis.

(The Western allies have made plain their determination to set up a western German government regardless of any negotiations with Russia. It was reported in London that the Western powers also will go ahead with their consolidation of the Ruhr industrial area by summoning the Ruhr constituent assembly to meet before the foreign ministers conference begins.)

The federal German police will be empowered to control the movement of goods and persons across the borders of the German states, collect and distribute police information and figures, coordinate investigations of the violation of federal laws and carry out international agreement on travel and crime, including the drug traffic. The government also will be permitted to form a federal bureau of investigation.

The number of federal police will not be arbitrarily limited by the Allies.

Report Sees Harm in Erp

the ERP is aggravating the situation.

The Marshall Plan, through ERP, pours in money with the avowed intention of helping to integrate European economy; European nations themselves adopt plans to integrate it, but the observable trends are away from integration, the commission reported.

For lack of such integration, it continued, national economy is disintegrating all over the continent. Prospects for the future are unfavorable, despite a remarkable improvement in industrial production in 1948, it added.

The commission said in another report yesterday that a long-term program of American capital investment is the only solution it can see. Increased trade between the iron curtain countries of Eastern Europe and western European areas also would be helpful, it said.

Eastern European countries, the report said, because of American restrictions on imports to them are the only ones in Europe having a favorable trade balance with the United States.

Fulbright Cites Need For Integration

By The Associated Press

Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) told the Senate yesterday the United Nations Commission report points up a need for political and economic integration of western European nations.

Fulbright said the report outlined an "extremely serious" situation. He added that unless something is done about it, "we will on the whole have wasted our money" except for "having bought peace for a short period."

Germans Get Action Role in Blockade Lift

Berlin, May 6 (AP).—The Big Four powers are turning over to German transport workers the physical lifting of the Berlin blockade next Thursday, informed American sources said today.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American commander, told newsmen western trains will be ready at midnight Wednesday to roll as soon as the Soviet barriers are eliminated.

The western counter-blockade of the Soviet zone of Germany is to end at the same time as the Berlin blockade under the agreement of Russia, the United States, Britain and France, announced yesterday.

Complex technical problems are involved. American informants said the military governments merely have outlined to the Germans the policy to be followed. German experts are to coordinate the East-West traffic and work out the necessary railway, barge and highway schedules.

German rail officials in the Soviet zone have met with the Russian transport chief, Maj. Gen. P. A. Kvaschnin, to receive their instructions.

Soviet sector police enforced the blockade inside Berlin early today with gunfire. Shots from the German guards on the east Berlin boundary failed to halt an automobile, which disappeared into the American sector.

Railroaders Vote Strike For Pay in West Marks

Berlin, May 6 (AP).—Western Berlin railroad workers tonight voted to strike unless they are paid in west marks.

Such a strike would seriously affect rail traffic when the Russians lift the blockade of Berlin next week.

These workers live in western Berlin but are employed on Russian-controlled lines in the eastern sector, and are paid in Soviet east marks. East marks are worthless in the western sector.

Pact Called War Averter

we'll be in war within a year." And war, he added, would mean "the end of democracies everywhere" and world domination by Russia.

Asked by Donnell if he didn't think every Senator had the right in his own conscience to vote for or against the pact, Gerard said he did not think so. But, he added, "every Senator who exercises his right and votes against the pact will be voting to send our young men into war."

Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati lawyer and brother of Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), said Russia had been driven to its present tactics by "the development of internal weaknesses." He said that country was ruled by "the infallible dogma of a fanatical religion," and added:

"The missionary spirit of this religious fanaticism has produced an unscrupulous dual system of agents abroad on a worldwide scale, dealing in violence wherever it is considered safe, and in infiltration, propaganda and incitement elsewhere."

Taft warned of "dangers" involved in putting it into effect and said the best method of avoiding these was to do so on the basis of a firm policy which would not upset political balances in Europe. He took a page from his own experience as a State Department representative in Latin America during World War II, where he said delicate balances several times were upset by ill-advised rearming of countries without regard for their national jealousies.

Other witnesses yesterday were Allan B. Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Frederick C. McKee of Pittsburgh, national chairman of the Committee on National Affairs. Both urged ratification of the pact as a move toward world peace.

Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) announced during the hearing that no more applications from individuals and organizations wishing to be heard on the pact could be received after next Tuesday.

Greek Rebel Refused Visa

so-called "World Peace Congress" held in New York March 25 to 27.

Reds Barred by Law

Both rejections officially are on the same grounds stated at that time by the State Department in turning down other applications: Communists are classified as being barred by immigration law from entering this country unless the Attorney General rules their entry to be in the national interest.

While some Communists were admitted to attend the New York conference, they came as official representative of their governments, while Porphyrogenis does not represent a recognized government.

Embassy Notified

Officials here said notice of the denial of the present visa request was sent last yesterday to the American Embassy in Prague.

They stressed that no request for the admission of Porphyrogenis came from the United Nations.

They pointed out that the U. N. General Assembly has overwhelmingly gone on record with its position on the Greek civil war by condemning Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia for aiding the Greek guerillas in Communist attempts to overthrow the Greek government.

The most recent U. N. action on this score was taken in Paris, on Nov. 28, 1948, by a vote of 47 to 6, with only the Russian-led group in opposition.

Have Suffered Reverses

In recent weeks, the Greek rebels have suffered several military reverses, and American officials said that such reverses have periodically brought new "peace offers," all of them containing "hidden jokers" which make them "entirely unacceptable."

Since 1946, said one State Department official, there have been 21 such offers.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee yesterday that "we are making good progress" in Greece. The Greeks now have the best government they have had in Athens since the war, he said, and are making "headway" in recovery, in addition to military success.

For the next year, another Government official said, Congress will be asked to provide at least $200,000,000 in military aid to Greece and Turkey out of the $1,450,000,000 global arms aid program. In the present fiscal year, Greece is receiving $280,000,500,000 in military aid alone.

The United States' position on how to bring the Greek civil war to a conclusion is, as stated by President Truman last June—withdraw the foreign aid to Greek Communists and the rebel opposition wil lcollapse.

Propose Elections Under U. N.

In his plea for negotiations, Porphyrogenis said the Greek Communists seek an agreement which will "respect the independence of Greece," and provide establishment of a mutually acceptable government, an free elections under United Nations supervision.

While Porphyrogenis made no specific mention of withdrawing foreign military groups and missions, one policy official here said, "That is one of their basic conditions."

About 5000 British troops were left in Greece as a garrison force. Members of the American military mission to Greece total 461, according to President Truman's report to Congress in March on aid to Greece and Turkey.

Red Charge Of Spain Pact Denied by U. S.

Lake Success, N. Y., May 6 (U.P.).—The United States denied before the United Nations today a Russian allegation that it has a secret military alliance with Franco Spain.

United States Delegate Ray Atherton refuted statements before the General Assembly's main political committee by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Gromyko, charging the United States had 70 air bases in Spain for war against Russia and that Washington and London had shipped large quantities of war material to Spain, had asked:

"In view of all this, is there any wonder that many people are asking whether there is not already a secret military agreement between the United States and the Franco regime?"

"No Alliance, No Bases"

Atherton's answer was forthright.

"Despite assertions to the contrary," he said, "we have no military alliance with Spain; we have given no military assistance to Spain; no military or naval missions are maintained in Spain.

"The United States has no air bases anywhere on Spanish territory. We have made no overtures toward bringing Spain into the United Nations or into the European Recovery Program or the North Atlantic Treaty. Spanish participation in such cooperative projects is a matter for determination by all participants and not by the United States alone."

Atherton announced the United States would vote against a Polish resolution to impose an arms embargo and tighten diplomatic restrictions against Spain. He said it would not support a move to permit the return of diplomatic chiefs to Madrid but would favor Spanish participation in U. N. specialized agencies.

Resolution Backs Israel

Meanwhile, the United States and six other countries formally introduced a resolution to make Israel the U. N.'s fifty-ninth member immediately despite opposition from the Arab states.

Warren R. Austin, U. S. delegate, urging a quick vote, said Israel "has given a solemn pledge to carry out the obligations of the Charter, and my government believes that Israel would be a valuable member of the United Nations and should be admitted to the organization."

The special, or ad hoc political committee considering the membership application had also before it a proposal by Lebanon to postpone any action until the fall.

Israel representative Aubrey Eban was cross-examined at length by Arab delegates today and engaged in a heated exchange with Georges Hakim of Lebanon.

Facts on Germany, China Policy Asked

By The Associated Press

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) today demanded that the State Department name all officials responsible for our present policy in China and Germany.

Bridges said he wants to get the background behind the "tragic situation we find today in China."

He said he also wants to know who is responsible for the policies "which have retarded the comeback of Germany and put such a burden on the American taxpayers."

Both Bridges and Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) chairman of a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, joined in asking specific information on four officials who have "played an important part" in formulating and carrying out United States policy toward China.

The four are:

John Davies, member of the State Department planning board.

Walton Butterworth, director of the Office of Far Eastern Affairs.

John Carter Vincent, now United States Minister to Switzerland.

John S. Service, assigned to the office of Foreign Service Personnel.

Bridges told reporters the committee wants the loyalty records of the men as well as their personnel files.

Besides asking data on those four individuals, Bridges asked the State Department to supply the names of all officials instrumental in making and carrying out China and Far East policies since 1930 and German policies since 1943.

In calling for Service's record, Bridges said at the hearing that Service had been arrested by the FBI for "passing out information," but had been reinstated by the department.

Service was reinstated in 1945 after a federal grand jury reported it could find no grounds to indict him.

Bridges and McCarran made their requests to Secretary of State Acheson and John E. Peurifoy, Assistant Secretary of State, who appeared before the committee on behalf of the department's 1950 budget.

Britain to Send 5 Warships As Hongkong Reinforcement

London, May 6 (U.P.).—The Admiralty announced today that five warships will proceed to Hongkong to join Britain's Far Eastern fleet, to strengthen the colony's defenses against possible Communist attack.

Air Ministry officials said earlier that a squadron of Spitfire fighters would leave Malaya for Hongkong in the near future.

The warships are the cruisers Jamaica and Mauritius and the frigates Morecamb Bay, Mounts Bay, and the destroyer Comet.

London newspapers questioned whether increase of the colony's garrison to about 6000 will be sufficient.

The Daily Mail said reinforcements were sent to Hongkong during the last war and all of them finished in the Japanese bag because we lost control of the sea.

A former military commander at Hongkong wondered if adequate protection could be given to Kaitak Airfield. He said this is 1940 all over again. Unless there is some well-thought-out plan the defense of Hongkong would make the Berlin airlift look like child's play."

The fighter squadron will be accompanied by transport planes carrying ground crews and they will be replaced in Malaya by Beau fighters now based on Ceylon, officials said.

Boy Boat Racers Compete Today at Reflecting Pool

The Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool will be the scene at 10 a. m. today of the annual city-wide miniature boat races sponsored by the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

Midget contestants range in age from 6 to 10; juniors, from 11 to 14. Their entries will include sail boats and power boats—powered by rubber bands and wire coil.

Workmanship of the crafts will be judged on performance and speed by Capt. Mark H. Raspberry of Park Police; Joseph Vernon and E. F. Mathieson, supervisor of Clubs No. 12 and 5.

Rhee Asks if U.S. Would Aid Invaded Korea

Seoul, Korea (Saturday), May 7 (U.P.).—President Syngman Rhee said today the South Korean government wants to know whether the United States would regard an invasion across the thirty-eighth parallel by the Soviet-dominated North Korean republic as "tantamount to an attack on the American people."

Rhee, in a press statement, said this question was of "far greater importance than the mere question of whether or not the remaining American troops will stay in Korea."

(American officials have indicated the 8000 United States troops now in Korea will be withdrawn by late summer.)

The President of the infant republic also asked:

"In case of an attack by an outside power, would the republic of South Korea be able to count upon all-out American military aid?"

Rhee's statement and pointed questions came only 24 hours after the South Korean government reported it had repulsed two successive attacks by North Korean forces across the thirty-eighth parallel to 50 miles north of Seoul.

The 67-year-old President said:

"We do not propose to fight the North Koreans or their foreign overlords (Russia). We will continue our efforts to unify North and South Korea by peaceful means.

"At the same time, we are responsible for the protection of the lives and property of our people; and when the Communists constantly cross the thirty-eighth parallel to destroy us, we cannot sit still and allow them to harm us without resistance.

"We must make their invasion of the south costly to them."

Rhee said potential Communist fifth columnists in South Korea had been "greatly strengthened and encouraged" by American efforts to deal with them on a basis of compromise.

"Compromise with aggressors means ultimate surrender without a chance to resist, which we cannot and will not do," Rhee declared.

He said that at the time of Japan's defeat, there were no Communists in Korea. "They were invited in by the division of our country across the middle in accordance with the United States-Soviet agreement," Rhee asserted.

Terms Drawn For Cease-Fire In Indonesia

Batavia, Java, May 6 (U.P.).—Dutch and Indonesian delegates to a United Nations-sponsored peace conference reached an informal cease-fire agreement today under which the exiled republican government will return to Jogjakarta, reliable sources said.

The sources said Indonesian delegates flew immediately to Bangka Island to get final approval from Mohammed Hatta and other Indonesian ministers who have been exiled there since fighting was renewed last December.

The two sides agreed to stop figthing, restore the republican government to Jogjakarta and attend a full-dress peace conference at The Hague at which establishment of a "United States of Indonesia" under the Dutch crown would be discussed, informants said.

"All we need now is the signatures of both parties," said a source close to United Nations officials who supervised the negotiations here.

H. Merle Cochran, United States delegate on the U. N. Indonesian Commission, refused to comment on the cease-fire, but said he hoped a date for The Hague Conference would be set this week.

Australia Asks United States Defense Deal

Canberra, Australia, May 6 (AP).—Australia has offered to integrate its defenses with those of the United States, Defense Minister John J. Dedman said today.

He did not say if the United States had accepted the offer.

Dedman was discussing reports published in the United States that Australia had offered to exchange a rocket range here for the loan of American scientists to set up an atomic research organization.

The defense secretary said the report was "speculative" and he was "sure it had not been authorized by anyone in the United States."

He added that if Australia and the United States could integrate their defense plans for their mutual benefit the Australian government would certainly not object.

"Cooperation of that kind has been freely offered to the United States," he said.

Communist Forces Drive On Shanghai

Shanghai (Saturday), May 7 (AP).—Communist troops, backed by artillery, pushed toward Shanghai from the southwest today.

While the Communists seemed to mean business on this front, about 50 miles from nervous Shanghai, it still was difficult to tell whether they were starting a drive to capture the city.

They also were attacking due west of Shanghai.

Far to the southwest, other Communist troops cut across the last east-west railway in Nationalist China.

They were menacing Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi Province. Nanchang was reported in a state of siege. Nanchang is half way from Shanghai to Canton, the provisional capital.

[The United Press said Nationalist war planes went into action on a big scale around Shanghai today and made intensive bombing and strafing attacks on Communist forces ringing the city.]

The Shanghai garrison admitted the loss of Pingwang, 17 miles northwest of Kashing.

The Reds' main southward push drove into Yushan, Shangjao and Iyang, over a 60-mile stretch of the railway that runs from the sea at Hangchow westward to Changsha.

The Kashing attacks and operations northwest of Shanghai would seem to be the start of a bid to take this huge city. No other reason was immediately apparent.

The city remained quiet, but executions of some 20 alleged subversive agents and looters caused anxiety. Such mass executions sometimes turn into blood baths.

On the political side, Marshal Yen Hsi-shan predicted in Canton that Acting President Li Tsung-jen soon would reach that provisional capital and resume Nationalist leadership.

'Voice', BBC Join To Beat Soviet 'Jams'

By The Associated Press

The United States' "Voice of America" and the British Broadcasting Co. joined forces yesterday for an all-out effort to reach Russian radio listeners despite Soviet "jamming."

The State Department announced that beginning today the Voice and the BBC will use a total of 61 transmitters simultaneously twice daily. The hope is that some can get through the screen of Soviet interference.

For approximately two weeks, Russia transmitters have been jamming "Voice" program to the Soviet Union. They also have been interfering with the BBC broadcasts.

American officials said a recent check showed 60 Russian transmitters are being used now in the campaign. The State Department has protested to Moscow and also to a United Nations Broadcasting Regulations Agency at Geneva.

Ordinarily, the "Voice of America" has no more than 10 transmitters, at a maximum, beamed to Russia. The BBC presumably uses no more than that number, if that many, for its normal broadcasts to Russia.

Telling of the plans, an aide to Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen said, "Now we are going to give them the business."

Record 89 In New York

New York, May 6 (AP).—Thermometers soared to a sizzling 89 degrees at 2 p. m. (EST) today as the New York City Weather Bureau recorded the hottest May 6 in its history. Previous high was 87.3 on May 6, 1930.

Inter-Service Transfer Law Blocked in Senate Committee

A new move to authorize the Secretary of Defense to transfer military personnel from one service to another was blocked yesterday in the Senate Armed Services Committtee.

Senator Lyndon Johnson (D. Tex.), a strong airpower advocate, urged that legislation to this end be written into pending legislation to strengthen power of the Defense Secretary.

Supporters of Naval aviation and the Marine Corps have interpreted similar proposals as aimed at building up the Air Force and Army and all but abolishing the Naval air arm and the Marines.

At their instance, the pending unification bill was amended several days ago to bar the Defense Secretary from such action or from reassigning the "combatant functions" of the Marines and Navy aviation.

Johnson yesterday proposed striking out the former proviso, declaring that it would prevent Secretary Louis Johnson from making economies. Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) took the opposite view, saying it would make it possible for the two services to be abolished despite provisions of existing law guaranteeing their existence.

"It would be absurd," he said, "to have a Marine Corps without Marines."

Chairman Millard Tydings (D., Md.) advanced a substitute for Senator Johnson's proposal, which was adopted. It leaves the transfer bar virtually intact, save for authority in the Defense Secretary to make temporary assignments of personnel from one service to another. Committee attaches say it goes no further than existing law in this respect.

The committee also tentatively approved the Eberstadt amendment setting up a new, streamlined budget for the military services. They acted after hearing Wilfred McNeil, special assistant to the Secretary of Defense, testify on the plan. Though the Office of Defense disagreed with details, it was approved. The committee said it will vote on reporting out the bill next week.

3 Malmedy Officers Deny Mistreatment

Three former U. S. Army officers denied under oath yesterday that German storm troopers imprisoned for the Malmedy massacre were mistreated or tortured.

The witnesses' duty had included guarding and supplying the German prisoners held at Schwabische Hall prison in Germany after their arrest.

The three testified before a Senate Armed Services Subcommittee now conducting the fourth official investigation into charges that the former Hitler storm troopers were maltreated and tortured to obtain confessions.

Originally 29 Germans were sentenced to death and many given life and long prison terms after their conviction of shooting down unarmed American prisoners near Malmedy, Belgium. Today six Germans still await execution under death sentences. Others have escaped with life terms or reduced prison terms after successive investigations.

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), who has been pushing the claims that the Germans were denied fair trials and Army officers were guilty of improper methods in collecting evidence and resulting trials, appeared unimpressed by the new testimony.

Doesn't Expect Admissions

"I don't claim we'll get any of the prosecution staff to admit they beat up prisoners," he said.

But Army officers involved and Senators who think the Germans are trying to escape just punishment said the denials yesterday are the first made by actual eyewitnesses of Schwabische prison routines.

John T. Evans of Crystal City, Tex., now an Agriculture Department employe, testified he was commander of the prison guard over the 400 Malmedy suspects from December, 1945, until the following May.

"On no occasion did I see or hear about a prisoner who was beaten or injured in any way," Evans, then a captain, said. "I here and now categorically deny each and every such allegation.

Jack A. Owens, high school coach from Maybeury, W. Va., and a former first lieutenant, supply officer and at times officer of the guard at the German prison, said, "I know of no alleged mistreatment of prisoners."

Presided at Mock Trial

He told the committee he served as "presiding officer of the court" in a mock trial of one of the German prisoners. He declared, however, that he was just a figurehead" since he couldn't speak German or understand what was going on.

The mock trial lasted 10 minutes or less, Owens said, and he later was told the prisoner "wrote out some kind of a confession that night." He insisted there was no beating or mistreatment of prisoners at any time.

All three former officers said black hoods were placed over the heads of German prisoners when they were moved about or questioned. They said this was done to prevent prisoners from talking with each other or knowing who was still held or being questioned.

William T. Fitzgerald, insurance man from Pittsburgh, Pa., said he was "acting commander" of the prison as a first lieutenant when the Malmedy prisoners arrived. He recalled that on arrival one prisoner "fought the guards" who pushed him into the cell and his law was injured against a wall.

That was the only incident he could recall, he testified, except when prisoners were put on bread and water for trying to send notes to each other.

Colombia Cabinet Quits

Bogota, Colombia, May 6 (U.P.).—The entire cabinet resigned today in order to leave President Mariano Ospina Perez free to reorganize it in preparation for the June 5 congressional elections.

★ AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE FROM EIG'S LIQUORS ★

Now the Public can know the TRUTH about Straight Whiskies

If you read the newspaper stories during the past few days, you now KNOW that THERE IS A DIFFERENCE in the way whiskies are aged!

Now, for the first time, the TRUE facts about aged bourbon whiskey are being told to the public. The present fight to allow certain distillers to call their bourbons "aged" whiskies brings to light a most important point:

That point is this: REAL HONEST-TO-GOODNESS straight whiskey that can claim "age" has ALWAYS been aged in new, charred oak barrels! Whiskey aged in re-used old barrels has NEVER been allowed to bear the label "straight whiskey."

Now, a group of distillers have come up with the preposterous idea that the Government should allow them to call bourbons aged in old re-used barrels "straight whiskies." That, to us, is as ridiculous as labelling a bleached blonde a "redhead." Naturally, in the face of such an obvious attempt, the public, and dealers like EIG are putting up a fight.

We are putting up a fight because we KNOW that the public CAN'T be kidded about the true facts. It has always been a tradition in the United States that Rye and Bourbon whiskies HAD TO BE aged in new, charred, oak barrels. Ask anyone who knows ANYTHING about distilling rye and bourbon whiskies, and they will tell you that there is a POSITIVE difference in the TASTE of whiskey aged in new barrels as compared to whiskey aged in used barrels. As a matter of fact, the United States Government has always had a regulation to the effect that in order for a whiskey to be labeled a straight whiskey, and claim an age, that whiskey had to be aged in new, charred, oak barrels.

ALL of Sam Eig's whiskies have been, and are, aged in charred white oak barrels. That's why you can actually TASTE the difference in our exclusive brands. The QUALITY is all there.

In line with Eig's policy of selling the public ONLY the best Kentucky Bourbons, we can ASSURE the public of one thing: REGARDLESS of what happens to the present attempt to change the accepted method of branding aged whiskies, Eig's will CONTINUE to sell ONLY those Kentucky Bourbons that have been AGED in new, charred, white-oak barrels.

AND, we shall continue to do so until our huge stocks are COMPLETELY used up. Furthermore, should the day ever come whhen we might have to offer the public aged whiskies that were NOT aged in the good old fashioned way—you can rest assured that we'll come right out and give you the facts straight from the shoulder! We WILL NOT attempt to hide the TRUE facts from you.

Remember: you are doubly assured of "Quality and Honesty" when you buy any of these brands of Eig's exclusive Bourbons . . .

FBI Sought Others In Trailing Coplon

Postmistresses In Mail Fight

The residents of East Westmoreland, N. H., are boycotting their postoffice. They feel that Mrs. Hiram Woodward, widow of the former postmaster, should have continued in the position. The Postoffice Department has appointed Mrs. Rae Publicover.

Government sleuths thought for a time that Judith Coplin and Valentin A. Gubitchev might lead them to confederates, it was brought out yesterday at the girl's trial on espionage charges.

Roger W. Robinson, a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, told in District Court how he had seen Miss Coplon and Gubitchev meet on a New York street corner on the evening of February 18. They were not arrested until they met again on the night of March 4.

Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer asked why his client and the 32-year-old Russian were not arrested at their February meeting.

"Because we thought an arrest then would have been premature," Agent Robinson said.

He went on to explain that the FBI felt that "other contacts" might be discovered by prolonging the surveillance and that "other individuals might be involved."

As it turned out, only Miss Coplon and Gubitchev were arrested. They were charged in New York with conspiracy to commit espionage. Later Miss Coplon was indicted separately here for taking FBI intelligence reports out of Department of Justice files to aid Russia.

Miss Coplon and Gubitchev are to be tried in New York on the conspiracy charges after the trial here is over. Gubitchev, who was an engineer on the staff of the United Nations at the time of his arrest, is now at liberty under $100,000 bail.

The State Department disclosed yesterday that it had turned down new Russian demands that Gubitchev be freed. The Soviet Embassy has been insisting that he holds diplomatic status and is therefore immune from arrest.

FBI Agent John F. Malley was called to the witness stand in Miss Coplon's trial yesterday after Robinson, and went over ground that had been explored several times earlier.

Attorney Palmer tried out his French on Malley after the agent had told how he dropped his surveillance of Miss Coplon on one occasion to trail Gubitchev.

"It was not a case of cherchez la femme, but of cherchez l'homme, wasn't it?" Palmer asked.

Judge Albert L. Reeves interrupted Palmer and indicated, without saying so, that it might be better for him to stick to English.

The lawyers in the case abandoned verbal fireworks yesterday. Attorney Palmer was especially mild. He said at one point that he was trying to "turn both cheeks," and at another said he was trying to emulate Judge Reeves and "be like Job."

In adjourning the trial to Monday morning, Judge Reeves congratulated the jurors for the careful attention they have been giving to the testimony.

At the State Department, Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said the Russian demand for Gubitchev's release was rejected after consultation with Attorney General Clark.

McDermott gave reporters the following statement.

"The acts charged to Mr. Gubitchev would constitute not only a serious abuse of his privileges of residence in the United States as an international official but also a flagrant violation of his oath and duties to the United Nations."

Threat of Atom Taught Reds, Witness Says

New York, May 6 (AP).—St. Louis Communists were taught that the atom bomb would be dropped on American workers if it were necessary to preserve capitalism, an FBI undercover aide testified today.

Thomas A. Younglove, witness in the Communist conspiracy trial, testified that an instructor also said at classes of a Communist Party training school three years ago:

"What do you think President Truman has got these four million soldiers for? To keep the workers down."

Younglove, who joined the Missouri section of the party in 1945 and made voluminous reports on its activities to the Government, identified the instructor as Mrs. Naomi Ring.

The witness spent the day's court session under cross-examination by attorneys for the 11 top Communist Party officials, who are accused of advocating violent overthrow of the Government.

Younglove revealed details of the microscopic reports which he submitted regularly to the FBI about his Communist associates.

"Even if they had on a new pair of shoes, I made a report on it," he said.

He testified that while he was active in the party he always made extensive notes immediately after leaving a meeting.

"As soon as I wrote my reports to the FBI, I destroyed the notes after I sealed the envelopes of my reports," he explained.

The undercover man said he used a membership list, which he held in his capacity as dues collector for his party unit, to get correct spellings of names in his reports.

Anti-Red Bills Declared Curb To Free Speech

Senators studying ways to hobble Communists in this country yesterday were told two proposed bills actually would help Red activities here.

Furthermore, said a spokesman for Americans for Democratic Action, the measures are "unconstitutional" and would "seriously curtail rights of free speech and thought."

This testimony was given to a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee which is conducting hearings on anti-Communist legislation introduced by Senators Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Mundt (R., S. Dak.).

Both bills would require Communist and Communist front orgaizations to register with the Attorney General and provide stiff penalties for conspiracy to overthrow the Government.

The ADA witness, Benjamin C. Sigal, told the committee he also was speaking for the American Civil Liberties Union in his attack on the anti-Red proposals. He said both groups are "unalterably opposed to communism but we are equally opposed to any denial of the basic civil rights and liberties."

Spies for Reds Still Menace In U. S., Rep. Velde Declares

New York May 6 (AP).—Representative H. Velde (R., Ill.) said today that some former members of a wartime Soviet espionage ring still are running free and are definitely a menace to this country.

Velde, a former FBI agent, made his statement after testifying before a Federal grand jury investigating subversive activities.

He said the persons he referred to "definitely are a danger to this country because they may be spreading propaganda to overthrow our form of government through force and violence."

Velde said the House Un-American Activities Committee, of which he is a member, has not called a number of former members of the alleged ring "because we have not had too many sessions."

As an FBI agent Velde worked on espionage investigations on the West Coast. He said he told the grand jury that he did not know of any violations in the New York district.

Before he entered Congress, Velde appeared before the House committee as a witness in the case of Steve Nelson and "Scientist X."

Nelson, Communist Party organizer in western Pennsylvania, was accused of being a spy by the committee. He denied the charge.

Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) agreed yesterday that congressional investigators should "stay out" of any espionage case being probed by the jury.

Velde Questioned 'Harshly' by Grand Jury

New York, May 6 (U.P.).—Representative Harold Velde (R., Ill.), member of the Un-American Activities Committee and a sharp critic of the Justice Department, underwent a "harsh" hour and one-half of questioning today before a Federal grand jury investigating Communist espionage.

"They questioned me very harshly," Velde said after his appearance.

The grand jury reportedly was interested in statements which Velde made about the case of Judith Coplon, former Justice Department employe whom the grand jury indicted in March for espionage. The Congressman was said to have asserted that the department should have known about Miss Coplon's alleged activities long before she was indicted.

Velde said after his appearance today that he felt the grand jury should have the cooperation of congressional committees. He also said he approved the grand jury's suggestion that the statue of limitations should be amended or abolished so that prosecution could go back further than three years.

Velde was an FBI agent himself from 1942 to 1945.

Representative Mundt (R., S. Dak.), another committee member, is scheduled to appear before the jury early next week.

Named By Default

The District commissionership is going to John Russell Young again as if by default. The overworked President took the easiest way out because the community did not make clear to him the urgency of a change in view of the special circumstances now prevailing in the District. It seems a pity that the President passed by this opportunity to put at the head of the local government a man who could take the lead in the home-rule movement. New governments do not arise out of apathetic routine. They are born of toil, persistence and intelligent planning. It is true, of couse, that the local commissionership has few attractions to men of stature and broad experience. But it is also true that the post could have been used in this instance to give us a father of home rule in the Nation's Capital.

For some weeks the White House held the door open for the community to bring forth such a man. There was no well organized or concerted response. Perhaps it is too much to expect such a response from a city that has been disfranchised for 75 years. But if the vicious circle of apathy resulting from disfranchisement and continued disfranchisement resulting from apathy is ever to be broken, a start must be made somewhere. Whichever way you look at it, the effect is to throw a heavier burden of responsibility upon Congress for enactment of the Kefauver home-rule bill now on the Senate calendar.

The Navy's Role

What Napoleon said about morale and materiel ought to be borne in mind in thinking about the effect of the supercarrier decision on the morale of the Navy. He said morale is to materiel as 3 to 1. Morale is certainly a Navy strong point. If the country cannot afford wrong decisions, intra-service disputation (a different thing, by the way, from discussion in the Joint Staffs), or indulgence in the usual practice to which the Navy is traditionally addicted of thinking of the next war in terms of the last, neither can it afford to let Navy morale deteriorate. The situation calls for leadership in acknowledging that the sea arm has a real and important role in any, God forbid, future conflict. This holds for naval aviation as well as surface and subsurface operations.

Take, for example, the schnorkel submarine. The schnorkel is the breather tube device developed by the Germans which enables submarines to operate at high speeds with Diesel motors while beneath the surface. The Russians are known to be placing great emphasis on developing a schnorkel fleet. Though American progress along this line is necessarily secret, there has been no indication that a foolproof way to detect and combat the schnorkel has been found.

The potential of the schnorkel is enormous because of the continued dependence on surface vessels for supply. Even in the unlikely event that the United States could conduct a future war without overseas bases, imports of strategic materials and support of allies by sea would be essential. Not even the most enthusiastic devotee of air power maintains that transoceanic supply by airplanes would be feasible. Protection of sea commerce is a vital task for which the country must rely on the Navy—on submarine and surface vessels and naval aviation—quite apart from the reliance that the country must place upon the Navy for any other tactical missions naval planes may perform.

And then, of course, there is the service that the Navy does in times of no-war no-peace—a situation which might remain chronic. The sea and air Navy is a salutary auxiliary of diplomacy in areas of disturbance. Perhaps these matters need to be stressed in connection with the reeducation of all the services in behalf of the superior loyalty to the whole national defense to which Secretary Johnson has dedicated himself.

Salary Grades

The Administration's proposed bill for revision of the Classification Act, on which Senate hearings are due to start shortly, would add new "General Service" grades from 16 to 19 on top of the present grades as well as consolidate those grades. The top civil service salary, thus, would be the same as the least executive salary. This, we think, is a mistake. In justice there ought to be some salary gap between even the least executive and the chief civil servant under him.

In general, however, the proposed scale readjustments are good. Examination of the table we printed Thursday indicates that greater spreads have been put in the higher grades, where they belong. There is less overlapping between grades under the present system, and this should diminish those petty jealousies that arise from discrepant grade and salary relationships. And, most important, the progressively higher steps in the upper grades offer the incentive of real compensation to the competent civil servant who makes a career of public service.

Mr. Truman's Hint

It is amusing to note President Truman's comment to the effect that defeat of his labor-management bill in the House gives the Administration a chance to start over again. Reports of the President's press conference do not make clear whether he sees in this new situation a chance to get the sort of bill he "wants" or a chance to get an "acceptable bill." But in either event the President's remark appears to reflect a subconscious recognition of the blunder of trying to force down the throat of Congress a measure that was drafted in the Labor Department and merely rubber-stamped in the House and Senate Labor Committees.

What the House has said more emphatically than anything else is that it does not like this kind of procedure. Certainly it does not approve of the Taft-Hartley Act in its present form, although it turned down Representative Wood's milder reincarnation of the T-H law by only a shaky three-vote margin. But it is not going to accept a ready-made substitute dictated from the outside with little consideration of the public interest. That is a healthy attitude. If it had been adopted by the Administration in the first place, labor legislation to replace the T-H Act might be well on its way toward enactment.

The question of immediate importance is whether the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare will see the handwriting on the wall. We suspect that the Administration's bill which the committee railroaded through, without even giving its members a chance to offer amendments or call a vote on specific provisions, stands less of a chance in the Senate than it did in the House. The Senate does not like to be a cipher in the legislative process. And, since the task of writing a law of such a complicated nature cannot satisfactorily be undertaken on the floor, it will probably send the bill back to committee as did the House.

Will the committee wait for a rebuke of this kind? Or will it recall the measure of its own volition and write an acceptable bill dealing fairly with both unions and employers? All members of the committee know that this intricate economic problem was handled as a mere political football. They would gain in stature if they would take the President's hint and work out a bill of their own in the good old democratic fashion.

Distrust Of The Press

Mr. Marquis Childs' revelation of the way the Russians are capitalizing on the gossip and rumors, and particularly Mr. Drew Pearson's report about the illness of Mr. Forrestal (now happily on the road to quick recovery), makes painful reading. Where the borderline lies between silence and publicity in the matter of the illness of public men—physical or mental—is perhaps not susceptible of definition, and is a matter of taste tempered by public service. For instance, there was never any point, let alone any propriety, either in photographing Mr. Roosevelt's physical disability or in commenting about it. In this matter the famous remark, "I cannot define an elephant, but I know one when I see it," applies to newspaper treatment of the illnesses of public men.

But it would not comport with the responsibilities of the press to let public men forget that publicity is one of the prices as well as obligations of public life. The people have a right to be informed about the condition as well as the stewardship of the men to whom their collective destiny is entrusted. This is of first importance in relation to the President. The way that the condition of President Wilson and then of President Roosevelt was hidden from the public was truly shocking. The concealment in this latter respect persuaded this newspaper that a committee as well as a doctor should report regularly to the American people whenever a question of incapacitation arises.

This has nothing to do with the satisfaction of idle curiosity. It has to do with the administration and proper conduct of public affairs. The principle at stake is much the same as that which in monarchical days ruled that queenly confinements had to be done virtually in public. The best way to combat sensationalism and exaggeration is to tell the truth. That Mr. Forrestal, despite his retirement, was still a public figure when he fell ill is indicated by the fact that the Defense Department has continued to release news of his condition. We join with Mr. Childs in strongly deprecating the distorted, even vicious, manner in which Mr. Drew Pearson handled the item, but, we submit, the authorities themselves invited and brought on this excess, and fomented its currency, by their foolish as well as disingenuous bulletin that Mr. Forrestal had been admitted to Bethesda merely for a routine checkup.

If we make a fuss about official suppression and evasion, it is because we know the effect of both in reducing confidence in the press. Abroad as well as at home the distrust of the American press which was shown at the Lake Success meetings on freedom of the press springs from the suspicion that the American press is prejudiced and in official matters deluded. The existence of this suspicion ought to give American newspapers and correspondents real concern, for, as the Soviet propaganda in the matter of the Forrestal case shows, it helps to pull the rug out from under their assertions to the contrary.

Byrd's Warning

In his address at the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce Senator Byrd called attention to the tremendous volume of long-term Government commitments that the Government is legally or morally bound to honor. Five items: interest on the public debt, veterans' pensions, adjustment aids and hospitalization, contributions to retirement funds (exclusive of military retirement and Social Security payments), direct Federal public works, and grants-in-aid—these total more than 16 billion dollars. They are virtually impossible of reduction but for "the remote possibility that federalized education might be rejected." There are, in addition, various fluctuating subsidies to agriculture, business, and the merchant marine, as well as losses by Federal corporations and postal deficits, that have to be covered. The Virginian estimates they will amount to more than 1½ billion dollars in the next fiscal year. The Senator concludes that long-term civilian commitments to spend will total at least 18 billion dollars in the next fiscal year. And that takes no account of our overseas outlays for foreign economic and military aid—which also obligate the Government to spend large sums over a period of years—and our own military establishment costs and payments from Social Security trust funds.

Senator Byrd does not make these expenditure estimates the basis of an appeal for cutting appropriations needed to implement authorized programs. Rather he mentions them by way of emphasizing the importance of considering the cost of new programs while the appropriations are still under consideration. He wants Congress to pause and consider the effect on the Federal budget of an extension and expansion of long-term commitments that, once launched, have to be supported by the taxpayers. Cost is not the sole, or even in some cases, the decisive, test of the desirability or necessity of any single spending program. But it is essential for the Government and the people to be informed as to the possible costs of all the projects and programs financed by the Government. Only then can they decide whether the financial burden entailed by the commitments made is excessive.

From present indications expenditures will be so much higher than receipts during the coming fiscal year that a deficit is in prospect that may amount to several billion dollars. The following year the deficit is expected to be even larger. "Another peacetime sortie into deficit financing," warns Senator Byrd, "would shatter public confidence in Federal securities." At any rate, it would do so if deficits were long continued. Hence his anxiety that we look before we leap—in other words, consider the cost of new undertakings before we are irrevocably committed to them—is well taken. For those additional costs have to be covered by additions to taxes, and there is a limit to the taxable capacity of the richest of countries, especially if that country has an economy of free enterprise that could be destroyed by excessive taxation.

The New Lewis

Mr. Lewis' gentle epistle to the Southern Coal Producers Association in the matter of the opening of the annual negotiation over their contract came as something of the same surprise with which the Kremlin's overture on the Berlin blockade was greeted. Indeed, any diplomatic move by the United Mine Workers boss is subject to as careful and suspicious a scrutiny as a missive from Moscow. And very often the underlying strategy is harder to discern. Mr. Lewis, whatever his hyperbolic habits, is an extremely astute and effective negotiator, both in advance of and during negotiating sessions.

The fact that Congress is at this very moment wrestling with labor legislation may or may not explain John L.'s uncharacteristic agreeableness. But, whatever the reason, the consequences of the annual coal negotiations concern almost everybody as consumers and many people as workers. Labor contracts in other vital areas of the national economy—steel, automobiles, electrical products—expire at about the same time as the coal contract. The coal miners and operators may not set the pattern, but their agreement, or failure to agree, will assuredly be influential.

BRIDE

I too weep cool deep tears to find that I
Must give life part of my life by and by,

And tremble at the green elastic pod
Soon bursting, browning, fading up to God.

Frailer than these stretching things, I weep
To lose what I should soon despair to keep,

For what are life-filled veins that shun to bleed,
And what a flower that fears to bear a seed?

The years shall rob their brilliant tongues of taste
And send them up the sky, a windblown waste,

While, tender, I shall look down leagues of air
And cry, Look, love, our yester-bloom is there.

Double Rent Increase

The Housing Expediter failed to mention any formula or policy in regard to the tenants who "voluntarily" agreed to a 15 per cent increase in rent when that was authorized by Congress.

Some who thought that the landlord was entitled to some consideration because of inflation, promptly signed a new lease agreeing to the 15 per cent increase. There are many, however, who did not do so.

If any landlord is permitted to raise rents again in order to obtain a "fair operating return," he should be able to go after those who have not agreed to a 15 per cent increase before saddling a second raise in rents on those who were fair-minded enough to go along with the landlord in 1946.

Refused Visas

What is the State Department afraid of? Recent press dispatches have referred to the State Department's refusal to grant visas to Pierre Cot, member of the French Chamber of Deputies, and Konni Zilliacus, member of the British House of Commons. These two respected and well-known European Socialists were scheduled to accompany Henry Wallace on his Nation-wide speaking tour on the Atlantic Pact.

It is difficult to believe that the State Department fears seriously the dangerous and contaminating influence of these two men. Whatever its motivation, the department is apparently unaware that its action will be interpreted as evidence in many parts of the world that the United States does not live up to the democratic ideal it preaches.

Is refusing visas to dissident Socialists the way to prove that Americans listen to all sides before acting on vital questions? Is there any reason other than petulance or hysteria to abrogate the long-standing reciprocal parliamentary-congressional courtesy arrangement permitting members of the British Parliament and Congress to visit the United States or Britain as a matter of course?

A left-wing Laborite and an Italian Senator are now touring with Wallace. But Cot and Zilliacus are better known and have a wider following.

In view of the overwhelming predominance of expressed American opinion in favor of the Atlantic Pact, it is hard to reconcile the visa refusal with traditional American democratic practice of full play of ideas.

Many newspapers and commentators who support present American foreign policy took the State Department to task for its refusal of visas to a member of non-Communist French and British delegates to the recent peace conference in New York. It is to be hoped that The Washington Post, no matter how much it may disagree with Wallace and the others, will urge the State Department to reconsider its churlish action and permit entry to these two Socialist members of the French and British Parliaments.

Spanish Protestants

The persecution of Protestants in Spain under the Franco dictatorship is forcibly illustrated by the contents of the press dispatch appearing in your April 28 issue stating that Foreign Secretary Bevin of Great Britain told the House of Commons that for more than a year he had been trying to obtain the reopening of seven British Protestant chapels in Spain.

Mr. Bevin said that the chapels had been closed since January, 1947, "by order of the Spanish authorities." Other specific instances of the persecution of Spanish Protestants under the Franco dictatorship were given in the article by Homer Bigart appearing in The Washington Post several weeks ago.

With Franco endeavoring to obtain the admission of Spain to the United Nations and angling for American taxpayers' money under the Marshall Plan, it is incumbent upon the United States to insist upon fully adequate guarantees of freedom of religion in Spain before giving its support and acquiescence to either proposition.

Baseball Insults

This Durocher incident gives me the opportunity to ask a question.

What gives a baseball fan (I use the term loosely) the idea that for his buck and a quarter, he has the right to insult a ball player? I don't think he's so brave—he knows that a player cannot retaliate, without taking the risk of being fined or suspended. Would he insult a player when the player was in street clothes?

Freedom Fair

If we have to spend so much money, to let the rest of the world know that Washington is celebrating its sesquicentennial, Let's spend our money for something useful.

How can we be the center of culture when we have no adequate building for concerts, ballet, opera or large group meetings? An auditorium would be a permanent thing. We still need more money for our National Symphony.

Wouldn't it be a tribute to be able to say "we have no slums." "Delinquency is not here—we have plenty of playgrounds."

Let us concentrate on memorials of real benefit to the living.

Civilized Tribes

Your editorial of May 2, "Mr. Durocher Again," was interesting but it's the first time I ever read or heard that the Chippewas are one of the five civilized tribes. If you'll look a little more closely into your Indian history I think you'll find that the five civilized tribes are: Cherokees, Choctaws, Seminoles, Chickasaws and Creeks. These five tribes were moved to Oklahoma (Indian Territory) from their homes in the southeastern part of the United States in the early 1800s and were referred to thereafter as the "five civilized tribes." I know because I am a descendant of some of the Cherokee settlers.

Vivisection And Medicine

As my late husband was for many years president of Washington's only antivivisection society, of which I am still one of the honorary vice presidents, I should like to reply to your May 1 story by James E. Hague, with the head, "D. C. Doctor's New Strategy Puts Antivivisectionists on Defensive."

The statements quoted in this article by the advocates of vivisection are characterized by customary sophistry.

We are assured, for instance, that there is no cruelty involved in cutting up living animals because this is always done under an anesthetic, except when anesthesia would defeat the object of the experiment.

We are also assured that animals after having been "used" are "mercifully put to death." Death is indeed a merciful release from torture and agony. It is what is perpetuated on the defenseless victims of man's cruelty before he is put to death that concerns antivivisectionists.

The cut of the dog strapped down to the operating table carries this amazing caption:

"No operating room for human beings is more gleaming white and antiseptic than the one in the dog house at Georgetown University Medical School. The dog on the table is covered except for the part under the knife."

What a comfort that must be to the dog!

The children vs. dogs argument is as specious as it is hackneyed. My answer is that I should not trust a doctor who is capable of torturing a defenseless animal to attend my child.

Bernard Shaw, who has lived and kept his health and faculties for 94 years without benefit of doctors, states, "The medical service of a community as at present administered is a murderous absurdity." His valid thesis is that doctors are obliged under our economic system to systematically and persistently sell sickness and disease scares to the public in order to assure their livelihood.

When Charles Edward Russell many years ago was a city editor of the old New York Herald he assigned a reporter to visit a dozen or more doctors and recite the same set of symptoms. No two doctors diagnosed or prescribed alike.

My long-time friend, Mary B. W., had her appendix removed. On the operating table three doctors discovered or alleged that they discovered that she had cancer of the duodenum and stated that she could not live for six months unless this also be removed. Her husband and I vetoed the operation because the doctors could promise no cure from the operation. Mary never learned that she was doomed to die of cancer within six months. So she lived 20 years longer and died of epilepsy.

A cousin of my own worked as bacteriologist in Mercy Hospital in Chicago. She confided to me that 50 per cent of the organs removed from patients for cancer and other causes that came to her for analysis were sound. I said, "How in the world do you justify this in the name of medical science." She shrugged her shoulders and replied, "Doctors must live."

Adult and mature human beings learn gradually that the basis of disease and health is psychic as well as physical. If we break physical laws we suffer the consequences. If we break moral laws sooner or later we must atone.

No one can "save" his life indefinitely. Even conceding that callous cruelty perpetrated upon "lower" animals may possibly in a few instances prolong the bodily existence of a few specimens of that "higher" animal known as man, "what profiteth it him to save his life and lose his soul?"

U. S. Stamina Appraisal

By Malvina Lindsay

Character Trends

THE NUMEROUS foreign delegations visiting this country have been saying polite and even laudatory things about us. We are industrious—German editors were surprised at seeing so little loafing. We are self-confident, independent and bold—even our women speak their minds on all subjects. We are ingenious, practical, good-natured, generous.

But alas, we cannot sit back and bask smugly in this praise. For repeatedly come warnings at home that our national character is deteriorating. And character is a more important resource in future testings than are fleets of airplanes, assembly-line production, or the atom bomb.

Hence a wave of self-appraisal has struck us, also a renewed interest in character education. Many national organizations are discussing at their spring gatherings the question of how better Americans can be turned out. The General Federation of Women's Clubs at its recent convention decided to sponsor a character-building workshop for teachers and parents this summer at Washington State College.

Historians, sociologists, other students of the American character generally agree with foreign appraisers about our national virtues, which, based on our western European heritage, were developed by our long experiences in pioneer life and in self-government.

THESE authorities also generally agree concerning our weaknesses of character—our impatience, wastefulness, carelessness, laxness in moral standards, strains of lawlessnes and vulgarity. Industrial life seems to offer a fertile field for the growth of these. Hence we have increasing crime, traffic violation, juvenile delinquency, sex laxity, divorce, tax evasion and vulgarity in publications, advertising, radio and movies.

However, the fact that we are now recognizing our weaknesses and trying to do something about them speaks well for our emotional maturity. In the days when Charles Dickens and Mrs. Trollope criticized us, our response was largely childish rage. If now, like the Russians, we were loudly proclaiming that we were perfect and that all other peoples were barbarians, we would have a long wait for improvement. And if we were indifferent to our weaknesses, we would be in danger of the moral decay that has brought death to many civilizations.

This recent concern over national character is something else than the perennial alarm elderly bluenoses express about each new generation. It is a concern based on character challenges the recent war brought to peoples, and that world conditions still pose. For instance: If we ever have to meet an austerity test as bad or worse than what the British have undergone, could we take it?

Could we rise to sacrifice for peace as well as for war? Could we weather a depression without turning hysterically to the far left or right? Will we be able to keep our heads—and our humility—in our role as head man among nations?

CHARACTER education today is not so simple as the old moral homily, stern-lecture approach. There are still advocates of "back to McGuffey." But it is becoming generally recognized that character training must be a learning experience in order to stick. Hence such training must be worked in with other subjects, made part of all study and experience at school and at home.

One of the weakest spots in character education is in the colleges. The general assumption is that the college is concerned only with scholarship or technical training, that the lower schools should assume all responsibility for character development.

A. Barr Comstock, writing in the Bulletin of the Association of American Colleges recently attacked that idea, urging an entire revaluation of achievement in college life. He suggested having character count toward degrees made a requirement for college entrance. He would have such training made a bigger part of college sports and extracurricular activities, with more special courses in morals, ethics, the humanities, taught in part by successful laymen of fine character and appealing personalities. He also advocated having adult leaders live on campuses and have close personal association with students.

Yugoslav Loan

In an Associated Press story published May 4 in connection with the assertion that Spain had been authorized by the State Department to negotiate a loan directly with the Export-Import Bank, the article asserts "Diplomatic authorities reported that the bank is now giving active consideration to a revised plea from Yugoslavia for a 50-million-dollar credit. A Yugoslav application for a 500-million-dollar loan has been gathering dust for three years."

In reference to Yugoslavia, the Export-Import Bank is being confused with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Yugoslavia is not negotiating with the Export-Import Bank for any kind of a loan. Yugoslavia applied for a loan from the International Bank in 1947 and the application has never been withdrawn.

A Communication

Why A Depression?

By Oscar Cox

Former General Counsel, Foreign Economic Administration

THERE ARE many who still think that economists, government officials and business executives can tell definitely in advance whether or not we shall have a depression in the United States. This is far from the truth, although some of the prophets themselves labor under this false belief.

Forecasting of our economic trends is useful. Forecasting can indicate some of the straws in the wind, and there are many unfavorable straws observable today. But forecasting is not yet advanced enough to predict with accuracy exactly what is going to happen to employment, production, prices and the other important aspects of our economy.

The fact that we do not know with certainty whether or not a depression is coming does not mean that effective action cannot and should not be taken now: If a depression comes, we should have in readiness those measures which can minimize such a depression.

There can be reasonable differences about what measures can counteract or forestall a depression, but basically there are fewer differences on this score than in forecasting with certainty whether there will be a depression.

THE BETTER part of practical wisdom is to have ready as soon as possible those measures which can be used to counter a depression if it does result. If a depression does not come, we do not have to use the measures, and we shall have lost little by having them ready. If a depression does result and we do not have adequate measures ready, the toll in unemployment and human suffering, the prejudice to our security position and the weakening of our political structure may be devastating. If a depression is coming, the longer we wait before making ready the measures to combat it, the greater will be the costs to us in human and money values.

Instead of waiting to see if a real depression sets in, when the tendency will be to act in hysteria and panic, we should begin to plan and act now. To think out, to debate and to put into effect the necessary measures will take plenty of time anyway. It is not too soon to begin now.

The strong indications are that production is falling off and unemployment is increasing. These effects may snowball rapidly. In preparing and acting now to fend off a possible depression, we need not necessarily develop the type of psychological jitters which will make matters even worse. It is certainly better to face the situation ahead of us with knowledge and without fear, than to do nothing effective and be blindly afraid.

IN PRINCIPLE, the area and time of action to try to forestall a possible depression are clear: Instead of make-work or leaf-raking projects, the central focus should be on working out as promptly as possible those measures which increase the real wealth and productivity of our country and its people, and at the same time generate the creative employment that assures the purchasing power upon which all business and agriculture depend.

Instead of putting too much emphasis on imperfect forecasting—and then sitting—we should concentrate now on those purposeful measures which not only can forestall a depression, but can expand our useful production and employment.

Whether the measures should be the further relaxation of export and credit controls, the building of soil-conservation dams that can also expand our supply of much-needed hydro-electric power, the rebuilding of our schools and hospitals which have become partially obsolete over the last 20 years, meeting our housing needs, speeding up capital investment in our industrial plant by tax incentives or other means or a host of other useful projects is a matter for intelligent thinking, discussion, action and legislation. The important thing is that the thinking, discussion, action, and legislation should be begun right now.

If our Government, our businessmen, our labor and farm leaders join together now to meet those problems head-on with the same spirit in which we prepared for and waged the war, we can be sure that we can defeat any coming depression. Depressions do not have to be. Depressions result from the individual or combined actions of great numbers of human beings. Human beings with intelligent foresight and effort can prevent a depression.

Slum Clearance Planned . . .

SCHEDULED TO BE RAZED—This tottering house in Marshall Heights seems to be leaning toward the outdoor hydrant, the only source of water in the neighborhood, about which children are playing. There are no sewage systems, yet houses have electric lights and telephones. The District Commissioners yesterday approved a plan to redevelop the section

Slum Project Wins Approval

gram. The NCPPC informed the Commissioners privately of a study of eight downtown census tracts where they found slum conditions could be eliminated by building structures two to three stories high, on a basis of 50 per cent land coverage. This indicated interest in the downtown area, the Commissioners felt.

2. Provisions for temporarily displaced families. The project will be done block by block, rather than in one step, permitting families displaced from one block to move into another already completed.

3. Failure to provide a housing reservoir for displaced families from downtown slums. Other outlying areas, other than Marshall Heights, may be developed for this purpose.

4. May establish racial "ghettos." A policy statement by the NCPPC that all redevelopment projects would be established on a nonrestricted basis answered this.

5. Home owners are concerned they will not be able to afford the new homes built in the project area. At present, many of the homes are "grossly substandard." "If we enforced our codes and regulations, numbers of these residents would be forced either to spend a considerable amount of money on their dwellings, or to vacate them so that they could be razed," the Commissioners noted.

6. Existing topographic surveys are inadequate to permit a final layout of streets, homes and other community structures. An early task for RLA will be to make a "detailed topographic survey" of the area which may lead to "some detailed revisions in the layout," the Commissioners noted.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

McCloy, Hoffman And Harriman

THE ENDING of the Berlin blockade is certainly a cause for rejoicing, since it liquidates one of the most difficult and ticklish situations of this hair-trigger post-war era. But no one in authority has any illusions that it will mean a magical transformation in every department of USA-USSR relations.

Childs

It is considered, rather, to be a change in Soviet tactics. The Russians are realists in these matters. The blockade was a net loss for the Soviet Union since it was more costly for East Germany than for West Germany.

Therefore, the contest for control of Germany and Europe must be transferred to another field. Some hints of what that field will be have already come from the Soviets in Berlin. The Russians will strive for a unified Germany in which a German Communist Party will play a dominant and decisive part.

The fabulous airlift, which defeated the blockade, will not be dismantled entirely. Gradually reduced in scope, a nucleus will be kept that can be quickly built upon if and when another emergency arises.

THE RETIREMENT of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, who has come through the fantastic perils of the Berlin controversy, will mean important changes in German policy. Above all, these changes will be on the economic side.

Clay has been at odds with officials of the European Cooperation Administration. He has been criticized for failing to carry out the decartelization of German industry under official policy laid down by President Truman. In a recent interview Clay defended his economic assistants and rejected the criticism aimed at them by a special committee sent from the United States to survey the way in which decartelization had—or had not—been carried out.

NOW IT appears likely that a new team will take over. The belief here is that John J. McCloy, at present head of the International Bank, has been persuaded to become the first civilian administrator of the United States zone in Germany.

This is not an assignment that any sane man would seek out. It is as full of pitfalls as a roller coaster. But McCloy is a public-spirited citizen with a strong sense of duty.

He has a close and friendly relationship with Paul Hoffman, head of the European aid program. If McCloy goes to Germany, these two men could be expected to carry through a successful working partnership.

They have many similarities of temperament. Both are healthy extroverts who have, above all, a facility for getting along with people. Both men tend to apply the test of practicality to what they do. They both have a remarkable capacity for hard work.

IN SPITE of repeated rumors that appear to have been planted, Hoffman has no intention of resigning at this time. Nor is there any indication that the President will ask him to resign.

If he followed his personal preference, Hoffman would go back to his business, which is making automobiles. Several times he has given the President an opportunity to say that it might be better if Hoffman resigned. The President has ignored the opportunity.

Hoffman feels that the next few months are critical for the recovery of Europe and especially with respect to France and Germany. He hopes to see the recovery program through that period, which would mean that he would not contemplate a change before the end of the year.

An interesting sidelight in this politically conscious town is that some influential Democrats feel Hoffman, a Republican, should be got out of the way because his success might build him up as a GOP candidate for 1952. There are even, it is said, ambitious Republicans who feel the same way.

A third member of the team will be Averell Harriman, head of ECA in Europe. Harriman, often mentioned as a possible successor to Hoffman, is now in Washington conferring on future ECA policy. As lend-lease administrator in England during the war and later as Ambassador to Moscow he had broad experience in the troubled field of East-West relations.

The best chance for communism to win domination in Germany, short of being imposed by Soviet arms, is in economic breakdown and chaos. The team of McCloy, Hoffman and Harriman will have an unparalleled opportunity to contribute to a stable—and democratic—Europe and at the same time they will have one of the toughest tasks that could possibly be imagined.

Air Reserve Training Open To 135,000

The Air Force announced yesterday an expanded training program for Air Force Reserve officers and men.

It will provide training for more than 135,000 reservists and offer inactive and active duty training pay to over 75,000 of them. At present, only about 42,000 reservists are receiving training, with only 25,000 drawing pay.

"The air strength of the Nation will be increased as a result of the new training programs," said an announcement from General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Chief of Staff. "The regular Air Force, including major commands and individual units, will have greater M-Day (Mobilization Day) capacities in trained reserves when the plan is in full operation."

Set Up by Quesada

The plan was set up by Lieut. Gen. Elwood R. (Pete) Quesada, who was called from his command of the Tactical Air Command to organize the reserve project.

The reservists will be trained at more than 70 regular Air Force bases and at 23 other localities to be designated as reserve training centers. Two of them will be newly activated locations. Eighteen other reserve training centers will be discontinued under the new plan.

The program was worked out under instructions from President Truman to make full use of civilian reserve components.

How System Will Work

Here is how it is set up:

1. Mobilization assignment training.—The reservist is trained in the spot he would have if war should come, assigned for M-Day to a specific unit of the regular Air Force. He gets 48 training periods a year—with 15 days of active duty—and is paid for his reserve service.

2. Air Force Reserve training center reservist.—This reservist is a member of a reserve training wing. He will train one weekend each month with equipment of a regular tactical squadron, is eligible to be paid for 48 training periods and one 15-day active duty period, may have maximum of 90 hours flying training annually.

3. Corollary unit reservist.—He is a member of a unit formed in the vicinity of regular Air Force bases to be trained and administered by regular USAF units with the equipment of those units. He can be paid for from 24 to 48 training periods and 15 days active duty, may have up to 90 hours of training annually.

No Pay, but Credits

4. Volunteer training unit reservist—he takes part in scheduled assemblies or meetings of groups with military occupational specialties similar to his own. He doesn't get paid, but will get credits for promotion and retirement purposes.

5. Extension course reservist—He enrolls with the air university, takes correspondence lessons, earns credits for promotion and retirement, but doesn't get paid.

Public Housing Bill Is Backed By Mayors in Fight on Slums

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Only public housing can wipe out slums and provide decent homes for the Nation's low-income families, the United States Conference of Mayors told Congress yesterday.

Thomas D'Alesandro, Jr., mayor of Baltimore and chairman of the committee on legislation for the conference, warned against assuming that the much-touted "Baltimore Plan" is the answer to the slum problem.

Proud as Baltimore is of the plan, said the city's mayor, it is in the nature of first aid rendered when there is no doctor available, and is by no means a cure for the blight of slums.

O'Dwyer Testifies

Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York also told the House Banking and Currency Committee that Federal legislation is imperative since the limits of State and city ability to finance public housing have been reached.

"There is probably no single group which is more aware of all the ramifications of the housing and slum clearance problem than the Nation's mayors," D'Alesandro said.

"In the last few years our offices have been besieged by distressed citizens pleading for assistance in finding homes for their families."

Indorsing the Administration's long-range housing bill, D'Alesandro told the committee:

'The mayors of this country are completely convinced that public low-rent housing is the only means of providing decent housing for our low-income families."

Hearings to Close Soon

The committee expects to finish hearings on the bill Monday and submit a bill for House approval by the end of next week.

There were claims, D'Alesandro said, apparently based on the "Baltimore Plan" for housing law-enforcement, that public housing to get rid of slums would not be necessary if cities were to adopt and enforce adequate laws.

"As Mayor of Baltimore and as the responsible head of the city government which is carrying out this law-enforcement program," D'Alesandro declared, " I want to clear up once and for all the confusion and exaggerated claims which are being made in various parts of the country about the 'Baltimore Plan.'"

"We in Baltimore are justifiably proud of our law-enforcement program. It is chiefly a health and sanitation measure. It is based upon a housing code, which sets certain minimum health and sanitation standards, and upon a vigorous program of enforcement of this code.

"Our enforcement revolves around a specially created Housing Court, which I believe is the only one of its kind in the country.

"The program is designed to relieve somewhat the worst slum conditions until such time as the slums can be torn down and satisfactory housing supplied. It does not do more, simply because to do more would be completely impractical in view of the dilapidated character of the present buildings."

"Our law-enforcement program does not add one dwelling to our supply of low-rent houses and at the moment our crying need is for more low-rent dwellings," D'Alesandro said.

"In fact, a strict law-enforcement program reduces the total supply of dwellings, since some buildings must be completely demolished."

An increase in the total number of low-rent dwellings is essential, D'Alesandro declared.

"I strongly believe that other cities should consider adoption of the "Baltimore Plan" as an interim method of relieving slum conditions to some extent," D'Alesandro declared, "but don't let anybody kid you into thinking that it is, in any sense, a substitute for an adequate slum clearance, redevelopment, and public low-rent hopsing program."

Opponents Heard

Calvin K. Snyder, speaking for the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said legislatures in North Carolina, Missouri, Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and Minnesota have declined to pass local public housing bills. He said a California referendum voted one down. It made him wonder, he declared, "from just whom and where the so-called 'mandate' for this Federal bill actually comes."

Robert P. Gerholz, Flint, Mich., realtor, said slums should be removed by local authorities.

William D. David, Kansas City, Mo., president of Farm Management Associates, Inc., said the provisions to aid farm housing are "not in the best interests of agriculture." "It picks out the poorest risks on the poorest farms, those least likely to succeed," he added.

Oscar R. Kreutz, executive manager of the National Savings and Loan League, said savings and loan associations see in public housing "a threat to the continued increase in home ownership."

Douglas Whitlock, Washington, D. C., chairman of the Building Products Institute, said the bill was "dangerous" because it would spend too much money on a "false hope."

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

10 a. m.—Cabinet.

11:15—Maj. Gen. Terence S. Airey, joint commander of British-U. S. forces in Trieste.

11:30—Senator Robertson (D., Va.) with T. I. Martin et al.

11:45—Wesley Disney, former Democratic Representative from Oklahoma.

Noon—Charles U. Bay, Ambassador to Norway.

12:30 p. m.—Railway Express emergency board.

12:45 — Officers of American Council on Education.

3:15—Senator Anderson (D., N. Mex.).

New Diamond Lab Dedicated By Dr. Condon

Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, yesterday dedicated the bureau's ordnance laboratory in memory of Harry Diamond, wartime chief of the electronics division, who died last June.

Dr. Condon, who was joined in the ceremonies by ordnance chiefs of the military services and by Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, unveiled a memorial plaque to Diamond, whom he called one of the Government's most brilliant scientists.

After the brief program in front of the building, several hundred persons visited the Harry Diamond Ordnance Laboratory, as it was named, to view the devices whose development brought many honors to Diamond.

The building was on public view, with the exception of a few roped-off rooms, for the first time since it was built by the Army in 1945 for ordnance research, which was directed by Diamond.

Another plaque, unveiled in the conference room of the laboratory, lists the principal accomplishments of the late electronics expert. In ordnance, they include the famous radio proximity fuse of World War II, the electronic bomb director and guided missile development.

His developments in aircraft radio between 1927 and 1935 included the first blind landing system, radio beacons, aircraft antenna designs and others. He also was honored in meteorology for his radio sonde weather balloon and automatic weather station.

Secretary Sawyer, who listed many of Diamond's achievements, said he was "an exceptional administrator as well as scientist."

Maj. Gen. E. S. Hughes, Army chief of ordnance, said the laboratory and its scientific staff are "excellent examples of that collaboration between civilian and military personnel which is essential to military strength."

Rear Admiral A. G. Noble, chief of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance, and Maj. Gen. Richard C. Coupland, director of armament for the Air Force, praised the services of Diamond and the Bureau of Standards in both peace and war. Admiral Noble said the VT fuse was a "vitally important and effective ordnance component."

Mather Confirmed As War Assets Chief

The Senate yesterday confirmed Paul L. Mather, retired rear admiral, to be War Assets Administrator succeeding Jess Larson.

It also approved without objection:

Lynn R. Edminister, of Illinois, for another term on the Tariff Commission expiring June 16, 1955.

Vice Admiral John D. Price to be vice chief of Naval Operations.

Senate Sends Greenbelt Bill To Conference

Senate approval was voted yesterday for a bill to give first priority to nonprofit veteran groups in the purchase of Greenbelt, Md.; Greendale, Wis., and Greenhills, Ohio, from the Federal Government.

The measure cleared the Senate by a unanimous consent, and now goes to conference. The House earlier approved the measure, but in different form.

A report by Senator Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.), in charge of the bill, cited these changes ordered by the Senate in the House version:

1. The Public Housing Commissioner would be authorized to set a time limit during which tenants of the towns could join the purchasing groups, after the purchase plan is announced.

2. A section was added to make clear Congress' intention that the Public Housing Commissioner, before selling, is to be given satisfactory evidence that the organization, negotiation, and purchasing costs of the buying group are fair in relation to the purchase price.

3. The Public Housing Commissioner would be authorized to transfer public facilities, like streets, parks, utilities and buildings, to public agencies as a condition of the sale.

4. The term "veteran" was defined to mean those of World War II, as being the group with the most acute housing needs.

These and other changes are expected to become the subject of House-Senate conferences before the measure is finally cleared.

Recess Urged On Austrian Treaty Talks

London, May 6 (U.P.).—The United States proposed today that four-power talks on the Austrian peace treaty recess until June 25 to allow the forthcoming Council of Foreign Ministers in Paris to settle some of the East-West disputes over Austria.

Britan and France agreed, but Deputy Foreign Minister George Zarubin of Russia asked that negotiations continue, on minor points only.

Deputy Foreign Ministers of the Big Four have held 162 meetings on the Austrian treaty and are still far from agreement.

The deputies agreed to meet again on Tuesday, to give Zarubin time to get instructions from Moscow.

In Vienna, the Austrian Institute for Economic Research protested over Russian dismantling and removal of $120,830,300 worth of machinery and raw materials and over alleged illegal imports of Bulgarian goods into Austria with Russian help.

Trade Board Fund Drive Reaches $21,450 Mark

The Washington Board of Trade's campaign to raise $120,000 for operation of its Greater National Capital Committee in fiscal 1949 has netted $21,450 thus far, it was announced yesterday.

Bruce Baird, campaign chairman, and president of the National Savings & Trust Co., predicted the campaign, which extends through May, will be successful. Last year, the committee established a goal of $85,000 and collected $93,500, he pointed out.

The Greater National Capital Committee has jumped its goal from last year's $85,000 to $120,000 to enlarge its information center facilities and housing activities during the sesquicentennial celebration next year.

150 Due at Jaycee Sessions

About 150 delegates are expected to attend Virginia's State Junior Chamber of Commerce tenth annual convention in Alexandria today and Sunday.

The top-ranking guest at the meeting, which will be held at the George Mason Hotel, will be Paul D. Bagwell, national Jaycee president. He will attend both days' sessions and will address the convention tonight.

Frank C. Waldrop, editor of the Washington Times-Herald, will keynote the convention with a speech at a luncheon meeting today.

The convention actually began yesterday with a meeting of the executive committee. The full membership will meet today to take up 11 topics in reports, discussions and resolutions.

Officers for next year will be elected today and installed at the closing ceremony Sunday. Annual awards will also be presented at the Sunday morning session.

Wender's Report On Segregation To Be Released

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, Sunday will release a 12,000-word report on segregation in Washington together with some recommendations.

The report, prepared by Wender in an individual capacity analyzes present practice in public meeting places, restaurants and other facilities.

Recommendations deal with the problem now confronting the Recreation Board in dealing with after-hour use of school buildings for public and private meetings.

The report does not cover another problem now confronting the board—the question of segregated playgrounds. Wender plans a second report on this matter.

New Car Sales Set Eight-Year Peak in April

By S. Oliver Goodman

April registrations of new cars in Washington soared to 3332, highest monthly total since 1941, the Washington Automotive Trade Association reported yesterday.

The figure compared with 2497 in the preceding month and 2770 in April, 1948. There were 2973 new passenger cars and 459 commercial vehicles titled here last month.

Despite the spurt in April, new car sales for the first four months this year still lag behind the same 1948 period. The cumulative total is 9749 against 10,240 last year.

April	3332	2770
March	2497	3151
February	1829	1973
January	2091	2346

Main reason for April's upsurge in sales here was increased deliveries from assembly lines. New postwar highs in output were reported last month by some leading makers. Also, seasonal influences were at work with demand for cars always high in spring.

Wait periods on new-car orders have narrowed sharply in the past 12 months. Dealers in higher-priced makes report almost immediate delivery. Local Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouth dealers still have waiting periods ranging currently from 60 days to six months. These same dealers in April, 1948, reported waits of 12 to 18 months.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Mrs. Martha S. Sellers is the acting public relations manager in the Washington office of United Air Lines, succeeding Ted Kellogg. She formerly was associated with Capital Airlines and Chicago & Southern Airlines . . . L. M. Green has been elected executive vice president of the Dr. Pepper Co . . . Ford Motor Co. lists the following new appointments: Gordon C. Eldredge, division advertising manager; W. E. Kimbrough, assistant manager of truck and fleet sales; Thomas H. Holden, sales manager of truck section; C. E. Dalton, general manager of the overseas distributors branch.

Mrs. Sellers

NEAR COMPLETION: The new Woodley Park Branch of the American Security & Trust Co. at 2300 Calvert st. (near Connecticut ave.) will open for business about June 1. President Daniel W. Bell said yesterday that construction of the institution's seventh branch is in its final stages. An innovation, he added, will be a "drive-in" teller's window for the convenience of motbrists to pick up payrolls, cash checks or make deposits without leaving their cars.

ODD LOTS: Speakers at the Maryland Bankers Association convention May 9 and 10 at Atlantic City will include Robert V. Fleming and M. S. Scymczak, both of Washington . . . Dallas H. Smith, general superintendent of a Charlotte, N. C., department store, will address local public relations men at a luncheon Monday in Sheraton Hotel . . . Marvin W. Smith has been elevated to president of Baldwin Locomotive Works . . . Steel scrap sold yesterday at $20 a ton in Buffalo, compared with record high of $43 in 1947 . . . Radio Corporation of America is reported negotiating for private sale of some 60 million dollars in debentures through Lehman Bros. . . . Auto output this week is estimated at 121,845 units, compared with 129,457 in previous week . . . Public Service Electric & Gas Co. of New Jersey has registered with the SEC a proposed issue of 75 million dollars of first and refunding mortgage bonds due 1979.

GROSS IMPROVES: United Air Lines, Inc., and subsidiaries yesterday reported a net loss of $3,323,136 for the first quarter of 1949, compared with a loss of $1,931,649 in the like period of 1948. Operating revenues for the latest quarter were $17,657,290, against $13,644,973 a year ago. The report said that because of an award of additional air mail pay made by the Civil Aeronautics Board in February and applicable only to the year 1948, the first quarter 1948 loss was adjusted to $1,931,649 from the $3,550,534 reported last year.

WALLER ELEVATED: John R. Waller of Washington was elected president of the Rutland Railroad of Vermont at a directors' meeting here. Waller, president of the International Bank on Jackson pl., was formerly vice president of the railroad, which is in receivership. He succeeded the late John D. Babbage, whose widow was elected a new member of the board.

EARNINGS: Ohio Oil Co. reported net income of $9,941,420 or $1.51 a share for the first quarter, compared with $12,447,155 or $1.90 a share in same 1948 period. Other earnings statements:

Police Ordered To Aid Civil Suits

Metropolitan police yesterday were ordered to follow the same procedure in accepting subpenas and attending court in connection with civil cases as they follow in connection with criminal cases.

The order was sent out by Inspector Floyd Truscott, Assistant Superintendent of Police, who pointed out that "it has always been the policy of the Police Department to cooperate with courts." Some policemen, however, have been reluctant to appear in civil cases where they have not been served personally with a legal summons, he added in the order.

Hereafter, when a subpena for a policeman in a civil case is delivered to the unit to which he is attached, it will be accepted by the official in command with a proper notation and then delivered through normal channels to the policeman, who is to comply promptly with its instructions.

A policeman subpenaed to civil court shall check in and out with the police liaison officer at Municipal Court, as he does when attending criminal court. If he is unable to attend at the designated hour, he is to notify the liaison officer of this.

Any policeman who fails inexcusably to follow these instructions faces not only disciplinary action by the Police Department, but will also be subjected to any penalty the court may impose for contempt, the order warned.

At Winchester

Milk Board Challenged On Price Cut

Winchester, Va., May 6 (AP).—N. B. Shingleton, owner of the Sanitary Dairy, today challenged E. L. Millner, of Newport News, acting chairman of the Virginia State Milk Commission, to prevent him from cutting his price.

Shingleton's proposition was that the price paid by the distributor to the producer for 100 pounds of milk be cut from the present $6 to $5.50 and the price to the consumer of 20 cents be cut to 19 cents.

At a commission hearing, in addition to Millner, were Mark Turner of Herndon, representing producers on the board; John W. Bowen of Richmond, secretary, and Fred Tilghman of Richmond, recorder.

Consumer Not Represented

A decision is to be rendered after the commission studies transcripts in its Richmond offices. The hearing at Winchester today saw no one present to represent the consumer.

The two principal local distributors, Paul Haldeman of Haldeman's Creamery, Inc., and Shingleton, were on opposite sides of the proposed cut. Haldeman was against and Shingleton for the cut.

Local producers were represented by Murl G. Hannum, president of the Winchester Cooperative Milk Producers Association. He said that they were in some cases already operating at a loss and if the cut went through, they would in some instances have to go out of business.

Dumping It Down Sewer

Among the producers, only M. S. Snapp thought the slash was advisable. Snapp said he thought he could stand the cut but had no records on his production costs. Shingleton testified that he thinks the price of milk should be cut back to 19 cents until September 1.

He said that he had been dumping as much as 200 gallons of skim milk a day down the sewer in the last month. He said the price of milk is off as much as 2 cents a quart in some localities situated like the local area and circumstances here demanded a cut.

Battle Calls Charges By Miller False

Richmond, Va., May 6 (AP).—State Senator John S. Battle tonight labeled as "baseless charges" statements made against his program last night in Roanoke by Francis Pickens Miller.

Both men are candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor in August.

In replying to reporters who asked what he might have said last night had he been given "two minutes" to answer an attack upon his program by Miller, the Senator said:

"In speaking before the Virginia Conference of Social Work last night . . . Miller, who was the last speaker on the program and who knew I would have no opportunity to reply, stated, in effect, that I had a passport into the inner circles of the administration and had discovered a $57,000,000 surplus.

"He stated further that I discovered another 17-million-dollar surplus in Culpeper two nights ago."

Battle recalled that on April 10 he issued a statement setting out a program for relief of the localities in connection with school construction problems.

"I stated," he said, "there would be a surplus of 15 million dollars in the treasury at the end of the present biennium, which I would favor being granted to the localities. That in addition thereto, there was 30 million dollars in the retirement fund and 12 million dollars in the bond sinking fund in excess of legal requirements, which I felt could be loaned to such of the localities as might care to avail themselves of it. These amounts totaled 57 million dollars."

Lane Cancels Changes in Fisheries Unit

Annapolis, Md., May 6 (AP).—Governor Lane cancelled a reorganization of Maryland's Tidewater Fisheries Commission today as he closed the books on lawmaking for 1949.

He signed 103 measures and vetoed 78 others to complete the legislation enacted before the General Assembly adjourned last month.

In doing so he gave final approval to a reshuffle of Maryland's mental hospital administration, placing the five institutions under one-man rule this June.

But he vetoed a measure which would have jettisoned the present three-member Tidewater Fisheries Commission for a five-member policy-making group. He did so because of a threatened referendum.

Lane also rejected a commission on alcoholism. It would have been authorized in a bill appropriating $100,000 a year to set up clinics and aids to chronic alcoholics. The Governor objected to the lack of controls over how the money would be spent.

Other bills signed:

House

H. B. 280—By Prince Georges delegation—granting the town of Berwyn Heights power to construct and maintain streets, sidewalks and alleys, subject to referendum.

H. B. 294—By Montgomery delegation—increasing the special State allowance to counties and Baltimore City for education of handicapped children from $200 to $400 per child per year.

H. B. 569—By Montgomery—specifying that amusement taxes collected in Bethesda be expended by the County Council to benefit that area.

H. B. 622—By Prince Georges—requiring all retail and wholesale alcoholic beverages be sold in Prince Georges County for cash.

H. B.—By Prince Georges—setting the salary of the chairman of Prince Georges County Commissioners at $6000 annually and of the other members of the board at $2800, and forbidding them any additional compensation for other services performed ex officio. (The present pay of the commissioners is $600.)

Senate Resolutions

S. R. 4—By O'Neill—requesting the State Roads Commission to designate U. S. Route 301 as the Blue Star Memorial Highway.

Senate Bills

S. B. 393—By President—abolishing the Board of Mental Hygiene and boards of managers of mental hospitals; creating a Department of Mental Hygiene, headed by a commissioner who would appoint hospital superintendents, with divisions of administration and finance and of psychiatric training and education; creating a mental hygiene advisory board and board of review.

S. B. 412—By Ellison—extending the provisions of the Rent Control Act of 1947 until June 1, 1951. The present act expires next June 1.

S. B. 450—By Sothoron—changing the name of the Cheltenham School for Boys to the "Boys Village of Maryland."

BILLS VETOED

Senate

S. B. 25—President—to require the use of voting machines throughout the State, with 17 counties exempted, and authorizing county commissioners to issue bonds to pay for them.

——ADD TWO—SIGN V & L . . . . . K

S. B. 522—By Sothoron—to authorize any city or town, exclusive of the Washington Suburban Sanitary District, to acquire or build, on its own or through joint action without municipalities, beverage facilities within a radius of 10 miles; and to authorize any necessary bond issues.

House

H. B. 131—By Reeves—to exclude Montgomery and Frederick Counties from provisions of a State law granting a defendant a stay, in certain cases, of judgments brought against him.

H. B. 395—By Reed and See—to specify that no woman shall be eligible for unemployment compensation benefits within three months before or two months after childbirth.

H. B. 496—By McGrath and Reeves—to allow the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission to construct storm sewer systems on public or private property, provided resident property owners and voters agree prior to construction to contribute toward the cost of the systems.

H. B. 626—By Prince Georges—to authorize Prince Georges County Commissioners to borrow up to $100,000 annually for acquisition of rights-of-way for county roads.

H. B. 660—By Montgomery—to eliminate a provision in the Montgomery County local laws, so that it will no longer be necessary for a county circuit judge to assign substitute magistrates.

H. B. 750—By Prince Georges—to remove incorporated towns of Prince Georges County from some of the statutes relating to issuance of bond issues.

Forgotten Man Freed; Trial Set May 18

Scott W. Fuller, 23, was free yesterday for the first time since December 7, when he was arrested for a theft of $120.

Judge James W. Morris of District Court allowed the Sedalia (N. C.) native to go out of court on his personal recognizance and to return May 18 for trial.

Fuller was jailed for four months without a court hearing here or the chance to make bail. A series of procedural inadequacies and clerical errors was blamed for what Judge Morris called "an unconscionable delay" in bringing Fuller into the court.

The defendant was apprehended in North Carolina. He was brought to Washington December 22 and imprisoned in District Jail. Only after his attorney, T. Emmett McKenzie, made inquiries was Fuller indicted April 18. Fuller was then termed the "forgotten prisoner" of the jail.

Fuller was released yesterday after McKenzie told the court the defendant was to stay at the Salvation Army Center, 1501 7th st. nw. Fuller might have been released two days earlier but no one could be found willing to care for the penniless man, McKenzie said.

Fuller promised the court to stay out of trouble and to appear for his trial.

Ohio Seeking Street Here As Namesake

Ohio, the only State of the Union without a District street named after it, will try again to get one.

Representative Thomas A. Jenkins (R., Ohio), who led a fight to establish an Ohio ave. in the Capital in 1948, is the author of House bill 193 which would rename the 10 miles of Eastern ave., which runs through northeast and northwest Washington, to Ohio ave.

The District Commissioners, who turned down Congressman Jenkins' request to rename Bladensberg rd. to Ohio ave., will hold a public hearing at 10 a. m. May 16 on the new proposal.

Ohio became the lone State without a District namesake in 1946 when the city heads created Missouri ave. out of what had previously been Concord ave. nw.

BETTY'S BROOD—Vicki's 5, Jessica's 2, and they're welcoming Mommy—Betty Grable—home from a day at the studio as "The Beautiful Blonde from Bashful Bend"

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK. — President Chaim Weizmann, who flew from Israel to this country, sailed for home Thursday aboard the Queen Mary. He needs the rest, to recuperate from his 25-hour flight which was followed by a series of diplomatic functions and speaking engagements which were trying experiences . . . "I have just found out," said Weizmann, "that you can't do, at 75, what you used to do at 70."

Funds to pay for the round-the-world trip of the Town Hall of the Air, which will be broadcast from 12 foreign capitals, are being raised via recorded appeals from Eleanor Roosevelt, Mrs. Wendell Willkie, Dr. Ralph Bunche, Robert E. Sherwood, Tallulah Bankhead, Helen Hayes and Jim Farley . . . Ambassador Stanton Griffis, now in New York, said the assignment he wants is Ambassador to the Colony Restaurant.

Sam Goldwyn, discharged from the hospital after an operation only a few days ago, is transacting business as usual at his hotel apartment in New York. William Selwyn of Goldwyn's staff, was summoned to his employer's room and received instructions to sign an actress needed for the next Goldwyn movie. The actress' terms were too high, and much negotiation was needed . . . "If you sign her, Billy, I'll give you a nice present, "Goldwyn promised. "I'll tell you what I'll do: When you're old enough to need an operation like the one I just had, I'll give it to you free."

Senator Brewster of Maine was asked why he had insisted on a clause in the ECA legislation forbidding the foreign countries who receive funds to use any ECA money for tourist trade advertising. "I'm from Maine," Brewster explained, "which has a 10-million-dollar a year tourist trade of its own" . . . Judge Jonah Goldstein, who opposed Mayor O'Dwyer in the last City Hall election, is planning to campaign again this year . . . A Philadelphia manufacturer of soft drinks, who's made a fortune selling carbonated water, told some New York financiers: "Any business is fine—as long as your partner is a sink."

One on the Aisle—

Wilder Comedy Howard's Best

By Richard L. Coe

THORNTON WILDER'S wise and extremely comical "The Skin of Our Teeth" is being happily performed by the Howard Players as part of Howard University's Festival of Fine Arts. Three performances remain: tonight, Monday and Tuesday at 8:30.

One thing I shall always personally hold against the late Adolf Hitler is that the recent unpleasantness kept me from seeing the original production. As you may recall, Tallulah had the juicy role of Sabina and was supported by a cast that included Fredric March, Florence Reed and Florence Eldridge. It created a storm of yuketyuk; people either loved it or despised it. It reads well, but, after all, no play really comes to life until it is acted before an audience.

So one must congratulate Dr. Anne Cooke's department for tackling it and, what's more, for performing it so well. The leads are in able hands and it is a moving thing to see how much has been done in bringing the play to life in the limited confines of Howard's Spaulding Hall. This is by far the best I've seen in several years of covering the Howard Players and the audience amusement at the play must be a comforting matter to Dr. Cooke and her associates.

Wilder, you may remember, was concerned with the Antrobus family of Excelsior, New Jersey, though, as Mrs. A. explains, their Mr. and Mrs. Antrobus have been married several thousand years and children aren't always the same, they're practically the same.

The Antrobuses are concerned simply with living. Mr. Antrobus likes to think of that happy day when he invented the wheel, but he keeps living in the present, always cooking up new things to make life pleasanter. Mrs. Antrobus is busy with keeping her family together, which isn't always easy when you have two growing children and a husband whose idea of relaxation is to consider the beauties and brains of an ever-present Lillith.

Superior to "Our Town"

The play is such a brilliant, dizzying melange of amusing observations and shifting moods that after all these years it's presumptuous of me to treat of them at length. But much as I love Wilder's other favorite, "Our Town," I must say that I think this is a decidedly superior work. Those who've complained that they don't understand all he is saying and doing in "The Skin of Our Teeth" make an initial error in thinking they should try.

James W. Butcher, jr., of the teaching staff, is splendid as the dogged Mr. Antrobus, shifting moods effectively and speaking clearly and with understanding.

Carol Foster has Tallulah's role of the eternal vixen and she, too, is handsomely endowed by both nature and intelligence to make the part interesting and diverting. Katherine Pulliam is right as the wise, disturbed mother, bringing magic to the moment when she sums up the wisdom of women. Roxie Roker has the wild role of the fortune teller, a part I'd have given a lot to have seen Florence Reed do. Yvonne Terrell and Stanley Paige are the Antrobus offspring, both good; I envy Paige his voice.

Dr. Cooke designed and directed the play and on the whole she's done a splendid job. The little hall on the campus (DPpont 6100) has indeed a rollicking hit.

WITH THE CIRCUS visit in sight (May 17 through 21, twice daily), this is a good time to hope that the Police Department won't be ordering the tents pitched too far from the highway . . . This is an annual problem for mothers who have a couple of tired youngsters to walk hundreds of yards from the tents to the traffic lanes . . . Too often in the past, police orders have insisted on, and often changed, spots where trekking from tents to trolleys makes a rugged finale for a happy afternoon . . . This has nothing to do with the circus; the Ringling boys can put up anywhere. It's just a matter of public convenience.

ALEXANDRIA'S Little Theater Workshop will be doing two one-act plays Monday night at 8 in the Cameron st. Recreation Center . . . Lady Gregory's "The Rising of the Moon" will be acted by Paul Carmi, Joe Harris, Donald Beggs and Harold Williams . . . "Ah, Sweet Memory," by the group's John H. Smith, will be played by Gilbert Haring, Pat Cable, Thelma Duvinage, Donald Stroetzel and Tanya Bruskin; Carl Eardley and Collette Howden are directing.

Church Dedication Set in Chevy Chase

Dedication of the new Chevy Chase Baptist Church, 5671 Western ave. nw., will take place at 3:30 p. m. Sunday.

The new church stands next to the original building on Western ave. near Chevy Chase Circle. Construction of the new building began more than a year ago, and first services were held in it on April 3.

Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., will give the dedication message. Dr. Edward O. Clark, only pastor of the church in its 26-year history, will give the prayer of dedication.

Others who will take part in the dedication are Dr. Arnold T. Ohrn, executive secretary of the Baptist World Alliance; Dr. M. Chandler Stith, executive secretary of the D. C. Baptist Convention; Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, and Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church.

Harold E. Burton, chairman of the building committee, will present the keys of the new building to Robert F. Glenn, chairman of the board of trustees.

An open house will be held in the new building on Thursday at 8 p. m.

At 11 a. m. Sunday Dr. Clark will speak on "The Glory of the Home."

Church Group Names Dr. Reissig

Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, has been named president of the Interchurch Fellowship of Washington, an interracial and interfaith organization.

He succeeds Dr. Robert W. Brooks, pastor of Lincoln Temple Congregational Church, who has held the office for the past two years. Vice presidents of the organization are Glenn D. Everett, correspondent for the Raleigh News and Observer, and the Rev. Robert L. Jeans, pastor of Tabor Presbyterian Church. Miss Joan Williams, executive secretary of the fellowship, has been granted a leave of absence for the summer to work with the American Friends Service Committee in Europe.

Lutheran Church Plans Candlelight Service

A candlelight service in honor of mothers and fathers will be held at 7 p. m. at Atonement Lutheran Church, Rhode Island ave. and North Capitol st. At 9 and 11 a. m. the Rev. Paul L. Reaser will speak on "Ten Commandments for the Christian Family."

New Chevy Chase Church

The Rev. L. Maynard Catchings, minister of Plymouth Congregational Church, 17th and P sts. nw., has been named dean of the annual Young Adults Conference to be held at Lisle, N. Y., during July. The conference is sponsored by Congregational Christian Churches of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Washington.

Ordination of 4 Set At Brookland Church

Four laymen will be ordained as deacons at the Brookland Baptist Church, 16th and Monroe sts. ne., at 8 p. m. Sunday, the Rev. Ward B. Hurlburt, pastor, has announced.

Participants in the service will include Dr. M. Chandler Stith, executive secretary of the D. C. Baptist Convention; the Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church; the Rev. Idris W. Jones of Calvary Baptist Church, and Dr. Wilbur F. Ripley of Silver Spring, Md.

Cana Conference Set

St. Ann's Church, 10th and North Frederick sts., Arlington, Va., will hold a Cana conference at 8:30 p. m. Monday through Wednesday. The Rev. Chester Michael will conduct the discussions.

Special Church Rites to Mark Mother's Day

Mother's Day and Family Week services are scheduled in many Greater Washington churches for Sunday.

At Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P sts. nw. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris will speak on "Mother's Day and Ours" at 11 a. m. and infants will be baptized at the service.

Parents will bring their children forward and will dedicate themselves to maintaining a Christian home at the 10:50 a. m. service at National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle nw.

Dr. I. S. Ernst will speak on "Motherhood and Tomorrow" at 11 a. m. at Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church, 1700 North Capitol st.

Young people from the congregation of Takoma Lutheran Church, 7th and Dahlia sts. nw., will participate in the 11 a. m. service and the newly formed junior choir will sing. The Rev. J. A. Pfeiffer will preach on "America's Most Valuable Possession."

Dr. L. Ralph Tabor will preach on "The Roots of Christian Living" at a Mother's Day service at 11 a. m. at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle nw.

Dr. Stephen Gill Spottswood, pastor of John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw., will speak on "Mother of God" at 11 a. m.

"An Old-Fashioned Mother's Message for Today" will be Dr. L. R. Elson's theme at 11 a. m. at National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw.

At Chevy Chase Methodist Church, Chevy Chase Circle nw., Dr. Page McK. Etchison, president of the Organized Bible Class Association, will speak on "My Mother's Bible" before the Fellowship Class at 11 a. m.

"The Christian Home—America's Hope" will be Glenn R. Coie's sermon topic at 11 a. m. at Knox Orthodox Presbyterian Church, Granville dr. and Sutherland rd., Silver Spring.

The Rev. James D. Foy will speak on "Valiant Mothers" at 11 a. m. at Mount Zion Methodist Church, 1334 29th st. nw.

Mothers Day Tea

Young Adults, Seniors and Young People of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., will hold their annual Mothers Day tea in the social hall of the church from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. Sunday.

Four Denominations Will Hold National Conventions in May

Four Protestant denominations will hold their annual national conventions during May.

During June regional conferences of Methodists and Presbyterians from Greater Washington will take place and an international meeting of Congregationalists also will be held.

From May 15 through 22 the Southern Baptist Convention will be held in Oklahoma City, Okla. Churches in Washington are members of the District Baptist Convention, which is affiliated with both Northern and Southern Baptist conventions. At least 25 Washingtonians are expected to attend the Oklahoma City meetings.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church USA (Northern) will be held in Buffalo, N. Y., May 19-25. Six of the 882 commissioners to the assembly will be from the Presbytery of Washington City, which includes 42 churches in Washington and northern Virginia.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church U. S. (Southern) will meet in Montreat, N. C., beginning May 26. Two churches in the District and four in nearby Virginia and Maryland are affiliated with the Southern Presbyterian Church.

From May 30 to June 3, the Northern Baptist Convention will meet in San Francisco, Calif. Officials of the D. C. Baptist Convention expect 15 or more Washington representatives will attend.

Delegates from all parts of the world will attend the Sixth International Council of Congregational Churches at Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., June 17-24. The Rev. Phillip Gordon Scott, minister of Westmoreland Congregational Church, Westmoreland cir. nw., will be a delegate to the international meeting. Mr. Scott is chairman of the executive committee of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches in America.

A regional meeting of interest to Greater Washington Methodists will take place in Westminster, Md., June 2-5, when the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Church meets. At this gathering the annual assignment of Methodist ministers to churches in Baltimore, Hagerstown and Washington will be made.

The Synod of Baltimore of the Presbyterian Church U. S. A., which includes the Presbytery of Washington City, has scheduled its annual meeting for June 20-24 at Hood College, Frederick, Md. Dr. Halley B. Taylor, pastor of Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, has been nominated to serve as moderator of the meeting.

Church Task To Be Topic

"The Churches' Task in the Nation's Capital" will be discussed at a town hall meeting at the Mayflower Hotel on Monday at 8 p. m.

The discussion will be part of the twenty-ninth annual program and meeting of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Dr. William R. Barnhart, head of the department of religion and philosophy at Hood College, Frederick, Md., will be moderator.

Representative A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D., Okla.) will discuss the question from the point of view of a man in Government; Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, from the point of view of a minister, and Dr. J. Quinter Miller of New York, associate executive secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, from the point of view of an outsider.

Nominations for officers and members of the board of directors of the federation will be presented by Dr. Ralph K. Merker, chairman of the nominating committee and stated clerk of the Presbytery of Washington City.

Dr. Gerhard Lenski, president of the Washington Ministerial Union and pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, will install the newly elected officers.

A printed report highlighting the moral, social and religious needs of Washington will be presented by Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the federation. The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington and president of the federation, will preside at the meeting. Musical portions of the program will be under the direction of Jule Zabawa, minister of music of Reformation Lutheran Church.

World Sodality Rites Will Be Held Sunday

World Sodality day will be observed with an outdoor public demonstration to the Blessed Mother at 3 p. m. Sunday in the Catholic University stadium.

Theme of the demonstration, which is sponsored by the Sodality Union of Washington, is "Peace Through Mary." The Rev. Charles W. Nelson, spiritual director of parish sodalists, is chairman of the committee making arrangements for the ceremony.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, will be the celebrant of the benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. The Rev. Neil J. Gargan, pastor of St. Aloysius Church, will deliver the sermon.

High school students from the archdiocese will form a living rosary, and girls from Georgetown Visitation Convent will be the May queen and her court. Students from colleges and Newman clubs will be escorts for the members of the court.

Clergy from the archdiocese and members of religious orders of men will march in the procession. Opening the ceremony, uniformed members of the Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, Catholic War Veterans and cadets from St. John's College high school will also participate in the demonstration.

All Souls to Hear Dr. W. W. Robbins

Dr. Wallace W. Robbins, president of Meadville Theological School, Chicago, will preach on "Power Does Not Corrupt" at 11 a. m. Sunday at All Souls' Church (Unitarian), 16th and Harvard sts. nw.

Dr. A. Powell Davies, pastor of the church, will be preaching at the Unitarian Church in Germantown, Pa., and at Bryn Mawr College Sunday.

Dedication Set For Window At Cathedral

A South American window will be dedicated at the evensong service at 4 p. m. Sunday at the Washington Cathedral.

Installed high in the clerestory of the north transept of the Cathedral, the Good Neighbor window was given by an anonymous donor in memory of the late James Edward Freeman, third Bishop of Washington.

The Very Rev. John Wallace Suter, dean of the Cathedral, will present the window to the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, who will dedicate it.

Paul C. Daniels, director of the Office of American Republic Affairs, Department of State, will give the dedication address.

Representatives of South and Central American countries and members of the general secretariat of the Pan American Union have been invited to attend the service. Ambassadors and their representatives from the 10 South American countries have been asked to march in the procession.

The blue, ruby red and gold window was designed and executed by Reynolds, Francis and Rohnstock of Boston, Mass.

Occupying the central portion of the window is a figure representing Simon Bolivar, patriot, general and statesman known as the "George Washington of South America." The left panel shows San Martin of Argentina, who crossed the Andes to liberate Chile, and the right panel shows Baron do Rio Branco of Brazil who worked for inter-American peace.

Flags of the South American countries and symbolic maps of North and South America are also shown. At the base of the center lancet of the window is the memorial inscription to Bishop Freeman.

"Sanctus," from the mass by Heitor Villa-Lobos, Brazilian composer, will be sung by the Cathedral choir during the dedication service.

Dr. K. Owen White, pastor of Metropolitan Baptist Church, 6th and A sts. ne., has announced that the church will have two morning services beginning Sunday.

The first service will be at 8:15 a. m. and the second at 11 a. m.

Sermons at the two will be identical. Sunday school will meet between the two services at 9:30 a. m.

The Right Rev. John B. Bentley, vice president of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, will deliver the sermon at 10:45 a. m. at the Fort Myer, Va., Post Chapel. He will officiate at the rite of confirmation, assisted by Chaplain Gregory J. Lock of Fort Myer.

Dr. Henry Neuman, leader of the Brooklyn, N. Y., Society for Ethical Culture, will speak at a meeting of the Washington society at 11:15 a. m. at Friendship House, 619 D st. se. His subject will be "Ways to Spiritual Health."

Carnations will be given to mothers attending the 11 a. m. service at Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church, 20th and G sts. nw. Dr. Charles Enders will speak on "A Holy Family."

Dorothy Maynor of New York, who has often appeared with the National Symphony as a soprano soloist, will speak at the all university religious service at 11 a. m., Sunday, at Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel, Howard University.

Three open-air talks will be given from 3 to 5 p. m. in Franklin Park, 14th and I sts. nw., under the auspices of the Washington Catholic Evidence Guild. Paulist seminarians from St. Paul's College, Brookland, will speak on "You Can Talk With God," "Where Do We Go From Here?" and "Jesus Is God."

U. S. School Funds Use Up to States

It is up to each State to decide if parochial schools are to share in the proposed 300-million-dollar Federal Aid to Education fund, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said yesterday.

He told a group of Roman Catholic priests attending the convention of the American Council on Education to "fight it out" on the State level as to whether they are to participate in the Federal grants.

The priests questioned Taft on this phase of the school aid bill passed Thursday by the Senate after the Senator completed a talk before the opening session of the council's two-day convention at the Mayflower Hotel.

They asked Taft why the Federal government cannot order the States to use funds to aid parochial schools.

Taft said that the bill specifically leaves it up to the States to decide how to use the funds.

State Constitutions Involved

A Federal mandate to give parochial schools a share would in some instances violate State constitutions, the Senator said.

Taft said that he would not have supported the bill if it had contained proposals either to exclude parochial schools from sharing in the money or granting them participation.

Such provisions would have put the Federal Government into education and would have threatened Federal control, he said.

Federal aid means no more than the Federal Government is using its tax resources to see to it that the States are able to do the job of education, Taft declared.

Sharing the speakers' platform with Taft at yesterday's sessions were Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator; Earl J. McGrath, United States Commissioner of Education, and Algo D. Henderson, associate commissioner of education of New York State.

Education's Role in Recovery

Hoffman said that "education and training must have first place in any program of world recovery if the program is to be recovery and not relief."

Educational assistance now giv

Educational assistance now given under the Marshall Plan primarily is technical assistance, the ECA director said.

McGrath called for a new method of training college professors so that they will be better able to teach students in broad integrated courses.

"Instead of taking three or more years beyond the bachelor's degree in one field such as history or physics, with an ever-narrowing specialization within those fields, the future college teacher might reasonably be expected to reduce the number of courses in his specialty and include a wider variety of subjects from related disciplines."

Support of Labor Business

Discussing college financing, Henderson said that schools should turn to labor groups and business organizations to provide more support for higher education.

President of the Council George F. Zook, in presenting his annual report, said that the present procedures for accrediting colleges and universities is inadequate and wrong in emphasis.

It is based largely on physical plant, adequacy of support and degrees held by its faculty, but not on the effectiveness of the education within the institution, he said.

Approximately 25,000 to 30,000 lives could have been saved in the atomic bombing of Nagasaki had the residents been trained in atomic bomb defense, Sumner T. Pike, vice chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, asserted last night at a dinner meeting.

The official urged a training program in such defense for Americans even though the knowledge "obviously would get out to other countries."

Earlier the gathering was addressed by Herold C. Hunt, superintendent of schools of Chicago, and chairman of the council.

Speaking of the importance of research in furthering educational aims, he asserted: "television, perhaps, has spurred interest in research activity in the visual education field."

Post Square Bungalow Brightened Up . . .

The Washington Post

GOOD FOR ANOTHER SEASON—The temporary frame structure erected in Post Square at the outset of World War II for some reason now veiled by time, is getting a fresh coat of paint. Probably has something to do with the Board of Trade's clean-up, fix-up and paint-up campaign. The building is now used as a veterans' housing information center

U. S. Measures Atomic Blasts, Researcher Says

Oslo, Norway, May 6 (AP).—An American said today that United States scientists had built apparatus to register atomic bomb explosions in the same way earthquakes are recorded.

Col. Oliver Vickery, director of atomic energy research at Owenson & Co., Inc., San Francisco, told newsmen the super sensitive atomic recorders worked just like seismographs which keep tabs on earth shocks.

Communion Breakfast Scheduled at Hotel

St. Joseph's Holy Name Society will hold its annual communion breakfast Sunday at the Continental Hotel, North Capitol and D sts., following a Holy Name mass at 7 a. m. at the church, 2d and C sts. ne.

Robert A. Martino, Catholic layman and knight commander in the Order of St. Gregory, will be the speaker. He will tell of his personal experiences with Pope Pius XII in Rome while he was in the Army during World War II.

'Doing Good' Sermon

"Does Doing Good Cover Religion?" will be the subject of a sermon by Dr. Seth R. Brooks, minister of Universalist National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw., at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Westmoreland Congregational Church, 1 Westmoreland cir. nw., formerly Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, is holding two services Sunday morning. At 8:30 the Rev. Philip Gordon Scott, pastor, will lead a half-hour service of worship and prayer, speaking on "Knock at the Door." His sermon topic at the regular 11 a. m. service is "Queen for a Day."

At the French service at St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette sq., at 4 p. m., the Rev. Pierre C. Tourcille, pastor of the French Congregation, will preach a Mother's Day sermon on "N'Abandonne pas l'Enseignement de ta Mere."

Diver Is Trapped For Two Hours Among the Sharks

Marineland, Fla., May 6 (AP).—Diver Floyd Adams at Marine Studios was stuck for two hours in a drain at the bottom of a tank today with sharks and other huge fish around him.

Adams had gone into the tank to remove a grating over the drain. As he took it off, suction caught Adams and snatched him into the drain. It was barely large enough to admit part of his body.

Air was pumped to him through his air hose but eventually the water had to be lowered to a depth of 6 feet, a dangerous level with so many huge fish in the tank.

With the pressure thus eased, two other divers got a rope around Adams and pulled him free.

Sen. Morse to Speak

Senator Wayne L. Morse (R., Oreg.) will speak at the annual dinner of George Washington University Law School at the Mayflower Hotel at 7:30 tonight. William C. Van Vleck, dean of the law school for 25 years, wil be honored guest.

More State Pay Listed For Newsmen

St. Louis, May 6 (AP).—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News today listed additional Illinois newspapermen who they said received State salaries during the administration of former Republican Governor Dwight H. Green.

The Post-Dispatch said its search of State records had brought to 51 the total number of newspapermen who were on the payroll during Green's administration, which ran from 1940 through 1948. The newspaper said the total amount collected by the 51 persons was $480,000.

The two newspapers reported their first payroll findings April 14, and have added names to the list in later stories.

The new list included the following not named previously, with the salaries as reported by the newspapers (those who could be reached for comment explained they had worked for what they were paid):

Paul H. Mueller, editor of the Chicago Abendpost, German language daily, $18,175 from January 1, 1943, to last November 30, at $275 monthly as a clerk for former State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder.

William J. Godfrey, city editor, Streator Times-Press, $7450 from April 1, 1943, to last November 30, at $110 monthly, as a messenger clerk.

Robert A. Drysdale, sports editor, Illinois State Journal, Springfield, $320 monthly for about a year beginning in November, 1945, for a total of $3925.

Fred W. Tuerk, sports editor, Peoria Star, who the Post-Dispatch said held a "bona fide State position" as a member of the Illinois Athletic Commission from March 1, 1946, until last March 14. His State pay was $400 monthly, totaling $14,022.

John R. Jamieson, advertising manager, Chicago Calumet, neighborhood daily, $2320 as messenger clerk for Disability Employment Commission at $150 monthly, employed from February 1, 1946, to May 30, 1948.

("I took this job before I went into th enewspaper business," Jamieson said.)

Bud R. Albanese, North Loop News, Chicago neighborhood semi-monthly newspaper, $24,173 as a sales tax field investigator at $302 monthly from January 13, 1941, to last January 31.

Harry K. Tipper, Chicago World, weekly newspaper, $245 monthly as a Labor Department investigator in 19A47-48 for a total of $5005.

Virginia Short 7594 Teachers For Next Year, Miller Reports

Richmond, Va., May 6 (AP).—Virginia will be short 7594 fully qualified teachers for the next school year, G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction, estimated today.

The figure, based on a survey just completed by the State Department of Education, was included in Miller's statement to the Virginia Academy of Science today that the teacher shortage is the "No. 1 education problem" in Virginia and the Nation.

Said Miller: "This situation is particularly acute in the elementary schools where most of the teachers with sub-standard certificates are employed. It has become increasingly alarming on account of the relatively few college students who select courses designed to prepare them for elementary teaching positions, with the number of such graduates constituting a mere fraction of the normal annual replacement need for elementary teachers."

D. C. Sales Tax Passage Seen

a series of anti-sales tax amendments to be proposed by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) ranking Democratic member of the District Committee.

Johnston blocked a District sales tax bill in last year's summer adjournment rush. But now that the Senate has made the sales tax its pending business, single-handed blocking of the measure is out the window, although several Johnston in fighting the sales levy.

As presented to the Senate, the bill calls for:

1. A 2 per cent sales tax on nearly all retail purchases, but with exemptions for food for home consumption, medicines, and restaurant meals up to $1.50.

2. A 50 per cent increase in liquor license fees, and gallonage taxes, and a boost from 50 cents to $1 in the tax on each barrel of beer.

3. A 15-cent increase in the present $2 per $100 tax on real estate.

4. A tax of 1 cent per package of 20 cigarettes.

5. A reduction from $10,000 to $5,000 in the unincorporated business tax exemption.

6. An increase in the District income taxpayer's personal exemption from $1000 to $4000, effective on income received after December 31, 1949.

An opposition program, drafted by Johnston, Frear, Hendrickson and Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) calls for erasing the sales tax feature of the bill, and substituting these revenue measures:

1. An increase in the Federal payment to the District from the present 12 million, to 19 million a year.

2. Extension of the District personal income tax with present exemptions to persons who now are exempted from the levy, and a sharp increase in rates to approximately double present levels.

3. A 25-cent hike in the $2 property tax rate.

4. A doubling, generally, of liquor taxes.

Acting for himself, Johnson also has announced that he favored making the Federal Government pay 25 per cent of the District's expenses each year, and has drafted an amendment for the purpose to present during Senate consideration of the revenue bill.

—With Shirley Povich

ST. LOUIS, MO., May 6.—The American League's $300,000 investment in the St. Louis Browns in the form of a loan to the DeWitt brothers that made possible their purchase of the club last fall now stacks up as something less than gilt-edged.

There was some question anyway as to what business the league had loaning league funds to an individual club because it savors of syndicate baseball which is admittedly bad. And the latest move by the Browns hasn't bolstered their already weak structure.

POVICH

They got some added cash estimated at $50,000 when they sold their top outfielder, Al Zarilla, to the Red Sox in the deal for Stan Spence the other day, but the money was only in transit. The Browns used it to pay off the San Diego club for money due on First Baseman Jack Graham, bought on a look-ee basis. Graham or the dough had to go to San Diego by May 15 under the agreement.

The Browns couldn't hang onto the cash because Graham was doing very well for them, hitting home runs and everything, and to part with him at this point would have produced mutiny by the St. Louis fans.

BILL DEWITT denies that the sale of Zarilla was a fund-raising project and declares, "we didn't need the money." But their attempts to justify the sale of Zarilla on the basis that Spence adds more lefthanded hitting strength, are pathetically feeble.

Zarilla was one of the few good ball players on the Browns. He is 29 years old compared to Spence's 34. Last season Zarilla batted a lusty .329, while Spence was hitting .235 for the Red Sox. Like Spence, he is a lefthanded hitter who swatted 39 doubles and 12 homers. How the Browns added lefthanded hitting strength by getting rid of Zarilla and taking on Spence is not only conjectural but impossible.

For years the Browns have been meeting their bills by selling off ball players but there's a limit. It's like selling off your physical assets or hunks of the grandstand. They don't reproduce. At their present rate, the Browns will wind up as an empty franchise and the league's loan secured by pipe-dreams of filled park.

THERE is some wonder, anyway, that William O. DeWitt decided to take the plunge as a big league club president in St. Louis, fabled as a weak town. He was doing very well as general manager of the Browns with a $25,000 a year salary and a comfortable home under the club ownership of Dick Muckerman, who leaned heavily on him.

Witt's was a laudable ambition. It's nice to own a big-league club, but why he would be willing to gamble his nest egg to own the Browns is a bit baffling. It threw him into direct competition with such spendthrift millionaires as Tom Yawkey, Walter O. Briggs, Dan Topping and Del Webb, and only the shrewdest kind of operation plus some minor miracles could keep him in the clear.

The Browns' ball club is already reflecting the DeWitt's plight. In their first 16 games they have had two losing streaks of six and seven. They're a sad last. The other day with the Yankees in town, they drew only 2200. The fans aren't responding to a losing ball club.

THEY haven't been having any luck, either. They organized a Browns' Booster Club and May 5 was set as the night when the fans were to rally round in big numbers at Sportsmans Park. But a five-game losing streak at that time dimmed the enthusiasm. The Boosters Club had chosen as its slogan to interest young St. Louis in the Browns, the line, "You, too, can be a Brownie." The invitation didn't stack up as very attractive.

The Browns are not as solid a club as last year when they finished sixth. Graham has solved their first-base problem but the pitching is sadly frayed since the sale of Fred Sanford to the Yankees for $100,000 last year. True enough, Sanford hasn't been a success for the Yanks, but for the Browns in 1948 he did win 12 games and there is no sign that they have another pitcher who can win that many.

Zarilla was one of their good ball players. He and Bob Dillinger and Gerry Priddy gave the club a semblance of solidity. Spence at 34 is never to be confused with Zarilla. Perhaps the deal was dictated by the necessity of keeping Graham, but his home runs won't find Zarilla on base any more.

Evans' 2-Run Triple in 8th Tops Browns For Nats, 8-7

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

St. Louis, May 6. — Al Evans tripled with two on in the eighth inning tonight to lift the Nats to an 8-7 victory over the Browns, their fourth straight win.

Evans' blow wiped out a 7-6 lead of the Browns. It was swatted against relief Pitcher Bob Malloy, after Karl Drews hit Christman with a pitched ball to put the tying run on base. Sam Dente followed with a single before Evans broke up the game.

The extra-dimensions of Evans' wallop were somewhat tainted however. It was a line drive that hopped over the head of right fielder Stan Spence who was set to hold it to a single.

Stewart Ill., Lewis Starts

Circumstances forced Manager Joe Kuhel of the Nats to make a change in the lineup that had won three straight. After reaching the park, Outfielder Ed Steward reported ill with a fever, and returned to the club's hotel. Buddy Lewis was moved into right field.

The Browns gained a one-run lead in the opening inning after a violently disputed two-bagger by Dillinger into foul territory, but lost the argument with Umpire Ed Hurley. There was nothing tainted about a two-bagger by Jack Graham that scored Dillinger. It was a fierce blast to the top of the stands in right center, lacking only inches of being a homer.

Nats Score 4 in Second

The Nats got that run back and three more, in an uproarious second inning marked by four hits, and a pair of wild throws by former Nat Johnny Sullivan, the Browns' shortstop.

Vollmer opened up with a two-bagger to the center field wall and moved to third on Robinson's infield hit. On Christman's grounder, Sullivan threw wild past second base, Vollmer scoring. On the next play, a grounder by Dente, Sullivan raced in front of second, grabbed up the ball, and made a ridiculous attempt to flip it between his legs to Priddy. It left the bases filled.

Evans singled to right but the blow produced only one run, with Stan Spence throwing Christman out at the plate when he tried to score from second. A third run scored when Calvert's grounder dibbled over second base, and a fourth moved home after Coan's fly to Lehner.

The Browns bounced back with a pair of unearned runs in their own second to cut the deficit to 4-3. A fumble by Sherry Robertson figured largely. After Moss singled with one out, Robertson bobbled a grounder by Sullivan, and Dillinger scored both runners with a long single to right center.

Sherry Robertson atoned quickly in part for his error in the second with a booming home run to the right field roof that opened the third and upped the Nats lead to 5-3.

Calvert drew a walk with two out in the fourth and was prodded home on singles by Coan and Lewis to boost the Nats' margin to 6-3, but it didn't last.

Priddy's Homer Scores Dillinger

In their own half of the inning, the Browns got two runs back suddenly when Gerry Priddy blasted a homer to the top of the pavilion roof in right with Dillinger on base.

At a time when Calvert seemingly had settled down after two innings of hitless pitching, the Browns unloaded against him and wiped out the Nats' 6-5 lead. Paul Lehner led off with his first homer of the season in the seventh to tie the score and big Jack Graham belted his sixth onto the right field roof to put the Browns in front 7-6.

Al Evans eased the tension for the Nats in the eighth with a two-run triple that put them ahead, 8-7. After hitting Christman with a pitch with one out, Drews retired on complaint of a blistered finger, and was relieved by Bob Malloy.

Dente singled to right and Evans scored both mates with a shot into right field that took a weird hop past Spence for a three-bagger.

In SHORT — Rookie Third Baseman Jay DiFani, optioned to Chattanooga by the Nats earlier in the day, is balking at that transfer and is en route to Washington to argue with Owner Clark Griffith. . . . Walt Masterson will make his first start of the season tomorrow. . . . But Joe Haynes reports a stiffness in his elbow and will miss his next turn.

Boysen Plans To Drop Case

New York, May 6 (AP).—The case of the Brooklyn baseball fan vs. Leo Durocher collapsed completely today.

The fan's attorney, Benjamin H. Chasin, announced he would seek court permission Monday to withdraw a simple assault summons against the manager of the New York Giants.

"Our witnesses refuse to come forward," said the attorney, Benjamin H. Chasin, in explaining the latest turn of events in the Durocher episode. "I can't get in touch with them. They're changing their stories."

The summons was obtained in Upper Manhattan Court last Monday on a charge that Durocher assaulted Boysen after a game between the Giants and Dodgers at the Polo Grounds on April 28.

Chasin said "public opinion" had made the witnesses he had lined up change their minds.

Nats Send Difani to Farm

The Nats yesterday sent Infielder Jay Difani to their Chattanooga farm club in the Southern Association. He had appeared once as a pinch-hitter this season, pounding out a double.

Difani batted .414 in 17 games with the Lookouts last year. He was returned to Washington and finished the season with Newark of the International League.

Bosox Send Dropo To Sacramento

Cleveland, May 6 (U.P.).—Walt Dropo, Boston Red Sox rookie first baseman who batted .146 in 11 games this season, was optioned to the Sacramento Solons of the Pacific Coast League today on a 24-hour recall basis.

WTOP Broadcasts Derby at 6:15 p. m.

Today's Kentucky Derby, to be run at Churchill Downs, will reach Washington's radio listeners some 28 hours before television fans can view the colorful "Run for the Roses."

The radio broadcast, coming exclusively over Station WTOP AM and FM, will take place as the race is run today from 6:15 to 6:30 p. m. Clem McCarthy will describe the race and Bill Corum will handle the color.

The first television showing here will be tomorrow (Sunday) night from 10:30 to 10:45 p. m. over WOIC, Channel 9. The delay is due to the lack of cable connections between Washington and Louisville. Bryan Field will do the commentary for the 15-minute film.

Wight Beats Former Mates

Chicago, May 6 (AP).—Lefty Bill Wight, who used to belong to the New York Yankees, pitched a seven-hitter for the Chicago White Sox today to stop his old mates, 6-2. The result pulled the Sox out of a three-game losing spin and snapped a three-game Yankee win streak.

Just to make it stick, Wight, a .082 hitter in 1948, knocked in three runs with a double off Frank Shea in the second inning. Shea loaded the bases after two were out with singles to Cass Mitchaels and Don Wheeler and a walk to Floyd Baker.

Shea, making his first start after two relief appearances, was wild. He lasted only five innings, giving up all six runs on six hits and five walks during his stay.

Palestinian Picked By Haight With Rain Predicted to Help

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Churchill Downs, Ky., May 6.—Horse enthusiasts, as well as good-time Charleys and Charlottes, converging on this ancient turf scene tonight are steaming—two ways to be exact.

First in anticipation of the diamond jubilee Kentucky Derby on the morrow and second because of a heat wave that has the temperature in the 90's all day and into the night, thus becoming the "Gay 90's" if you know what I mean.

This morning with the sun working with midsummer intensity, the almost-unanimously favored Olympia and 13 other hopefuls were named for Col. Matt Winn's perennial "Run for the Roses," a turf vine that has outgrown every race in America.

If all the overnight entries should ankle up the Downs track to the nostalgic notes of "My Old Kentucky Home," the 75th running of the mile and a quarter fixture would be the third richest in history, with $100,000 added, the event would have a gross of $119,650, with $91,160 as the winner's share.

Richer were Assault's $96,400 triumph in 1946 and fleet Jet Pilot's $92,160 pot of gold a year later. Citation's Derby-winning chore last May was worth $83,400 to Warren Wright.

It's Olympia as a 6-5 favorite here tonight and the vast majority of fans believe the hero of Hialeah's Flamingo, Jamaica's Wood Memorial and Tuesday's Derby trial will get the job done.

The Kentuckians have not been too warm toward Fred Z. Hooper's star but they will cuddle up to him tomorrow if he can whip the opposition.

Olympia drew No. 4 post position—a happy draw his handlers say, off the inside rail and not too far out on the track. From that point, under Jockey Eddie Arcaro's direction, Olympia has his work cut out for him.

Being a front-runner, he must run the early challengers into the ground and still retain enough punch to stave off the late rushers.

Haight On WTOP Derby Preview

Walter Haight, the Post's racing expert, will appear on a special Kentucky Derby Preview over radio station WTOP AM and FM, 1500 on your dial, at 4:45 today.

If Olympia accomplishes the task his name rightfully will be stamped in indelible ink on Derby history.

If there's a switch here it's to Old Rockport, although I might add Old Crow, Old Overholt and Old Taylor to the list. Many fans just can't get that beating Old Rockport handed Olympia in the Santa Anita Derby out of their mind. "He did it once, why not again?" they muse.

While the current stretch of bright weather had held out the promise of the first fast Derby track since 1943 when Count Fleet was an end-to-end victor, the weatherman today came up with a discouraging forecast. The prediction for Derby Day is cloudy, with showers and thunderstorms.

Rain Would Split Sentiment

That gave new hope to horsemen, whose charges bearing the common impost of 126 pounds, may have a better look-in if it comes up mud.

Notably, Old Rockport, who defeated Olympia in the Santa Anita Derby, moves up in mud. So does Palestinian, who headed Olympia at the sixteenth pole in the Wood, only to lose by a neck when he jumped a puddle in the sloppy going.

I'm picking Palestinian, who is trained by Hirsch Jacobs and who once ran in $7500 claiming races, to lead home Olympia and Ponder and the other, Maybe the son of Sun Again and Dolly Whisk isn't that good, but the shrewd Jacobs wouldn't have shipped down here from New York, and wouldn't come up with the $1000 starting fee, if he didn't believe he has a good chance to win.

Able Eddie Arcaro, who will be riding in quest of his fifth Derby triumph, will man Olympia, the son of Heliopolis-Miss Dolphin, whom he brought to the winner's circle in the Wood and the Derby Trial.

Prior to his chore aboard Citation last spring, the powerful pilot, whose formula for success is don't get beat "no noses," scored with Lawrin in 1938, long-tailed Whirlaway in '41 and Hoop Jr., the

A's Shade Tigers in 13th, 5-4

New York, May 6 (UP)—Lefty Bobby Shantz, who only last Monday was farmed out by the Philadelphia Athletics, pitched nine innings of no-hit, no-run relief ball today and gained credit for a 5 to 4, 13-inning victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Pinch batter Waqlly Moses' 13th inning homer with Sam Chapman aboard was the winning blow.

Shantz was sent to Buffalo of the International League last Monday, but when a couple of injuries cropped up on the A's pitching staff he was recalled Tuesday.

He took over in the fourth inning today after the Tigers had scored three runs and kayoed Connie Mack's starting pitcher, Carl Scheib.

There was none out when Shantz came on the scene and he trailed 3-1.

The 23-year-old Shantz pitched no-hit, no-run, ball against the Detroiters for nine full innings.

The A's came up with two runs in the eighth to make it a 3-3 game for him. Shantz, who had faced 31 men without giving up a hit, yielded his first safety to George Kell, who doubled to lead off Detroit's 13th. Vic Wertz, who previously hit a three-run homer, singled Kell home.

MacAuley Signs With Bombers

St. Louis, May 6 (AP).—Ed MacCauley, St. Louis University's great All-America basketball center, signed a two-year contract with St. Louis of the Basketball Association of America today.

The salary terms were not disclosed, but expert guessers put the figure somewhere between $25,000 and $30,000 for the two-year term.

4 Walter Johnson Leagues To Be Organized Today

Every registered pupil will be assigned to a team this morning at the third session of the Walter Johnson Memorial Baseball School.

Registration closes at the 22 playground class locations at 10:30 a. m. today.

There will be four Walter Johnson School Leagues, each opening May 21. There will be the American Association and the International Leagues for the youngsters 12 years old and under. And the American and National Leagues for the boys 14 and under.

The Johnson Leagues will be run like their professional namesakes. Every player will have a cap or T-shirt, emblematic of his team. Accounts of the games and standings will be carried in The Washington Post, and championship games will be played during the second week of August at Griffith Stadium.

Today's Johnson School classes will be led by some of the top college and high school stars of the area. Latest to join the faculty is Eddie Kline, Eastern High School's one-hit pitching king. Kline, who pitched four one-hitters last year, and two already this season, will help Buck Grier at Rosedale.

Giants Stop Cards, 3-0; 4th In Row

New York, May 6 (AP).—Monty Kennedy throttled the St. Louis Cardinals' lefthanded power today, pitching a six-hit, 3-0 shutout to give the New York Giants their fourth straight victory. It was Kennedy's second winning effort of the season.

Bobby Thomson's double off the left-field wall, following singles by Whitey Lockman and Johnny Mize produced the first run off Jim Hearn in the first inning.

Hearn lost control and hit Sid Gordon on the back with a pitched ball in the sixth. Mize followed with his fourth homer, a drive into the lower right-field stands to end the scoring.

Calumet Ace Assigned 120 Pounds

Pimlico, Md., May 6. — Nine horses will make up the field for tomorrow's Dixie Handicap, the $25,000 feature bein goffered over the mile and three sixteenths route here tomorrow.

With the weights ranging from 120 pounds down to a feather of 100, tomorrow's Dixie promises to be a wide-open affair although Calumet Farm's Faultless probably will come up the favorite in the group.

Faultless, sharing top weight with H. L. Straus' Pilaster, is back on the track where in 1947 he won the Preakness. He will be endeavoring to give Warren Wright's stable its fifth triumph in the Dixie, won previously by Whirlaway in 1942, Sun Again in 1944, Armed in 1946 and Fervent in 1948.

Pilaster also will be on familiar territory, for among the five stakes won by the Straus representative last season were the Exterminator and Gov. Bowie over the local oval. In the recent Harve De Grace Handicap, Faultless finished fourth and Pilaster fifth.

Rounding out the Dixie Field will be C. C. Tanner's Nearway, King Ranch's Contest, Brookmeade Stable's Chains and Dart By, Hal Price Headley's Pellicle, Miss Margie Fisher's Shivaree and C. B. Carter's War Story.

The Brookmeade entry is certain of strong support for Chains was beaten only a nose by Lord Grillo in the Havre De Grace and Dart By, in so lightly, cannot be disregarded. Nearway finished third in the Havre De Grac after winning two stakes at Bowie.

Contest, victor in the Burke last season and second in Pimlico's Gittings, will be making his first stakes start of the year but won his last overnight race at the 'Graw. Pellicle comes here fresh from a fine effort in Keeneland's Ben All, in which he was second to Shy Guy.

On this track last season Shivaree won the Heiser and was third in the Gittings while War Story has a third in the Bowie Handicap this season to indicate his fitness.

Olympia 6 to 5 Derby Choice

winner in Hooper silks four years later.

Until this afternoon, the pre-Derby crowds didn't appear to measure up to the usual dimensions. However, today's trains and planes brought a flood of newcomers, motors rolled endlessly down the highroads and the town took on a reasonable facsimile of its Derby time, carnival atmosphere.

The majority of them would be expecting to win a wager on Olympia, of course. He was all over the speed of the field. He beat a sizzling quarter-horse in Florida last winter, clicked off the first three-quarters of the Derby Trial in 1:10 1-5 (one-fifth faster than Bewitch's track standard) on Tuesday, and figured to be out there on the head end.

Palestinian, who won seven races, including the Bowie Endurance Handicap in the mud, has been improving after having been shelved by injury in Florida. He was nowhere in the Flamingo, no better in Olympia's Experimental scores. But he beat Wine List in a Jamaica overnighter, just missed in the Wood and flashed a hot mile here yesterday. He goes in any footing, deep mud, slow or fast.

While Capot drove to a nose victory over Slam Bang in the Chesapeake at Havre de Grace, the son of Menow disappointed in the subsequent Wood and Derby Trial. He'll have to improve astonishingly, as would his teammate, Wine List, if either is to do trainer John Gaver proud.

Halt, the son of Naltal, who scored a surprise triumph over Johns Joy, Wine List and Capot in the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland last week, is being accorded an outside chance at an upset in the silks of Woodvale Farm racing establishment owned by Mr. and Mrs. Royce G. Martin, Toledo. With the stable's chief reliance, Sport Page, on the shelf, Halt will be pointed later for the Belmont Stakes since he isn't a Preakness eligible.

While Old Rockport lost prestige in running fourth in the Blue Grass, he is figured by horsemen as one who surely will be running in the deep stretch. The come-from-behinder, a Carrier Pigeon colt, will be benefited by the presence of the sensational apprentice, Glisson, and may be the horse for favored Olympia to beat.

The race will be off at 6:30 p. m. Washington time. May the best horse win. Come on you Palestinian!

Fancy Putt Wins Star Cup Golf for Mrs. A. B. Bower

A 25-foot uphill putt which rolled precisely into the cup on the 18th green won the Star Cup trophy yesterday for Mrs. Albert B. Bower, of Manor Country Club, in the first tournament of the Women's District Golf Association.

Leading a field of 67 players over the trick Washington Golf and Country Club course, Mrs. Bower shot 41, 37—78 with a birdie on the 18th hole. Mrs. Bower, with a 1 handicap, had low net honors as well as low gross score. She elected to take the low net, and the cup.

Mrs. Betty Meckley, of Kenwood Country Club, carded a 42, 43—85 to take the low gross prize.

Mrs. Paul Streit, of Army and Navy Country Club, competing in her first District event, and Mrs. George Bailey, Jr., of Washington Country Club, tied for second low net with 78's, but in accordance with the rules of the W. D. G. A., Mrs. Streit was the winner when the matched cards showed her to be 1 down to par, while Mrs. Bailey was 3 down to par.

Mrs. M. H. Dinneen, also of Washington, was the fourth low net winner, with an 89—9—80.

Other winners:
Fifth low net, Mrs. George Martin, Manor, 90—8—82. 3 down to par. Sixth low net, Mrs. Ora Emge, Prince Georges, 91—9—82. 5 down to par. Seventh low net, Mrs. H. H. Goodman, Washington, 96—13—83. 4 down to par.
Eighth low net, Mrs. William A. Walsh, Washington, 97—14—83. 4 down to par.
Mrs. C. B. Hartman of Indian Spring and Mrs. D. H. Henderson of Congressional, with net 83's, were eliminated from the prize winners in the matching of the cards.

Middlecoff's 130 Is Best By 6 Strokes

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 6 (U.P.).—Cary Middlecoff of Memphis moved six strokes in front of the field today in the $10,000 Greenbrier Open with a six-under-par 32, 32—64 and a 130 total at the halfway mark in the 72-hole affair.

The same deadly iron shots which gave him a first-round 66 provided him with today's 64 to put him 10 strokes under par at the end of 36 holes.

George Fazio of Conshohocken, Pa., held second place with a 66 for 136 as Bobby Locke of South Africa fell into a third-place tie with Pete Cooper of Ponte Verde, Fla., at 137. Locke had a 69 and Cooper a 68.

Four were tied at 138, eight strokes back of the golfing dentist. They included Ed Furgol of Royal Oak, Mich., with a 70; Henry Ransom of St. Andrew, Ill., with 69; Skip Alexander of Lexington, N. C., with a 67, and Joe Kirkwood, jr., of Hollywood with a 69.

Two other pros were under par for 36 holes, Craig Wood of New York with a 68 and Jimmy Demaret of Oaji, Calif., with a 69 for 139 totals.

VA Will Drop 8000, Close 42 Branches In Budget Slash

The Veterans Administration will give 30-day dismissal notices Monday to about 8000 of its employes and it may have to let another 8000 go in July.

Between 50 and 75 employes in VA's regional office here at 1825 H st. nw. will be among those to be laid off. Reductions to be made at the headquarters office here are said to be minor. In fact, a few employes in offices to be shut down and curtailed in the field may be transferred here.

The lay-off, tipped off here earlier this week, results from a voluntary budget slash of more than half a billion dollars. This cut will wipe out an estimated 10,000 jobs but some of them have been vacated.

VA officials said another bloc of 8000 employes would have to be fired if the Senate approves the House cut of 28 million dollars in administrative expenses.

Next week's lay-off won't affect employes in VA's hospital and medical program. Administrator Carl B. Gray, jr., has written members of Congress that every attempt will be made to serve veterans despite the personnel slash.

One effect of the reduction will be the closing of 42 of the 468 one and two-man contact offices in 23 States. No offices in Maryland or Virginia are slated to be closed but the Richmond branch office will lose several hundred of its employes.

ARMY: The 700 employes of the Adjutant General's Office are protesting strenously against the order to move them into the Pentagon basement. They claim the space there is unfit for office work; that it is improperly ventilated, and ratty. AGO officers have stopped a protest petition the employes wanted to send to Defense Secretary Johnson.

POST OFFICE: Postmaster General Jesse Donaldson is opposed to any more flat increases in pay for his 500,000 postal employes. In a letter to the House Civil Service Committee, he said that if Congress did vote a pay raise for his employes it should also raise postal rates high enough to offset the cost.

AFGE: The AFL's American Federation of Government Employes is pushing two amendments to the Administration reclassification bill which would:

(1) Give each of the 850,000 classified employes an average pay raise of $120 a year compared to $50 under the Administration plan, and (2) to permit employes to appeal their efficiency ratings to Civil Service's board of appeals and review. The amendments have been introduced by half a dozen members of Congress in both the Senate and the House.

ACTION: The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House the Kefauver bill which would permit former employes with less than 20 years of service to withdraw their money from the Civil Service retirement fund with interest and forfeit their rights to pensions.

Also approved was the Hill bill which would give retirement credit to employes for service during which no deductions were made from their salaries through an honest oversight.

Mildred McDowell Crowned May Queen in GW Ceremony

The Washington Post

MAY CAN BE BEAUTIFUL—Mildred McDowell (left), who was crowned Queen of the May last night at George Washington University, is pictured with her honor attendant, Diane Cabeza. Miss McDowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McDowell of 510 Nicholson st. nw., was chosen in a campus election Wednesday. She was tapped president of the Mortar Board, national honorary for senior women, during the May Day ceremony in Lisner Auditorium

Last night was many things to many George Washington University students, but to 21-year-old Mildred McDowell it was a night she'll remember the rest of her life.

To the regal strains of Pomp and Circumstance, Miss McDowell, as pretty a girl as could be, walked slowly to the center of the stage at Lisner auditorium. There—smiling, perhaps a trifle nervous—she was crowned May Queen.

A few minutes later, as the queen surveyed her subjects from her throne, Miss Betty Ann Paisley, outgoing president of Mortar Board, approached Miss McDowell and offered her a single yellow rose. Thus was Queen Mildred tapped president of GW's Mortar Board chapter.

It Was Her Night

So it was her night, but she shared it in laughter with some 500 other students who adjourned for May Day Carnival activities in the school gymnasium.

It took Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, to put into words the carnival air that closed in the campus last night.

"Have fun," said Dr. Marvin to the students. "That's a part of life. If you don't have it, there's something wrong. Have good, clean fun."

Then, somewhat reminiscently: "Every fellow ought to wear out two full dress suits while he's going to college. What the ratio to women's dresses would be I don't know.

"This thing of getting an education, of building your character, is fine. But you can't do it without having a good time as you go along."

Glee Club Sings

After that he handed keys to the ten outgoing Student Council members, the university glee club sang, a cup was presented Delta Zeta for having the outstanding booth at the carnival, 30 students selected for "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges" received certificates, new student council members were installed, and members of Mortar Board tapped.

The gym was a maelstrom. Barkers in derbys and straw hats shouted the attractions of their sideshows. There were also dart games, penny pitching, pie tossing, and booths named "The Little Nugget," and "The Wicked Stage" which were run by pretty girls in shorts.

D. C. Welfare Board Asks For Foster Homes Here

Also Seeks Funds For a Children's Center at Laurel In Overflow Crisis

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Faced with an "irresistible-force-immovable object" problem, the Board of Public Welfare yesterday took these measures to solve its child care crisis:

1. Issued a public appeal for foster homes for dependent children to any person even though outside the immediate Washington community.

2. Decided to ask the Commissioners to ask Congress for funds "as early as possible" to construct a Children's Center at Laurel, in order to expand its institutional facilities.

3. Warned that the problem of dependent and neglected children is a crisis "which may mount" if more homes start to fold up because of housing or family problems.

Private Agencies Praised

4. Praised private agencies and institutions which so far have offered their own space for child care, or have promised to send foster home applicants to the Board of Public Welfare.

Welfare Department Director John W. Tramburg said the board had been told that there are now probably 150 children in the community in homes where they should not be. However, institutional facilities of the Welfare Board, particularly the Industrial Home School Annex, are strained to the breaking point and can not absorb more children.

He said that by placing the children now in the Annex either in private institutions or in emergency or foster homes, the board hopes to free annex space for emergency use.

On the Children's Center, Tramburg said, "We don't want to create any more institutions; but we do need bigger and better institutions than we now have."

How soon funds might be available for work at the Children's Center could not be determined. Tramburg said there were three possibilities:

Congress might amend existing appropriations now before it to earmark funds for the Laurel project. Or the Commissioners might include the construction as a capital outlay item in their 1951 budget. Or as a second alternative, funds might become available for the work if the District is given authority to borrow money.

Commissioner Guy Mason has stated that if loans are permitted to Washington for the public school system, he will insist that money also be spent for welfare institutions.

The Children's Center project was authorized by Congress in 1945 and planning funds have been appropriated for it, Tramburg said.

Would Give Added Space

If Congress authorizes construction, initial funds are expected to total $1,500,000. This would permit transfer of the entire Industrial Home School on Wisconsin ave., the Industrial Home School at Blue Plains and the District boys at the National Training School to the center.

Meanwhile, Tramburg said, the need for foster homes continues to be a big welfare problem. Those willing to apply as foster parents subject to inspection and approval of the board may contact the Child Welfare Division, 462 Indiana ave. nw., in the Foster Home Finding and Placement Section, he said.

Private agencies and institutions which already have offered help to the Welfare Board in its crisis are the Emergency Home, St. Vincent's Home and School, Children's County Home, St. John's Orphanage, the Children's Protective Association and the Jewish Social Service Agency.

The board hopes also that four other similar agencies, which did not send representatives to a UCS meeting earlier this week, may be able to make space available to the welfare agencies. These are the Washington Home for Foundlings, the Episcopal Home for Children, the Baptist Home and the German Orphanage.

Gaming Raid Nets 5 Men

seized property and suppression of evidence, dismissal of the indictments, a separate trail for Lewis in a case in which he is charged with lottery operation along with two others.

4. Eight persons who voluntarily gave themselves up at police headquarters here on Thursday were granted a 30-day continuance of extradition hearing proceedings by Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott.

The four who surrendered at police headquarters yesterday and who posted $300 bond apiece for Municipal Court appearance today are: Ellis L. Solet, 43, of 2805 Lee blvd., Arlington; Gregory A. Seger, 44, of 2801 22d st. se.; Fred Sutton, 27, of 1318 5th st. nw., and Philip Samakow, 52, of 1360 Peabody st. nw. Solet and Seger said they were "clerks" while Samakow listed himself as a "broker." Sutton said he was a "driver." All are under indictment here and in Prince Georges for operating a lottery and bookmaking.

Surrender at Courthouse

Surrendering at Upper Marlboro Courthouse were: Helen Maimone, 3604 Bunker Hill rd., Mount Rainier; Jack Juda Angel, 1730 Hobart st. nw.; John Ralph Mitchell, 4611 Eastern ave., Mount Rainier; Raleigh E. Walker, 3 K st. ne.

Helen Maimone was charged with operating a lottery and posted $300. Angel and Mitchell were accused of bookmaking and operating a lottery. They posted $500 as did Walker who was charged with possession of numbers slips.

None of the four had previously been announced as under indictment. Their surrender brought to 21 the total number now revealed as under gaming indictment.

Cites Lapse of Time

In arguing his motions for dismissal of charges against Accolatti, Attorney Charles E. Ford contended that too great a time lapse ensued between issuance of a search warrant and the act of gambling allegedly witnessed by Bernice Franklin, a waitress. Ford said the last date of her alleged personal knowledge of gambling was some 70 days before issuance of the warrant.

In addition, Ford said, police searched the premises at 1223 12th st. nw. where Accolatti was arrested, although they did not have a search warrant.

The lawyer made a similar point of time lapse in asking dismissal of the indictment against Whiteoak.

To Be Continued Friday

The arguments were heard before Federal Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut. They will be continued Friday.

Attorney Alvin Newmyer represented Kopel in the latter's plea for a bill of particulars before Federal Judge Edward M. Curran. This argument will continue Friday also.

One motion filed by Ford yesterday was in behalf of William (Snags) Lewis, John R. Mitchell, Fulton J. Mitchell, George P. Scott, Fred Sutton, Lonnie Black, Anis Wycke, Ralph Spottswood, Edward L. Hinkle, jr., Gregory Seger, Sterling D. Welch, Dean Kennedy, Bernard J. Del-Negro and Ellis Solet, all under indictment for lottery law violation.

The motion, for a bill of particulars, demanded a mass of data pertaining to when and where the alleged offenses took place, from whom bets were accepted, who the lottery "clerks" were and similiar details.

Another motion asking the return of property seized in a raid on Lewis' establishment, declared the search warrant was illegal because, among other reasons, it did not describe the place to be searched.

Other motions declared the indictment failed to state any offense against the United States; alleged that Lewis' case would be prejudiced if he were tried with Accolatti and Frank Bilecci, also charged with lottery violation; and asked dismissal of gaming charges against Philip Samakow.

Phone Removal Power Contested At PUC Hearing

C. & P. Is Accused Of Asking Authority As Means to Avoid Liability in Suits

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

Telephone removal as an antigambling weapon, already questioned in the courts, was attacked before the District Public Utilities Commission yesterday as "police state tactics."

Harry and Bertha Katz, 3169 Walbridge pl. nw, are protesting the inclusion in the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company's new tariff, of this section:

"The service is furnished subject to the condition that it will not be used for an unlawful purpose. Service will not be furnished if any law enforcement agency, acting within its jurisdiction, advises that such service is being used or will be used in violation of law, and if the telephone company receives other evidence that such service is being or will be so used."

United States Attorney George Morris Fay is seeking removal of the Katz telephone, and 296 others in his efforts to curtail District gambling.

"Shifts Burden of Proof"

John Ingoldsby, counsel for Katz, charged the new tariff, which went into effect April 18, gave police state powers to Fay and the telephone company.

He accused the company of seeking the section as a means of avoiding liability for damage suits, should a subscriber whose telephone was removed be able to prove it had not been used for gambling.

Ingoldsby also charged that the new tariff "violated every judicial rule" in that it would shift the burden of proof from the accuser to the accused.

He told the PUC that under the tariff the company would be legally allowed to violate civil rights, regardless of whether the present management of the company would violate them.

Myron Ehrlich, who won an injunction in District Court restraining Fay and the telephone company from removing the telephone of Nathan Miller, 4923 La-Salle rd., Avondale, Md., also argued against the new tariff. Ehrlich represents more than 30 other persons whose phones Fay seeks to remove.

In a surprise move, Ehrlich called Charles E. Ford, as an "aggrieved witness." Ehrlich is associated with Ford in defending many of the 36 accused gamblers indicted by the special gambling grand jury.

Ford testified he approved of the first sentence of the proposal, but argued that the courts should decide what constitutes unlawful use, not Fay or the telephone company. He said he thought the telephone company would be virtually action proof in a suit for damages, if the proposal were accepted by the PUC.

In a two-hour session on the witness stand in the morning, John M. Howard, general commercial manager of the C. & P., testified the proposal confirmed what had been a company practice for 15 years. Ten representatives of the telephone company attended the hearing.

Howard revealed from the stand that only 80 telephones of the 297 requested by Fay had actually been removed. Eighty-four of the requests concerned Maryland telephones, he said. Removal of other telephones is being held up pending litigation.

FCC Request Cited

Howard said the proposal had been included in the new tariff at the request of the Federal Communications Commission and had been approved by the FCC in interstate tariffs.

The proposal was an effort on the part of the telephone company to cooperate in enforcing District laws, Howard said.

People's Counsel John O'Dea testified briefly that he believed the proposed section of the tariff, which the PUC took under advisement, to be fair and reasonable.

2 Counties' Slot Machine Bills Signed

Bills allowing residents of Prince Georges and Charles Counties to vote on legalized slot machines were signed yesterday by Maryland's Gov. William Preston Lane, jr.

At the same time, Lane vetoed a bill for a slot machine referendum in Worcester County because it provided for gambling by machine in one form in the Ocean City district and for gambling by other forms in the other election districts.

Lane approved the Prince Georges and Charles County bills despite protest from civic groups in both counties.

The Prince Georges County Civic Federation had sent a telegram to the Governor asking him to veto the bill. The federation said that while it approved licensed pinball machines, the bill passed by the Legislature was "not the same" as the one previously indorsed by the federation.

The bill specifically outlaws the conventional side-lever operated slot machine—the so-called "one-armed bandit." However, it would legalize, subject to approval of the voters, electrically-operated slot machines of the "console" type.

The "console" type machine is usually waist high. Some of them operate as do the "one-armed bandits," with the traditional fruit and bar symbols. Others substitute names of horses.

There is no slot from which the coins pour when a hit is made. Instead, an automatic device lights up the number of "free games" due the player. Each "free play" can be translated into a 5-cent payoff.

Those who favor legalizing the "console" slot machines argue that they will bring the county more than $200,000 a year in revenue.

A delegation of civic and religious leaders from Charles County carried their protest against a similiar referendum to Annapolis, but after a hearing, the Governor said:

"The question is whether I can properly withhold from the people the right to decide what I believe is a moral issue."

Legal in Three Counties

In the past, Lane has signed bills authorizing referendums on slot machines in Calvert and St. Marys Counties and the machines are now legal in both counties. They are also legal in a third Maryland county, Anne Arundel, by virtue of a legislative act.

The bill for the referendum in Charles County provides for a special election June 21.

No date has been set for the special election in Prince Georges County. The bill calls for the special election within 30 days after enactment of the bill.

Truman Picks Matthews for Second Term

W. Bruce Matthews, 50, was nominated yesterday by President Truman for a second four-year term as United States marshal for the District of Columbia.

Matthews

Matthews, who lives at La Plata, Md., is a former mayor of that city, at one time was in the Maryland Legislature and is a former deputy collector of internal revenue here. He has a wife and two children.

The $9700-a-year marshal's post carries with it supervision of a complement of 109 deputy marshals. He must also take charge of the custodial force of District Court.

During his last term, Matthews spent much time improving the morale of his deputies. He made a complete reorganization of his office and reclassified his staff according to duties.

He is reputedly the best pistol marksman in his office. At a recent FBI course he scored 96.6 per cent with a .38 caliber service revolver.

Body of Drowned Red Cross Guard Recovered Here

The body of Hobart F. Hampton, 55, of 162 36th st. ne., a guard at the Red Cross Building, was recovered yesterday from the Anacostia River about 200 yards downstream from Benning Bridge.

Hampton's body was discovered floating near the sea wall about 10:30 a. m. by two fishermen, Frank Griffin, 46, of 271 N st.nw., and Benjamin Williams, 58, of 2033 8th st. nw., and was recovered by Harbor police.

A niece, Mrs. Helena Faust, who resides at the 36th street address, identified him. She said he left his home sometime Thursday but that she did not know where he had planned to go.

Two-Gun Man Sentenced for $20 Robbery

A 44-year-old two-gun holdupman was sentenced in District Court yesterday to 5 to 15 years imprisonment for armed robbery of $20 at the Lasalle Restaurant, 704 9th st. nw., on March 3.

He is Urban L. Powell, of Roanoke, Va. Before sentencing Powell, Judge Edward M. Curran pointed out that the defendant had a long record for robbery.

According to police, Powell armed himself with a Luger and a .32 caliber pistol and demanded all funds in the restaurant. He took money from the cash register and the proprietor but was subdued when a customer hit him over the head with a hammer.

In another case, Helen Marshall, 32, of 1408 Simms dr. se., received 1 to 10 years imprisonment for manslaughter. She was accused of fatally stabbing Charles Mont, 32, of the same address.

Brian P. Mulkerins, 19, of 512 2d st. nw. received 1 to 3 years prison for two housebreakings netting him more than $300.

Silver Spring Man Is Killed In Collision

Morrison T. Miller, 39, of 8318 16th st., Silver Spring, Md., was fatally injured in a two-car collision on Route 5 in Clinton, Md., early today.

Miller died in Casualty Hospital at 1:45 a.m. Details of the accident were not immediately available.

A cab driver and his passenger were injured at 2 a. m. yesterday when their cab struck a tree at Connecticut ave. and W. Kirke st., Chevy Chase, Md.

The hacker, A. J. Polifka, 1743 Church st. nw., suffered fractures of both legs and cuts. The passenger, Frederic B. Warder, 4609 DeRussey pkwy., Chevy Chase, Md., an attorney, suffered a dislocated left hip and a cut over one eye.

In Arlington, a 7-year-old boy ran into the side of a truck in the 2700 block of S. Glebe rd. at noon and went to Arlington Hospital with head cuts, possible jaw and skull fractures, police said. He is Robert Jenkins, 2610 S. 27th rd., Arlington.

Hotel Swimming Pool Gets D. C. Approval

Proceedings before the District License Board for revocation of the license of the Ambassador Hotel swimming pool were dropped yesterday when the Health Department reported the facility is now approved.

The department complained earlier that a cross-connection in the pool system was illegal and potentially dangerous. The pool management removed the connection this week.

Press Unit to Continue School Award Plan

The Montgomery County Press Association voted yesterday to continue awarding prizes to the members of the high school press in the county.

The decision was taken at the monthly luncheon meeting at the Kenwood Country Club.

Irving G. McNayr, newly appointed county manager, and Charles H. Kopeland, of Kopeland Associates, addressed the meeting. Miss Dorothy Lane, Governor Lane's daughter, and Miss Jobie Reynolds, radio and television performer, were guests.

80 More Cited In Marriage Report Delay

Local ministers have been cited for delay in filing returns to authorities after performing marriages here in 88 cases during the past six month, District Court records disclosed yesterday.

This brought to more than 500 the number of similar complaints against clergymen in the last two years. Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King yesterday called in 11 of the clergymen involved for conferences on the matter.

Under the law, King said, there are three parts to the marriage license form. One part is kept at the court, a second goes to the newlyweds and the third must be returned to the court by the marrying minister within ten days after the ceremony. A fine of $50 is possible for noncompliance, King said.

First Offenders Warned

King issued warnings to nine accused ministers who were deemed first offenders. Two more, said to be repeaters, were allowed to forfeit collateral at the First Precinct.

The Rev. C. T. Murray, 1101 P st. nw., pastor of the Vermont ave. Baptist Church, posted $20. He was accused of filing a return three days late on one occasion and two days late on another.

The Rev. Carl R. Simon, 907 Maryland ave. ne., of the Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, posted $10 for being three days late on one occasion.

The Rev. Mr. Murray said the matter was simply an "oversight."

The Rev Mr. Simson told a reporter, "I was simply two days late. I am very sorry. I mislaid the form."

Involves About 80 Ministers

King said that the current group of 88 cases involves approximately 80 ministers. Ten ministers will be called in on each of eight specified days in the near future before possible prosecution is begun. King is also checking against possible clerical errors.

In all cases returns were made, but were tardy, King said.

King declined to release names of the clergymen on grounds that church members found it distasteful. However, one of the ministers pointed out that many other church members appeared to get a "kick" out of it all.

Falls Church Curb on Water Asked to Protect Low Supply

With 15 million cool, cool gallons nearly in sight, Falls Church, Va., is going through a minor water famine.

City Manager Roy F. Dunn yesterday requested city residents to cut down on unnecessary water consumption. Pressure in both Falls Church water storage tanks is low, he said.

A new one-million-dollar city water supply system, now about one-third constructed, is scheduled for completion in early August, Dunn estimated. It will link Falls Church almost directly with Washington's Dalecarlia Reservoir.

But Thursday night and yesterday, the city manager said, the city hall was bombarded by telephone calls from water users who found their taps either dried up or running low.

According to Dunn, the present water supply pipes from Arlington County are too small to carry the peak water loads that Falls Church needs during hot, humid weather like that of the past week.

Dunn said both the city's 600,000 gallon and 200,000-gallon water storage tanks now are down to below the half-full mark, resulting in low pressure in many Falls Church homes.

He asked city dwellers to cut down on their lawn sprinkling and car washing activities " so that we won't have to put a ban on unnecessary water use."

City officials pointed out that the Falls Church mayor has the power to invoke an emergency ordinance in water shortages forbidding citizens to use too much of the liquid.

The ordinance, a city statute, enables the city to shut off the water supply of residents who abuse the emergency order.

'Heed Signs of Life' May Traffic Theme

Theme this month of the traffic campaign designated as Operation Safety, is: To save your life, heed signs of life.

Conscientious observance of traffic signs, signals and pavement markings—by motorists and pedestrians alike—is the objective.

"Ignoring traffic signs," warns Traffic Director George E. Keneipp, "is like driving with your head tucked under the dashboard, and it makes just about as much sense.

"Our hope is to convince drivers and pedestrians that they should have more than a nodding acquaintance with these markings."

Nisei Woman Aids Jewish Fund Appeal

A Japanese-American wife who knew "the stigma of confinement" in a war relocation camp in this country has contributed to the 250-million-dollar United Jewish Appeal.

"Since the war, America has re-accepted the Nisei and their non-citizen parents in a most heart-warming manner," Mrs. Etsu Masaoka, 300 5th st. ne., wrote.

"I hope that my little contribution to the UJA will help the displaced Jews of Europe find the same measure of security in Israel which we of Japanese ancestry have found in the United States."

Mrs. Masaoka said she was interned for a year in this country while her husband served in the Army. Her own parents are now seeking American citizenship.

The local men's division of the UJA drive, which seeks $2,500,000 here, will hold a "kickoff" breakfast on Sunday at 10 a. m. in the Jewish Community Center, 1529 16th st. nw.

Main speaker will be Rabbi Isadore Breslau, associate general Washington chairman.

George Lee Cary

George Lee Cary, 62, civilian Navy Department architect, died unexpectedly yesterday afternoon at his home, 105 Rock Creek Church rd. nw.

Mr. Cary had been employed by the Navy Department for 37 years. He was an architect in the industrial mobilization section of the Bureau of Ships.

Born in Centerville, Mich., he attended District schools. He was employed at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. for several years. During the last war he worked for the Maritime Commission.

Mr. Cary was a member of Joppa Lodge No. 35, FAAM; Joppa Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, and the Society of American Military Engineers.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louise H. Cary, his mother, Mrs. Fannie P. Cary, a daughter, Mrs. Clara Cary McMahon, and a son, George L. Cary, jr., all of Washington.

Ernest Hackett Dies; Former Post Employe

Ernest Hackett, 64, former Sunday editor of The Washington Post and a retired Federal employe, died yesterday at his home, 6708 Brookville rd., Chevy Chase, after a short illness.

Mr. Hackett

Mr. Hackett, a veteran newsman, moved to Washington in 1928 and joined this newspaper as Sunday editor. He held the position four years, resigning to enter Government employ in the field of press relations and information.

Born in Canton, Pa., he was educated there and began his newspaper career as a young man, working on papers in Utica and Syracuse, N. Y., and Newark, N. J.

He moved to Philadelphia in 1919 and was employed by the now defunct Philadelphia Press and the Public Ledger. He also worked on the Philadelphia Bulletin before coming to Washington.

Leaving The Washington Post in 1932, he went to work in the information division of the Department of the Interior. He later transferred to the Federal Works Agency's information division.

About 10 years ago, Mr. Hackett joined the information and press section of the Civil Aeronautics Administration. He retired from the CAA post on April 1.

Mr. Hackett had been active in the Montgomery County Democratic organization. He belonged to the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament, Western ave. and Quesada st. nw., and was a former member of the National Press Club.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Frances Burleigh Hackett, and three daughters, Misses Mary Jane, Louise and Elizabeth Hackett, of the Chevy Chase address. A sister, Miss Rhoda Hackett, of Canton, Pa., also survives.

Requiem mass will be said at 9:15 a. m. Monday at the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament. Burial will be in Canton.

Lieut. Comdr. W. Shea

Lieut. Comdr. William W. Shea, 45, retired Naval officer, died unexpectedly yesterday after being rushed to the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

During World War II, he was executive officer of the destroyer Edison, in the North Atlantic anti-submarine patrol, and later was executive officer of the Naval Air Station at Norman, Okla.

Commander Shea, who lived at 4420 Windom pl. nw., was retired in August, 1944, because of physical disability. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1928.

A native Washingtonian, Commander Shea attended Western High School. In 1922, he captained Western's cadet company when it won its first city-wide drill in 16 years.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marie F. Shea; two daughters, Marie F. Shea and Elizabeth A. Shea; his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Shea, and two brothers, Comdr. John Dwight Shea and Tech. Sergt. Robert E. Shea of the Marine Corps.

His father, the late J. William Shea, was a member of the District Bar.

Maeterlinck, Dramatist and Poet, Dies at 86

Nice, France, May 6 (AP).—Count Maurice Maeterlinck, 86, noted Belgian essayist, dramatist and poet, died in his chateau near Nice early today. His death was attributed to a heart attack.

He had been working on a new book, "Memories of My Heart."

Maeterlinck's best known single work is "The Blue Bird," written in 1909. It brought him a fortune. Eventually it was made into a motion picture starring Shirley Temple.

His opera "Pelleas et Melisande," "Magic of the Stars," "The Life of the Ant" and "The Life of the Bee" are among other widely translated works.

Introduced Symbolism

NYHT News Service

Maeterlinck, son of a rich Belgian lawyer of Ghent, introduced into French literature at the end of the nineteenth century the techniques of symbolism and an atmosphere of poetic fantasy. He quickly was acknowledged as the founder of a new school of symbolist poetry.

Of his many works, two dramatic pieces are well known and often performed today. They are "The Blue Bird" and "Pelleas et Melisande," written in 1892 and later set to music by Claude Debussy.

Both are simply written, but full of the most involved symbolism, imagery, and metaphor.

Though a regular concert-goer and a friend of Debussy, whose compositions expressed in music the same moods of mystical fantasy that Maeterlinck expressed in words, Maeterlinck professed to hate music. He quarreled with Debussy over the casting of the first performance of the operatic version of "Pelleas," and never witnessed the opera until it was performed in English in Philadelphia in 1941.

In his early writings, Maeterlinck was forever seeking to penetrate the surface of real life and reveal the shadowy mysteries underneath. His plays deal with the adventures of the soul rather than the person.

After the turn of the century, Maeterlinck reacted against his own mysticism, and wrote a book on "Death" which resulted in the blacklisting of all his works by the Roman Catholic Congregation of the Index.

He wrote a war play dealing with the occupation of Belgium—"The Burgomaster of Stilemonde"—in 1920, and thereafter his literary output declined in both quantity and quality.

Born in Ghent in 1862

Maeterlinck was born in Ghent in 1862, and christened Maurice Polydore Marie Bernard Maeterlinck. He studied law and philosophy under Jesuit priests, and went to Paris in 1887 to start his literary career, to become a few years later the darling of the salons.

In 1901 he married Georgette Leblanc, opera singer and actress, who fell in love with his poetry and gave up her own career to marry him. Their salon was thenceforward one of the most brilliant in Paris, counting Anatole France, Stephane Mallarme and Auguste Rodin, as well as Debussy and other leaders of the contemporary Parisian art world, among its frequent visitors.

In 1911 his household was enlarged to include Renee Dahon, an actress 30 years his junior, who came into his life in the role of "Cold-in-the-Head" in "The Blue Bird." For eight years they maintained a "menage a trois"—which became even more famous than the "menage a deux"—at Saint-Wadrille, a Benedictine abbey which Maeterlinck had bought in 1907.

In 1919, Mme. Leblanc decided she preferred a divorce, and Maeterlinck, then 58, married Mlle. Dahon.

Visited America Twice

The poet visited the United States twice. In 1919 he embarked on a lecture tour, was enthusiastically received, but was unwilling to speak English. His agency cancelled the tour and a series of lawsuits resulted. Maeterlinck went to Hollywood and wrote three unsecessful movie scenarios.

In 1940 the war drove him out of his chateau on the Riviera, and he came with his wife to a two-room apartment in Manhattan. He left in 1947.

While in the United States he wrote "The Great Beyond" and a number of short magazine articles.

Maeterlinck was awarded the Nobel prize for literature in 1911, the Belgian triennial prize for dramatic literature three times in succession, and the Prince Bonaparte prize of the Societie des Gens de Lettres in 1915. He was a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor and received the Belgian Order of Leopold, and on his seventieth birthday was created a count by King Albert of Belgium.

Mrs. Margaret Murphy

Mrs. Margaret O'Donnell Murphy, lifelong resident of Washington died yesterday in West Palm Beach, Fla., where she had been visiting since February.

She had been in failing health for about a year.

Mrs. Murphy, who lived at 4701 Colorado ave. nw., was the widow of John A. Murphy, who for many years operated O'Donnell's Pharmacy at 3d st. and Pennsylvania ave. se. After her husband's death about 30 years ago, Mrs. Murphy continued to run the business until her retirement 15 years ago.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Catherine Pyne and Miss Betty Murphy, and three grandsons, all of the Colorado ave. address; two brothers, James O'Donnell and W. J. O'Donnell, and three sisters, Mrs. Sarah Malone, Mrs. Mary Roach and Miss Nellie G. O'Donnell, all of Washington.

Requiem mass will be said Tuesday at 9 a. m. at the Church of the Nativity, 13th and Quackenbos sts. nw. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Sullivan Toasts 'The President'

Navy, Marines Dance At Gala Relief Ball

By Norma Lanum

TAKE the breath-capturing "March of the Steelmen" by the red-jacketed Marine Corps Band, plus a birthday celebration for the Navy's senior officers on active duty, plus a premier showing of the Marines' new dress uniforms, plus a gold studded audience of nearly all the seafaring officialdom . . . and there you have the Navy Ball, 1949 edition.

The colorful affair took place last night at the Statler Hotel where Navy officials, both in-office and retired, flocked by the hundreds to benefit the Navy Relief Society, D. C. Auxiliary.

Climax of the evening was out-going Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan's response to a spontaneous ovation from the crowd. He strode to the microphone in the middle of the ballroom floor and asked everyone to stand and drink "the only toast the Navy knows—to the President of the United States."

Then the distinguished audience rose to sing "Happy Birthday Dear Admiral" to Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy. But it was in absentia. The Admiral is still confined to his quarters at Bethesda Navy Hospital, so his birthday cake—a gift of the D. C. Auxiliary of the Relief Society—was presented to Admiral Louis Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, who, in turn, promised to take the cake personally to Leahy.

Just about everyone there, at some time during the evening, turned his attention to the Marine Corps Commandant, Gen. Clifton Cates, at one side of the dance floor, or Maj. Gen. William Clement on the other side. The reason: both were modeling the Marine Corps' new dress uniform for its first showing.

As General Clement explains it, the change in attire is part of the military establishment's plan to uniform the uniforms of the services. The outfit has a mess jacket, the cuffs of which are a carry-over from the Revolutionary War uniforms. The cuff design—bordered with a thin red stripe—includes curlicues that occupied the cap visor of the old uniforms.

The ingenuity of the hall's decoration committee was shown to best advantage by the transformation of the huge concrete modernesque statues on either side of the bandstand. The additions of saucy red cardboard crowns, leis of what looked like seaweed and long finned tails changed them to mermen. And the backdrop of the bandstand was a blue curtain sea filled with red, pink, gold, green and blue fish.

Tenor Ben Mitchell Morris, a petty officer, sang with the Navy Band. Later in the program, when the Navy yielded the bandstand to Meyer Davis and his orchestra, Washington's own Kay de Witt and Gene Archer sang. Parisian dancers Florence and Frederic danced.

Retiring Secretary of the Navy Sullivan and his wife had as guests at their table former Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth Royall, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. H. Struve Hensel, who came down from New York; former Marine Corps Commandant and Mrs. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Chief Justice Fred Vinson, Senator Millard E. Tydings, Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin and Mrs. George Holmes. The Sullivans, she looking nice and cool in pale blue satin, entertained at cocktails in another part of the Statler before festivities began.

Former Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown had a cocktail party at their home preceding the ball for guests at their table. They included former Assistant Secretary of Navy and Mrs. Mark E. Andrews, who came up from Houston, Texas, for the weekend; Acting Secreary of the Army and Mrs. Gordon Gray, Admiral and Mrs. Jerauld Wright of Norfolk, Admiral and Mrs. David L. Clark and Captain and Mrs. Upton Brady.

Denfelds Hosts

The Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Denfeld, she wearing a chiffon and lace gown of aqua-blue with lavender violets, were hosts at their ringside table to Senator and Mrs. Clinton P. Anderson, Assistant Secretary of the Navy John Koehler (he replaced Mark Andrews), Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Rear Admiral William N. Thomas, Chief of Naval Chaplains, Mrs. Elizabeth Churchill and Constantine Brown.

And before the dance the Denfelds were honor guests at a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Parsons.

Heading three tables of the top Marine Corps echelon were the Commandant and Mrs. Clifton Cates. Seated with them were Representative and Mrs. Estes Kefauver, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Sam Howard, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. W. P. T. Hill, Presidential press secretary and Mrs. Charles Ross and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Archer.

The Cateses, too, were hosts for cocktails for some 50 other Marine Corps persons at their quarters before the dance.

Kimball Guests

Assistant Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Eugene Zuckert were there also, as the guests of Navy Assistant Secretary Dan Kimball. Others at the Kimball table were Director of the Budget and Mrs. Frank Pace, Representative and Mrs. J. Leroy Johnson of California, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Aubrey W. Fitch and Rear Admiral and Mrs. F. I. Entwistle.

Another table of prominent Navy officials was headed by Vice Admiral William M. Fechteler. Their guests included Senator and Mrs. Andrew Schoeppel of Kansas, Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, Commandant of the Naval Academy, and Mrs. Holloway; Rear Admiral and Mrs. C. T. Joy of Dahlgren, Va., Mrs. Eldredge Jordon, J. Frederick Roy and Admiral Arthur Hepburn.

The Navy Ordnance Bureau had four "Dutch Treat" tables at the affair. Rear Adm. Albert Noble, the Bureau Chief, and Mrs. Noble had as their guests Adm. and Mrs. Frederick Stam. The Deputy Chief of Ordance, Rear Adm. J. A. Snackenberg, and Mrs. Snackenberg were there too, having just recently returned from Greece where he headed the Navy branch of the Joint Military Mission.

Among Capt. and Mrs. William Murphy's guests at still another table were Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark.

The annual Cherry Blossom dance of St. Nicholas Orthodox Church will be held today at the Wardman Park Hotel in the Continental Room, from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. For the dance, which is to be semiformal, music will be provided by Gregory Titov's orchestra, formerly with the Balalaika Restaurant.

There will be a short program of singing and dancing during intermission.

Reservations can be made with Harry Papach or Victor M. Stephans at Lincoln 3-0882.

Norwegian Society To Hear Ambassador

The Norwegian Ambassador, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, will speak at the meeting of the Norwegian Society on Tuesday, May 17, at 8:30 p. m. in Pierce Hall. Senator Alexander Wiley has been asked to relate some of his famous stories, and Mrs. Clifford Hultin, former member of the St. Olaf Choir, will sing Norwegian songs. She will be accompanied by Dr. Landford Bourland.

Also on the program will be Soren Lura and Dr. Bourland in a cello and piano selection from Norwegian composers, and Mr. Lura will direct community singing and there will be dancing from 10 to 1.

Buyers Throng Cathedral Steps To Patronize Flower Market

CROWDS began to throng the annual Flower Mart on the National Cathedral grounds yesterday morning even before the official opening, which was presided over by Mrs. Harry S. Truman.

The judges selected the best of the 37 booths arranged on the Pilgrim Steps before the eager buyers depleted them and had the decisions ready in time for Mrs. Truman to make the awards when she arrived.

There were two categories of booths—flower and miscellaneous. Blue ribbon winner among the flower booths was the herb booth, stocked from the Cathedral's herb garden. Second prize went to The Trowel Club's booth, and the Fairfax Garden Club's booth received honorable mention. Judges for this classification were Mrs. Dean Acheson, Mrs. Lomax Tayloe and Mrs. E. Thompson Donaldson.

In the miscellaneous group, first prize went to the Silver Spring Garden Club for its colonial display, second prize to the Cathedral Alumnae Association's Fishing Pond and honorable mention to the Women's National Farm and Garden Association's Farmer's Market, the Forest Hills Garden Club booth and to the Pantry Shelf booth of luxury food items arranged by Mrs. William P. MacCracken, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim and Mrs. H. Conger Pratt.

Judges for this category were Mrs. W. Stuart Symington, Mrs. Dwight F. Davis and Miss Rose Greely.

Violets for First Lady

The First Lady was presented a bouquet from the Bishop's Garden a cluster of purple asters and yellow delphiniums—the Cathedral's colors. She was also given a Blue Boy African violet plant from the African violet booth.

Mrs. Truman was greeted at the Mart by the Dean of the Cathedral, the Very Rev. John W. Suter, and Mrs. Suter; Mrs. Albert Lucas, president of the All Hallows Guild, which sponsored the benefit, and Mrs. David S. Barry, chairman of this year's Flower Mart.

Wearing one of the leis of candy made by the Jangoes for the benefit, Mrs. Truman did her shopping—selecting a box of strawberries, asparagus, two artichokes and a baseball!

Besides the booths laden with flowers and food, including a booth of fruits and vegetables at which Mrs. Woodrow Wilson helped to sell, there was a children's corner where pony rides, teeter-totters, a merry-go-'round, schmoo balloons, a magician and a marionette show were available.

School Children There

Once the pony broke away and stayed AWOL for half an hour, but returned to duty in time to carry some of the hundreds of school children who descended on the Mart as soon as school was out.

There was even a lost-and-found department, which had as its first customer a $600 French poodle puppy who was content to lap milk until he was claimed.

The tour of the Bishop's Garden was very popular and kept the ushers—of whom Lady Hoyer-Millar of the British Embassy was one—very busy.

The heat was so intense that many of the visitors turned their big paper shopping bags into sun shades. The Red Cross had a few cases of heat prostration to care for, too. But the heat didn't keep the crowds away. By 3 o'clock the proceeds had already passed last year's total of $3000.

The second annual "Friendship Fiesta" was held yesterday in the gardens of the Pan American Union. Sponsored by the Junior Red Cross of the District of Columbia Chapter, the fiesta was attended by younger members of nearly every embassy in town.

Miss Josephine Black, daughter of Associate Justice Hugo L. Black, and Alben William Barkley Truitt, grandson of Vice President Barkley, as well as the daughter and sons of several foreign ambassadors were guests of honor.

Miss Ann Lancaster, incumbent vice president and president-elect of the Junior Red Cross Council, served as master of ceremonies for the program.

Greetings Extended

Greetings were extended by Dr. William Manger, assistant Secretary-General of the Pan American Union.

Red tulips edged the lily pond of the garden and snowball bushes bordered the lawn. Everywhere you looked you could see charming youngsters dressed in pretty costumes of their native land.

Most beguiling was petite Princess Wiwan, daughter of the Siamese Ambassador and Princess Wan Wathaiyakon. Dressed in rose silk and floating chiffon scarf, she did a Siamese dance. A languid conversation was carried on with her hands, each gesture telling part of a story.

Little Eugenia Villegas, daughter of the Ambassador of Colombia and Miss Leonore M. Piedrahita did the "Bambuco," while Miss Marcela Cortina, daughter of the Mexican Financial Counselor danced "Las Chapanecas."

Highland Fling, Too

There was an excellent rendition of the "Highland Fling" by Miss Jean Mitchell and Miss Olga Mary Buzo, daughter of the Assistant Military Attache of the Uruguayan Embassy, danced "Fado Blanquita."

"Song of the Lotus Flower" was sung by Kamola Lochana Gunaratna and Sovimalee Gunaratna of India.

Two numbers furnished by the Junior Red Cross were a barbershop quartette composed of William Bush, Robert Sloper, George Keeler and Loring Hackman from Anacostia High School, and a trumpet quartet composed of Pendarvis Manning, Chauncey Wicks, Leon Mitchell and Robert Dockey, from Armstrong High School.

Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, member of the Junior Red Cross advisory committee is chairman of the entertainment committee. Mrs. Rose Bakalar Berman assisted in arranging the program.

Louis Bromfield To Be Speaker At Stratford

Louis Bromfield will be the principal speaker on the program at Stratford, the Colonial home and plantation of the famous Lee family, in Westmoreland County, Va., on Sunday at 2:30 p. m. He comes to celebrate Ohio Day with Mrs. Walter C. White, director from that State for the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation.

Mr. Bromfield's farm, Malabar, close to Mansfield, Ohio, where his father farmed before him, will soon be rivaled in interest by his new ranch in Texas near Wichita Falls.

Mrs. White will conduct the program for Ohio Day after being introduced by Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, president of the foundation. The public will be welcome on this one of the four days in the year when admittance is free to the birthplace of Robert E. Lee. The dining room will be open and luncheon will be on sale to the public.

Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft, Senator and Mrs. John W. Bricker, and other members of the Ohio delegation in Congress have been invited.

Women's Action Committee Votes to Disband

The Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace has voted to terminate the organization as now constituted but to carry on its work through other organizations, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Dana Converse, interim national chairman, at the committee's New York headquarters.

At the same time the WACLP accepted an offer of the American Associations for the United Nations to supply its former members with educational material concerning developments in the United Nations. Arrangements also have been made to continue "Backlog for Action," a digest of international measures before Congress, which members of the committee received monthly during the past five years.

The decision to disband was made Thursday by the national committee composed of voting members of the WACLP.

Founded in 1934, the WACLP grew out of the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War, which was organized in the 1920s by the late Carrie Chapman Catt.

In addition to a program urging American women to work for full United States participation in the U. N., the WACLP supported before Congress a series of international measures, including European Recovery Program, the Trade Agreement Act, Displaced Persons legislation and the North Atlantic Pact.

Mrs. Backus, in announcing the dissolution of the WACLP, suggested that members work through such groups as the National League of Women Voters, Committee on the Marshall Plan and the Citizens' Committee on Displaced Persons.

Ask Anne

I have several cans which I received when buying pretzels and would now like to use them to store dry legumes, etc. The cans are slightly rusty inside at the seams. Would you recommend my painting the inside? Also, I would like to paint the outside of the cans. Will it be necessary to remove the original paint on the cans? F. C.

To remove the rust which has formed inside the cans, go over the spots with fine steel wool or emory paper to smooth and completely remove loose particles. Run a pointed object around the inside seam to remove all loose particles there. Either paint or one of the new plastic sprays designed for use on metals could be used to protect the inside against further rusting.

Before painting the exterior, it will not be necessary to remove the old paint. Simply dull the shine by rubbing with steel wool and wipe thoroughly to remove dust particles. In painting the can (either inside or out), first apply a thin coat of flat paint. After this dries, use a good-quality, quick-drying enamel for the last coat. If the exterior of the cans is a dark color and you wish to paint them a light color, three coats will probably be necessary. After painting place open cans in an airy place to dry and air thoroughly for a week or more in order to get rid of all paint odor that might affect the flavor of the food stored in them.

Is there any way to rid a house of fleas? My dog brought them home from the vet's and they are a definite nuisance. They seem to have established headquarters in the attic, why, we can't imagine! M. H. B.

According to a bulletin prepared by the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, Department of Agriculture, and the United States Public Health Service, Fleas can be controlled with DDT. One thorough treatment may be enough. A 5 per cent DDT oil solution should be sprayed on or beneath rugs and over floors. Treat the sleeping places of your pets thoroughly. You must also spray other places where they are in the habit of lying down. Use a 10 per cent DDT dust on the concrete or dirt of cellar floors. Dust the powder into the cracks and crevices in basements, kennels and other places where you suspect the fleas are breeding. Dogs may be dusted safely with about a teaspoonful of 10 per cent DDT powder. A line of dust rubbed into the hair along the middle of the dog's back is often enough to kill all the fleas and to prevent them from coming back for a week or more. Do not use an oil spray on animals."

If your dog does not frequent the attic, the fleas may have been carried there by mice or rats. I suggest you investigate this possibility.

Re: A recent inquiry about fishnet: This may be purchased through the Cape Cod Fishnet Industries, North Truro, Mass. It comes in a number of colors, the price varying with the width. It is best hung crosswise and requires 3 to 4 yards for an average window. I purchased a large amount there last summer. M. B. L.

I have a very large, old-fashioned bassinet which has three circular reeds which, when covered, make a carriage top. So far, I have been unable to find a book of instructions relative to covering this. Can you help me, as I have no idea how to begin this task. If you cannot tell me how to locate such instructions, will you then tell me what shop makes a specialty of this work? M. W. K.

I have not been able to find directions for doing this job or any firm which does it. Perhaps if some of our readers have had experience with this sort of job, they would tell M. W. K. how to proceed.

When I read your directions for making soap, I thought I would give you the recipe given me by a very good housekeeper about 70 years ago. Mine is for double the amount of the one you gave.

Use 5 pounds rendered fat and 1 large can lye (11 ounces, double the size you mentioned.) When fat is cool, add one-half cup ammonia. Dissolve lye in 1 pint water. When cool, add one-half cup borax. Pour lye into fat and stir.

All your remarks about iron pot being best, etc., are just right. Also advise the person dissolving lye to stand back as far as possible as the fumes are very strong.

It is the addition of the borax and ammonia in the recipe above that I think an improvement. Also I put a piece of old sheet or other cloth in box or pan before pouring in the soap. It makes it easier to remove soap. E. H. C.

I am planning an early June wedding and would like to know:

1. What flowers are in season and least expensive? (Do lilacs bloom that late?) 2. What is proper attire for the bridegroom and ushers in a formal morning church ceremony? 3. Is it proper to send invitations rather than announcements to out-of-town friends and relatives whom you would like to attend, but don't expect? 4. Do you know of any store that sells monograms which can be sewed on sheets, pillowcases and towels, or where stencils can be purchased to be embroidered by hand? (What type of stitch is employed in this hand embroidery?) 5. Is it the bride's obligation to provide quarters for the bridegroom's parents as well as her own attendants and friends from out of town? M. E. W.

1. Lilacs bloom in late April or early May in this area so they would not be available for a June wedding. Of course, it depends entirely upon the weather, but at that time of the year you should find roses and possibly peonies in season.

2. At a most correct and formal large city church wedding the bridegroom and the ushers should wear morning coat and gray-striped trousers, white dress shirt, wing collar and bow tie. However, if the plans for the wedding are not on such a pretentious scale, it is permissible for the men in the wedding party to wear dark blue suits. Or, since it is to be a summer wedding, white coats with dark trousers or all white summer-type suits. It is important that all male members of the bridal party including the groom to be dressed in exactly the same type of suit.

3. Yes, invitations are sent to all you would like to attend the wedding, regardless of how far away they live.

4. The art needlework department of some of the large department stores occasionally have single initials in rayon for sewing onto garments, but these would not be suitable for sewing onto cotton. The linen departments of department stores will put initials or monograms on your linens by machine. They charge approximately 25 cents for one initial, 35 cents for two and 50 cents for a three-initial monogram. Patterns for initials may be purchased where dress patterns are sold. You use the satin stitch for embroidering these by hand. You will find complete instructions for embroidering with the pattern you buy.

5. If the bridegroom's parents are coming from out of town it would be thoughtful for you to arrange for a place for them to stay. You would not necessarily pay for their lodging, however, if they are to stay in a hotel.

Please tell how to prepare a trunk for storage in cellar that has a lot of moisture in the summer. Other apartment residents say everything mildews in the cellar and the inside of the trunk will acquire a musty odor. Is there anything to put inside the trunk (which is empty) to keep it free from odor or mildew? Should the trunk be wrapped in paper or old sheet? There are racks so trunk does not set on the floor. M. V. H.

There is a liquid product on the market which prevents the formation of mildew and the resulting odor. It is sold where housewares are sold. Apply it to the inside and outside of the trunk according to directions which come with the production. I suggest you wrap the trunk in a sheet or something which will protect it from dust and at the same time allow some air circulation around it. Setting it on a rack is good. Also, place it away from the wall to permit air circulation all around it.

Our 6-year-old son has chosen wall paper for his room with figures of airplanes. It has a blue-gray background, with white and silver and a touch of red, green brown, and yellow. The room is 9½ by 8½ feet with two west windows. The room is not bright except on sunny afternoons. His chest, a small desk, rocker, phonograph and cabinet are dark walnut. His bed is small (30-inch) and could be made to look like a studio couch. I would like your suggestions as to color for woodwork, curtains, linoleums, floor covering, bed cover, waste basket, desk blotter, chair cushions, curtain in closet doorway, and two wall lamps fastened to a bulletin board above desk. E. B.

A color scheme using yellow and blue grey as the predominant colors with red for accent would be attractive for this room. Because the room is small and the paper figured, to achieve an uncluttered effect all of the fabrics and the floor covering in the room should be plain. The woodwork would be painted silver or very light gray, the curtains a sunshine yellow, linoleum blue gray. The color of the linoleum should match or blend with the wallpaper background. Medium shades are most practical from the standpoint of keeping clean. If you wish you could use a white tumble twist throw rug before the bed.

The bed cover could be blue grey with yellow trimming. If you are making it yourself you could place bands of yellow in color to match the curtains around the edge of the bed cover. In this size room keep the decoration on the bed cover simple. If you like you can place two yellow and one red pillow on the couch for accent. The same material as is used in the pillow covers can be used for chair cushions. The curtain in the closet doorway could be the same material as is used in the spread—a fairly heavy blue grey fabric. You could repeat the decoration you put on the bed cover on this curtain. Lamp shades and desk blotter could be yellow and the wastebasket red. One further suggestion: when you choose the blue-grey and yellow take care to choose colors which go well together—some yellows make some blue greys appear dingy.

Heat Reaches 90 Here For First Time This Year

For the first time this year the thermometer yesterday reached that big fat mark: 90 degrees.

Average temperature for the day was 73. Yesterday's ambitious mercury fell only one degree short of the all-time record of 91 for the day set in 1918 and 1934. The 90 mark was reached at 3:20 p.m.

One case of heat prostration was reported. Cornelius White, 40, of 1219 Sixth st. nw., collapsed while working on a construction job in the 900 block Rhode Island ave. nw. He was treated at Freedman's Hospital.

It was humid, too, enough so for the latter part of July, the weatherman said, and it took an impeccable man to keep his collar buttoned in downtown offices.

For today it's more of the same, the forecaster says: hot, humid and around 90. For Sunday the long-range forecast promises relief, with a mercury in the upper 70's.

60 Sue To Close Liquor Store Near a Church

Sixty residents of the area of Eastern and Michigan aves. sued in District Court yesterday to stop operation of a liquor store at 1918 Allison st. ne.

According to the suit, the store is part of a shopping center. The residents said they had withdrawn opposition to zoning the area for the center after assurance was given by center officials that no liquor would be sold, since a church has been completed nearby.

The suit asks for an injunction and cancellation of the lease of the store. Defendants are Stuart Bros., 1023 20th st. nw., operators of the shopping center, and Alex Browdy, 1918 Allison st. ne.

Bricklayers Unit Opens New Quarters Today

Bricklayers local No. 4 will formally open its new headquarters building, 1403 N. Capitol st., at 1 p. m. today. Harry C. Bates, international president of the AFL Bricklayers Union, will unveil the cornerstone.

Ever since it was chartered nine years ago, according to Business Agent Howard Milor, the local has saved funds for the day it could buy or build its own headquarters.

Last year the union bought a six-room house, and partly with their own labor, reconverted the building into offices and a meeting hall.

The local has some 880 members, who work in residential construction.

Sex Offender Given Year on Road Gang

Claude A. Abell, 33-year-old mechanic of Fairfax Park, near Springfield, Va., was sentenced yesterday to 12 months on a State road gang for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Abel lwas arrested Tuesday by Fairfax County police, charged with molesting an 8-year-old girl. County Trial Justice Court Judge Harry L. Carrico heard the case behind closed doors and specified that Abell serve his time in a road camp rather than at the county jail.

U. N. Youth Unit Holds First Meeting Today

The initial meeting of a Washington United Nations Youth group, sponsored by the American Association for the United Nations, will be held at 10:30 a. m. today in Lisner Auditorium, 21st and H sts. nw.

Myles Standish, executive secretary of the Washington World Affairs Center, will be the principal speaker.

Ball Tonight to Mark Israeli Anniversary

An anniversary ball celebrating the first year of the State of Israel will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. this evening at the Jewish Community Center auditorium, 16th and Q sts. nw.

The ball will be highlighted by a pageant and the appearance of several Washington entertainers. Heading the arrangements committee is Miss Dorothy Deskin and Martin Posner.

Address on Pilgrims

Former Congressman Maurice H. Thatcher, once governor of the Panama Canal Zone, will speak at the National Genealogical Society meeting at 8 p. m., tonight. He will speak on "Pilgrim Character," in the Mount Pleasant Branch Library, 16th and Lamont sts. nw.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

The Offer Comes a Few Years Too Late

Jerry Kluttz, who works at the desk adjoining mine, was opening his mail the other morning, and came to an advertisement offering him a free "hair treatment."

"Flattery," muttered Jerry as he tossed it in the wastebasket, "will get them noplace."

SUGGESTION

"Have you ever ridden on a bus on a pitch-black, rainy night?" asks Theodore Bullockus.

"Can you tell where you are, or which is your corner — especially when you're standing in the aisle? Shouldn't it be mandatory for the driver to call out the stops under such conditions?"

GIVE-AWAYS

"Have moved. Must find a home for pure blooded Llassa terrier, female, never bred. Good watch dog, very affectionate." (Georgia 8418, evenings, Saturday afternoon, or Sunday.)

"Gray female cat, part-Persian, housebroken, likes children." (Union 8342.)

"Four lovable kittens, 7 weeks old, partially housebroken." (Emerson 2559.)

"Two 8-week-old kittens, black and white." (Lincoln 3-1755.)

"Box of assorted baby clothes." (National 6286 between 9 and 10 a. m.)

"Three dear little black and white puppies, 6 weeks old; mixed up a bit, but mostly hound." (Brandywine 2563 after 5 p. m.)

GET THE POINT?

In an expansive mood as he took off to cover the Kentucky Derby, Walter Haight recalled a story that he thought would be right down my alley—because it's about a typographical error.

It seems that one year the Churchill Downs management invited all the racing writers to drop down to the dining room for a party after the big race was over.

Haight and Bob Considine finished their stories quickly that year, and arrived in the dining room before any of the other scribes. To kill time, they ordered a couple of drinks.

In a few minutes, some more early birds showed up, and also ordered drinks. Then the rest of the gang arrived, and the party began.

Everybody was enjoying himself until a waiter showed up with a check for $7.20, and tried to get Considine to pay it.

The management had ruled that the early birds were drinking on their own dough, because they had begun before the party officially started.

Considine was furious. He paid the $7.20, but vowed he'd get even.

So, for his Sunday column, he did a bitter piece about the huge amount of money the track made that day, and how niggardly it had behaved in the dispute about a check for a few early drinks.

Then, to point up his case, Bob wrote: "And mind you—all this fuss over a mere $7.20."

But the story went out to hundreds of newspaper clients without the all-important decimal place—and countless readers probably marveled at the capacity of the reporter who could drink $720 worth of whiskey.

"In other words," sighs Haight in recalling the story, "when a typo creeps in, it invariably kills the point of the story. In this case—the decimal point."

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE

You'll find the answer at the end of the column.

LADIES DAY

Every time I make a wisecrack about the Nats, irate readers take me to task.

Pat Schneider of 1730 Yuma st. nw. begins her letter: "Dear Sir, I should have started off 'Dear Sir You Cur,' because I am very angry about your poking fun at the Nats."

Pat goes on to explain that she knows most of the boys personally, "and they are all, with no exceptions, wonderful."

Besides, she's too loyal to sneer at them when they're down—because they put up a good scrap whether they win or lose.

Amy Tepper of 2535 13th st. nw. kicks me while I'm down, and snaps: "You have a nice column, so why not keep it that way and stop making derogatory remarks about the Washington baseball team?

"Just concentrate on finding homes for stray cats and dogs, and leave sports to your very capable sports department."

I was just trying to find out whether Chandler's edict against wisecracking spectators applied to reporters.

Abusive language is certainly never justified; but if the baseball Commissioner thinks he can shut up a fan who has paid his way in, he'd better bone up on the fundamentals of both baseball and human nature.

JOE MILLER, JR.

The junior high school set, in acknowledging introductions, is currently partial to such snappy retorts as: "My name is Cliff. Drop over some time."

U.S.G.A., PLEASE NOTE

Remember that sketch of Golf Concessioner Leoffler that Cartoonist Irwin drew the other day?

To show how much water collects on our public golf courses, it pictured Leoffler cruising the links in a houseboat.

I thought that the fish added a humorous, if slightly unrealistic note. But Joseph H. Caro of 3871 Alabama ave. se. assures me that it was entirely appropriate. He says:

"I found a dead fish smack in the middle of the twelfth fairway at Anacostia immediately following a heavy spring rain. I was sorely tempted to mail it to our beloved Mr. Leoffler."

It is doubtful whether the official rules of golf recognize the contingency that a ball might come to rest on, under or beside a dead fish. So I think we ought to come to a gentleman's agreement, and decree:

"Player may lay out one club-length from all fish, without penalty."

P. B. X. ANSWER

As you've probably figured out by now, P. B. X. stands for Private Branch Exchange.

Mothers and Recollections

By Drew Pearson

(Ed. note—With Mother's Day tomorrow, Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his daughter about his mother.)

Mrs. George Arnold,
Los Angeles, Calif.,
Dear Daughter:

Last week on Grandmother's birthday I went up to Romansville, Pa., near Swarthmore, to visit her grave. I wish that you could have been with me. The maple trees were halfway in leaf and so delicate — the way she loved them. The dogwood was pink and white, and the tree she planted in front of our old house has grown so big that she could scarcely have recognized it—but it lacks the care it had when she was alive.

Mrs. Arnold

And the violets that she loved so much seemed even more blue and tender. Your Aunt Ellen and I planted some on her grave.

April to me is the year's most beautiful month—the month when the world comes to life again, and when she was born—and died. It seems a long time now, and yet so short a time as the years gallop by.

I don't know how well you remember Grandmother Pearson. She died a few months after a war started that she prayed would never happen—a war which she, in her peaceful Quakerlike way, thought could have been avoided.

She never made headlines, as did Grandmother Patterson, nor built up a newspaper. But the love that still remains in the hearts of others may be a greater monument.

The thing I remember most about my mother is the things I wanted to do with her when she was alive—but didn't. You never realize what it is not to have a mother until she is gone, and when the only things left are a grave and memories.

Memories can be so full and satisfying. But they can also be filled with regret—regret for the things you never did with your mother that she wanted you to do—the trips she wanted you to take with her, the books she wanted you to read, the plays she wanted you to see.

After father died in San Francisco I took her down to Ventura, Calif., where I had to speak. There is an artists' colony nearby and quite a nice hotel. It was a short trip, but how mother loved it. I can still remember putting her on the bus as I went south and she went north. We were together only a day, but she looked so happy—just for spending a little time with her eldest son.

There were so many other days I could have spent with her—but didn't. And then suddenly it was too late. I couldn't spend them with her any more.

Two Pioneer Women

I have sometimes thought that if she had to go, it was better that she went before President Truman threw a name at me which according to common usage reflected on her. It would have hurt her terribly.

The funny thing is that my mother was something like Harry Truman's mother, though I wasn't as lucky as he in having mine with me so long. Both were pioneer women from neighboring States, one from Missouri, the other from Kansas.

Mother was born in Humboldt, Kans., about the time the Santa Fe Railway was laying its tracks down to the Indian Territory. Her family came from a long line of pioneers, beginning with her great-grandfather, Andreas Wolf, who arrived in Philadelphia from Germany in 1732 and helped to settle Lancaster County, Pa. Another grandfather was killed by the Indians along the Susquehanna in 1781; then gradually the family pushed West, to Madison County, Ohio. From there my own grandfather (my mother's father) pushed on to Kansas.

He was a school teacher, a farmer and a dentist—a tall, thin man with a beard, and I still have a picture of him holding you, his first great-granddaughter, when you were 6 months old.

Grandfather Wolf was one of the few dentists in southeast Kansas at that time, and he also made trips down to the Indian Territory to pull teeth for the Indians. So he was busy. I don't know how good a dentist he was, but I do know that he was a good father because my mother was only 8 months old when her mother died.

The Last Spring

Well, those are some of the things I thought about last week during my trip up to the old Friends' meeting house where mother is buried, and where the pine trees stand so serene and peaceful over the headstones that you wouldn't think the world was such a troubled place in which to live.

I thought back to the times mother used to spank me with the other side of the hairbrush. It never hurt much. She never could hurt anyone. She didn't know how. And I thought of all the times I was thoughtless and not much company for her when father was away.

And I thought about the spring when mother died. That too was a lovely April. The rest of the world was not lovely. It was the first spring after Pearl Harbor, and the world was bloody and sad. Mother had worried over the war as if by worrying she could prevent it. I used to tell her that at the rate Hitler was going there was no possible way we could keep out of it, but she kept hoping and praying just the same.

Mother had been unhappy and restless after father died. She was torn between seeing her children in Washington and her children in Swarthmore. She missed her own home, yet was too lonesome to settle down by herself.

Finally in that first spring after Pearl Harbor she did find a small house near her grandchildren in Swarthmore. And seemingly content for the first time since father left her, sudden she left us to join him.

I have sometimes thought that the coming of the war which she had prayed so hard to prevent was just too much, and that she was glad to die.

It seems a long time ago, but I still miss her, and can't help thinking how much she would have loved being a great-grandmother to your new son.

Much Love From,
Your Father.
